Five Billions Public Works Plan Offered By Roosevelt

Six Years Co-ordinated Building Program Is Given Congress.

Bulwark Against New Depression

Highways, Bridges and Flood Control Among Projects Cited.

By Sidney Olson.

President Roosevelt yesterday called on Congress to inaugurate the first co-ordinated long-range public works program in the Nation's history—a six-year plan for vast Federal construction to cost $5,011,000,000.

Under a permanent Public Works Department of the Government, the plan gradually would, in a famous New Deal phrase "make over America," with highways, bridges, dams, flood control operations and hundreds of other projects suggested for construction.

The President's purpose, as outlined in a message to Congress yesterday, is dual—to "provide for the orderly development of our resources," and to set in motion a building program which will serve as a bulwark against future depressions.

Prepare for Emergency.

Mr. Roosevelt said:

"We have been compelled to undertake actual work somewhat hurriedly in the emergency. Now it is time to develop a long range plan and policy for construction—to provide the best use of our resources and to prepare in advance against any other emergency."

With his message, the President submitted a report of the National Resources Committee on public works planning, and suggested that recommendations for projects already included in the budget, as well as future special reports, specifically one by the Great Plains Committee, should be read in conjunction with the present report.

The President outlined suggested procedure to include setting-up of the permanent Public Works Department, to which project proposals would filter, to be followed by Presidential examination. The President then would annually submit to Congress through the budget a suggested total amount for appropriation for public works, together with a tentative list of projects. Congress would eliminate from or add to this list.

Recommendations Made.

Recommendations on "the timing of public works and division of costs in their relation to the necessary organization of future continued planning" were included.

The committee's report included, as a primary example of the kind of projects in the program, a drainage basin study.

This study, concerned with problems of water conservation, irrigation, navigation, power, conservation of wild life, and drainage, was high-lighted by recommendations for expenditure of $500,000 for continuation and expansion of surveys of the flood-wrecked Ohio River basin, to be followed by an $85,000,000 construction program there over a period of years.

The report, prepared over a period of months by the committee, was signed by the group's chairman, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, and the members, Frederic Delano, vice chairman; Harry H. Woodring, Secretary of War; Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture; Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce; Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor; Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, and Charles E. Merriam.

Advisory Committee.

The advisory committee to that group consisted of Delano as chairman, and Merriam, Beardsley Ruml, Henry S. Dennison nad Charles W. Eliot 2d.

Received quietly by Congressmen, who were loath to comment before studying the message and report in detail, the program was largely concerned with problems of National and State co-operation in large-scale planning.

In this connection the report stated:

"In so-called normal times, the

'Let Decent Married Folks Alone,' Mother of Bride, 9, Cries.

(Mrs. Lewis Winstead, mountain mother of Tennessee's 9-year-old baby bride, defends the marriage of Eunice Winstead Johns through a neighbor living near her mountain cabin. Sneedville, Tenn., Feb. 3.—I live at Rogersville, 24 miles from the Hancock County hamlet of Treadway, which has become the center of national and world interest since revelation a few days ago that it is the home of probably the youngest bride in the Western world.

Mrs. Lewis Winstead, mother of 9-year-old Eunice Winstead Johns, the child bride, has asked me to "write a piece" to correct "errors" papers have made about the marriage which was performed in the middle of a country road near Treadway January 14.

Mrs. Winstead and her husband and Mr. and Mrs. Hicks, parents of Charlie Johns, the 22-year-old bridegroom, all are bewildered by the "fuss" about the wedding.

One of the things Mrs. Winstead resents most is that papers have been saying she is 33 years old. She insists she is 35.

"Why cain't they leave decent married folks alone?" Mrs. Winstead asked. "Ain't a man and a woman got a right to git married if they're in love?"

I reminded her that the bride is no woman but only a little girl and that's why people are so interested in the marriage.

Then she insisted that although they have been married more

Girl, 12, Sobs as Her Husband of Two Weeks Is Jailed.

By the Associated Press.

Watertown, N. Y., Feb. 3.—The arrest of Stanley Backus, 19, the factory-hand husband of a 12-year-old girl, was announced tonight by District Attorney Carl J. Hynes, who said he would be charged tomorrow with a statutory offense.

Hynes and Detective Samuel J. Roberts asserted Backus had confessed illicit intimacy with the child.

The marriage, which took place on January 15 at Carthage, N. Y., had been given approval by parents of Backus and of the bride, Leona Elizabeth Roshia.

Earlier, while the girl wept in protest, the authorities had put her in temporary custody of Miss Angie Kellogg, Jefferson County children's agent.

She was taken immediately to Mercy Hospital, where Miss Kellogg said she would undergo an examination.

Tears came to the eyes of the girl's husband, when she was led from the courtroom. She wept vigorously.

"I shouldn't want to be separated from Stanley for anything," she declared. "I am too happy and I want people to mind their own business."

Any attempt to separate the mature appearing, 110-pound Leona and her husband will be resisted by her mother, Mrs. Joseph J. Roshia, who said she was a bride at 16.

"They were very happily married, and I want to see them live together," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Backus, parents of the bridegroom, also sanctioned the marriage.

Leona's age was given as 18 and

G-Men Led To Slain Man By Kidnaper

Young Missouri Farmer Reveals Doctor's Body in Thicket.

Physician Was Shot Five Times, Abandoned by Abductor.

Crime Summary.

A Missouri farm youth turned hoodlum confessed the brutal kidnaping and killing of 67-year-old Dr. J. C. B. Davis.

An 18-year-old high school senior was arrested in an attempt to extort $10,000 from an elderly Sandusky, Ohio, physician.

These two cases brought to five the number of major kidnaping and extortion crimes since January 1.

Doctor's Body Found.

By the Associated Press.

Willow Springs, Mo., Feb. 3.—Spurred by science and supported by G-Men, police tonight pinned the brutal kidnaping and killing of a 67-year-old country doctor on a farm youth turned hoodlum.

Robert Kenyon, 20, broke down before dawn and led officers to the hidden, shot-torn body of Dr. J. C. B. Davis, one of the leading citizens of this south central Missouri community of 1,500. The physician, who "brought half of the town into the world," had been lured into the country south of here last week on a false call for medical aid.

Kenyon was spirited away by officers to a closely guarded jail cell in Kansas City. Authorities determined to prosecute him on a first-degree murder charge carrying the death penalty.

Case Solved, Hoover Says.

"He gave us sufficient information that we knew he was the kidnaper in substance," said E. J. Connelley, veteran agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau, marked the case solved and disclosed in Washington that perhaps the most damning evidence against Kenyon was a tablet of writing paper which had indentations, brought out by scientifically trained investigators and shown to duplicate words in two ransom notes sent to Dr. Davis' family. Hoover said his agents were convinced Kenyon had no accomplices.

There still were gaps in the police story, particularly as to why Dr. Davis' kidnaper killed him—apparently a few hours after he was kidnaped a week ago yesterday. But the official story, broadly, was one of bungling by an amateur criminal. Dr. Davis was the fourth kidnap victim to be slain in recent years by his abductor. Only last month Charles Mattson, 10, son of a Tacoma, Wash., physician, was found beaten to death.

Tried to Pay Ransom.

In both the Mattson and Davis cases unsuccessful attempts were made to pay demanded ransoms.

On the afternoon of January 26 Dr. Davis left his office telling his secretary he was going on an emergency case to the home of a "Mr. James" south of here. The doctor was considered well-to-do but not wealthy. He recently had received as trustee $7,000 in the funds of an estate.

Concern did not develop until the following day, when Dr. Davis had not returned and the "James" home could not be found. A school teacher and several men had seen the slender, wiry physician in company with a stranger in an automobile after he left his office. They gave a partial description of his companion.

A ransom note postmarked West Plains, Mo., 22 miles distant, was received by Dr. Davis' family two days after his disappearance. It was addressed "Dear Friend," and was signed "The Kidnaper." It called for a packet of $5,000 in currency divided in four $1,000 bills, nine $100 bills and five $20 bills, and threatened death to the doctor if the family called police. It was written in Dr. Davis' handwriting.

On Friday the physician's medicine bag was found by a young farmer in the brushwood of a creek. The size of the denomination of ransom currency demanded and the discovery of the kit buttressed a police theory of a "small-time crook," who possibly had killed the doctor and was disposing of his effects.

Following the ransom note in-

Relations Cordial, Says Gov. Murphy After Conference.

Labor LeadersFace $15,000,000 Penalty

Judge Says Next Move Is Up to Company; 250 Women Parade.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Feb. 3.—A conference between leaders of opposing sides in the widespread automotive strike adjourned tonight after what Gov. Frank Murphy described as a "cordial and judicious" talk. The conferees will meet again at 10 a. m., Eastern standard time, tomorrow.

William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors Corporation, said "not a thing" was settled. He was smiling when he left the room after four and a half hours' uninterrupted conferring with the Governor and union representatives.

John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, of which the striking union—United Automobile Workers—is an affiliate, said any statement must come from the Governor.

"The Governor has the sole word," Lewis said.

Martin Is Silent.

Homer Martin, U. A. W. A. president, declined comment when he departed a little earlier than Lewis.

The only others in the meeting, called by Gov. Murphy at the "wish of the President of the United States," were John Thomas Smith, General Motors counsel, and Federal Labor Conciliator James F. Dewey, who was summoned late in the day.

"We had 4½ hours of cordial and judicial conferences," the Governor said as he left for dinner with Dewey. "Both sides had been fair and have tried to be helpful."

He said there would be no further comment and that he would be occupied during the night in association with Dewey.

Confers With Martin.

When Lewis returned to his hotel he conferred at once with Homer Martin, U. A. W. A. president, and other members of the union's board of strategy. None of the conferees would comment when their brief session ended.

[John M. Berringer, city manager of Flint, said tonight that vigilantes, "adequately armed," were assembling in three places in Flint, the United Press reported. He said they would include members of the American Legion, the Flint Alliance and other groups opposed to the United Automobile Workers. "They are assembling and will stay assembled until they are needed," Berringer said. "The law-abiding citizens of Flint will have control now instead of the strikers."—Editor's note.]

"Stay-in" strikers meanwhile continued to occupy two body plants at Flint, Mich, in defiance of a court injunction.

In summoning the opposing leaders, Gov. Murphy said the purpose was to "formulate a basis of agreement and settlement."

Such action, the Governor said, would avoid "the necessity of employing remedies or measures of an extreme character."

At Flint, the deadline set by Circuit Judge Paul V. Gadola for strik-

Navy Requests Permit to End Steel Shortage

Bids Withheld Under Rules Imposed for Labor by Walsh-Healey Act.

The struggle of the Navy Department to get steel and copper for the huge 1936-1937 shipbuilding program, deadlocked for weeks by reported unwillingness of the metal industries to bid under the Walsh-Healey act, entered a new phase yesterday with news the Navy had applied to Secretary of Labor Perkins for exemption of steel bids from the act.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison and several Navy Department bureau chiefs have been negotiating secretly with the steel industry for weeks, it was learned, in an effort to obtain cooperation in supplying millions of pounds of steel now sorely needed by the navy yards.

The Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy Yard may be forced to close down construction operations on submarines being built there, officials said yesterday. Scores of workers there and in three other navy yards are likely to be laid off shortly if steel is not forthcoming soon. In some quarters it was believed action within a week is imperative if ship building is to go on.

Requires 40-Hour Week.

The crux of the situation is understood to be the Walsh-Healey Government contracts act, which insists on certain minimum-wage and maximum-hour regulations in all industries bidding on Government contracts. The 40-hour work-week required in the act conflicts with the present 48-hour work-week in steel plants. Reports are the steel industry, with a booming market, is unwilling to shorten hours in order to comply with relatively small Government steel requirements.

Yesterday it was learned Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady already has conferred with John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, in the matter.

Lewis is understood to be adamant in insisting that Secretary Perkins

Senate Passes $950,000,000 Relief Measure

Inflation, Socialism Talk Fails to Halt Progress of Deficiency Bill.

By Robert C. Albright.

The Senate listened solemnly yesterday to statements that Federal relief spending is leading to inflation, economic wreckage and even national socialism, then passed the $950,000,000 deficiency relief bill without a record vote.

The first large appropriation bill, financing WPA, CCC and Resettlement operations for another five months, was sent back to the House, which previously had passed the measure. Today the House will agree to Senate changes, or send the bill to conference.

Bailey Proposal Debated.

Passage followed four solid hours of debate on an amendment by Senator Josiah W. Bailey, of North Carolina, to re-establish "local responsibility for relief" by requiring States and local subdivisions to prove their own inability to care for unemployed before dipping into the Federal jackpot. The amendment was swept aside by a concerted "No" vote.

A few minutes later the House passed the $1,046,000,000 independent offices bill, carrying 1938 appropriations for some 40 Government agencies, including $254,600,000 for the Social Security Board and $585,832,000 for the Veterans' Administration. Again there was no record vote.

The two bills, carrying combined appropriations of $2,000,000,000, are forerunners of a series of regular departmental supply bills, and an undetermined second relief deficiency of $500,000,000 or more to finance flood relief.

Fails to Ask Record Vote.

Bailey's proposal to require "certification" from local governments that their own resources were "exhausted" drew support from a scattering of Republicans and Demo-

Break Widens As Utility Ends TVA Contract

C. & S. Refuses Extension on Conditions Offered by U. S. Agency.

By William V. Nessly.

The break between the Government and private power companies over the Government's "yardstick" program for determination of rates became wider last night when the contract between the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation for interchange of power was permitted to expire.

The Government agency had offered the Commonwealth & Southern a 30-day option on extension of the contract on condition that the private utility give up its demand for exclusive sale rights in certain territory for power purchased from TVA.

Wendell L. Willkie, president of the corporation, announced here yesterday his corporation would not agree to Government competition in the corporation's sale of power purchased from the Government, and the contract, which had been in operation for about three years, died.

Problem Still Exists.

Willkie, however, did not share in the belief that expiration of the contract marked the end of dealings between the Government and the corporation and its numerous operating companies. He declared he felt the whole problem of relationship between the public and private institutions "must be solved soon."

In this he was pursuing the attitude he had advanced at his meeting on Tuesday with officials of the TVA at Knoxville, Tenn., at which he was offered the option of extending the contract if the Government were left free to compete with his operating companies. He said that at the Knoxville meeting he had ex-

Cairo Dike Stems Record Crest; Dangers of Flood Decreasing

Mississippi Rising in Lower Valley; Experts Expect Levee System to Control Waters Despite Forecasts of Rain.

By the Associated Press.

The flood menace so long overhanging much of the country appeared lessening everywhere last night, inspiring hopes that the job ahead was mainly one of consolidating positions against the waters.

The Ohio, reaching its biggest crest of all time at Cairo, Ill., still was held back by that city's lofty levees, and the persistence of the men who remained at imminent peril to defend it.

Great danger continued, but hope was better grounded than fear.

Meanwhile, at New Madrid, Mo., grappling hooks brought up five more bodies from the inundated Birds Point-New Madrid floodway, increasing to 20 the known dead in the sinking of a barge loaded with more than 100 levee workers. Coroner L. A. Richards, of New Madrid County, announced the finding of the additional bodies.

Nine other workers have not been accounted for since the barge sank Saturday night.

The Mississippi was rising south to New Orleans. It was above the flood stage as far down as Vicksburg, Miss., but Gen. Malin Craig, the Army chief of staff, reassured the people:

"Everything is holding all right in the lower river."

There was a forecast of rain in parts of the Mississippi and Ohio basins—and engineers had said too much of that on strategic tributary basins might be disastrous—but the Weather Bureau said the fall would not be heavy enough to work substantial harm.

The Government, nevertheless, turned a sharp eye upon the White, St. Francis and upper Yazoo rivers, along with their tributaries, which feed the lower Mississippi.

On the Mississippi, the one im-

First Lady Makes Visit to Jail For Education; 'Is Apt Pupil'

By the United Press.

It was turnabout day yesterday and Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt was guest of honor at a party given by 40 inmates of the National Training School for Girls.

Last May the First Lady entertained 57 of the girls from the school at a White House garden party. Yesterday the girls repaid their social obligation with the entertainment at the school.

Mrs. Roosevelt, a happy guest, found that great changes had been made in the institution which nine months ago she described as "barbarous and medieval" after her first visit there.

After a tour of the institution, Mrs. Roosevelt said she would make no recommendations for further improvements as "that would be presumptuous."

"This is my education," she observed.

Capt. Rhoda Milliken, policewoman who served as her guide, commented:

"She is a marvelous pupil. She always gets the point right away."

But Mrs. Roosevelt did make a few suggestions. She recommended to Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith, in charge of the school, that educational and entertaining motion pictures be borrowed from the Navy, War and Interior departments.

In reply, Dr. Smith pointed out many of the girls were interested in astronomy. She inquired whether the Navy Department didn't have a glass that could "make the stars come closer." Mrs. Roosevelt told her to write Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who pronounced the school "gloomy" after her first visit, yesterday said improvements in physical surroundings "seem to have had a marked effect on the human beings here." She liked the pictures drawn by WPA artists because "they cheer it so."

After the luncheon, Mrs. Roosevelt autographed a menu and program for the girl who waited on her, and offered to send autographs to all the rest of the prisoners.

She was particularly interested in a shop, where it was explained, each girl was credited with $7 a week, given a check book and made to write a check for $4 for room and board. The remaining $3 may be spent to buy clothes furnished by WPA and the other articles "on sale."

'Sit-Down' Strike For Love Declared By Weary Swain

Excelsior Springs, Mo., Feb. 3 (U.P.).—Lovelorn Harold Hulen tonight sat chained to a radiator in his fiancee's parlor on a "sit-down" strike intended to force an answer from the girl, Miss Florence Hurlbut, 20.

Hulen came to Miss Hurlbut's home at noon today expecting an answer to his proposal of marriage. The girl had promised to answer today but she again changed her mind, as she has many times, according to Hulen.

The 30-year-old swain then took a pair of handcuffs and a pillow from his overcoat pocket, seated himself next to the radiator on the pillow, fastened the cuffs and announced the "strike."

Miss Hurlbut telephoned Excelsior Springs police for advice but would not ask them to eject Hulen forcibly. Hulen said he wouldn't move if served with an injunction.

Lindbergh, Wife Will Swap Stories With Gen. Balbo

Rome, Feb. 3 (AP).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh tonight accepted an invitation to swap yarns on the edge of an African desert with another famous airman, Gen. Italo Balbo.

It was reliably learned the flying colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh will take off from Littoria Airport tomorrow, Lindbergh's thirty-third birthday, on the first stage of a flight to Libya, of which Gen. Balbo is governor.

The couple will spend the night of Lindbergh's birthday in a small town in southern Italy.

Thence Lindbergh will point his plane southward across the Mediterranean toward Tripoli.

Gen. Balbo communicated his invitaton to the American today, together with a huge bunch of roses he ordered presented to Mrs. Lindbergh.

Informed sources said they expected the Lindberghs to spend two or three days in Tripoli before continuing to Egypt.

Sailor, Who Wanted To Sell Self, Jailed On Traffic Charges

John Anderson, jr., unemployed seaman who told reporters he wanted time to think over a prominent scientist's offer to buy him for use as a human "guinea pig" yesterday had his request granted. He was locked up in the Hyattsville (Md.) police station in default of $1,000 bond.

Anderson, who is 25 and lives at 606 Fifth street northwest, was arrested at College Parke, Md., when the automobile he was driving collided with another car.

At the police station, he was found to have no registration card and no permit. Justice of the Peace George S. Phillips, of Berwyn, ordered him committed on charges of unauthorized use of an automobile and reckless driving. He will be tried tomorrow.

Last week Karl von Schilling, of Salt Lake City, was reported to have offered Anderson $1,500 for a year if the former sailor would submit to scientific experiments to determine the cause of airplane disasters.

Star-Spangled Banner Still Floats Unsullied, Patriotism Permeates Capital's Classrooms

The flag of the fathers still flies over the District public schools.

The 90,000 boys and girls being educated here are taught to revere their country.

America's glorious history, its ideals, its heritage of liberty still are passed on to the youth of its Capital.

That patriotism, loyalty to that which is symbolized by Old Glory, is nurtured in the young minds of Washington pupils from kindergarten until they leave the public schools.

This was the nucleus of a report made yesterday by Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou to the Board of Education outlining the system's program of teaching patriotism and pride of Nation.

The Board of Education accepted the report from First Assistant Superintendent Robert L. Haycock, who submitted it in the absence of Dr. Ballou.

Said Haycock:

"The report indicates the wholesome and effective way patriotism is taught in out schools, and how we develop attitudes of patriotism."

The report, Dr. Ballou noted, was submitted "for the information of the board and for purposes of the record."

Several board members said they believed the report will be extremely valuable.

The report, eight pages long, outlined every bit of the teaching of patriotism in teachers' colleges, senior high schools, junior high schools, vocational schools, night schools and elementary schools.

The program as carried out in junior high schools follows:

Public observance of incidents and events:

1. Two minutes of silence observed in schools at 11 o'clock on Armistice Day.

2. Patriotic assemblies held:

a. Special days and weeks observed by plays, pageants, dramatizations and music.

b. Patriotic songs sung and salute to flag given.

c. Movies of historical events shown.

d. Dramatization of units in history assembled around a great national event like the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the meeting of Continental Congress, or phases of the lives of great Americans.

e. Veterans and other representatives of patriotic organizations regularly give patriotic talks to children.

Classroom activities:

1. Salute to flag and recitation of American's Creed.

2. Discussion on patriotism and vocational opportunities in America.

3. Observance of special days and weeks.

4. Singing of patriotic songs and discussion of their origin.

5. Study of patriotic events and the lives of great Americans.

6. Participation in work of

$100,000,000 Asked for Md. And Virginia

Water Conservation Grant Is Recommended to Congress.

The expenditure of $60,000,000 in Maryland and of approximately $40,000,000 in Virginia for water conservation projects over a period of years was recommended yesterday to Congress by the National Resources Committee in conjunction with President Roosevelt's $5,000,000,000 six-year public works program.

Half of these sums was recommended for immediate consideration and construction, while the remainder was classified as deferred projects, to assume priority according to need and funds.

The improvement of the Washington waterfront; the addition of levees and walls in the Potomac near the city for flood control purposes; the deepening of Washington Harbor channels to 24 feet; the restoration of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal as a recreational waterway, and the extension of the George Washington Memorial Parkway were the focus of local interest in the program.

Many for Flood Control.

The majority of the projects recommended throughout nearby Maryland and Virginia were for flood control, improved water supply systems, sewerage systems and sewage disposal plants.

The Washington Suburban Sanitary District, Md., is named in both classifications, present and deferred, for development of water supply from the Patuxent River, coupled with developments of water supply from Great Seneca Creek and Paint Branch.

The projects listed, of interest in the District, Maryland and Virginia out of the Middle Atlantic States area in the report, included the following:

Congress Turns From Floods, Unemployment to Consider Bill Seeking Alterations to Capitol.

By Franklyn Waltman

WITH all the problems plaguing the Nation—a huge army of unemployed, floods, inflationary forces and threats of war abroad—it is, indeed, strange that Congress should concern itself seriously with a proposal to lift the face of the Capitol. But it is, and tomorrow the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds will commence hearings on a bill to make alterations to the main section of the Capitol, which would destroy all the historic associations of that edifice.

WALTMAN.

The wonder of it is that such an undertaking has a very good chance of success unless the architects of the Nation and those who reverence the Capitol as a symbol of our national heritage again beat back this proposal. A similar bill quietly—almost secretly—was passed by the Senate two years ago and was blocked in the House only when the country became aware of what was proposed.

The pending bill, introduced by Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, chairman of the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee, would create a commission of Senate and House leaders, along with the Architect of the Capitol, to extend and reconstruct the central portion of the Capitol in substantial accordance with one of two schemes proposed in 1905, modified as this commission may believe desirable. The bill would authorize $4,000,000 to defray the cost of the work.

Although final details of the scheme would be left to this commission, the program in general would call for extension of the east front of the central portion of the Capitol from 12 to 40 or more feet, bringing that portion out to a line even, or approximately even, with the Senate and House wings. The new front would be of marble and the portico would be enlarged. The sandstone facade of the present Capitol front would for all practical purposes be obliterated, although possibly left to stand as an inside wall.

After the Senate had approved this undertaking two years ago, the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds held extensive bearings on it and subsequently voted down the bill, 11 to 3. A number of architects either appeared before the House committee on that occasion or laid memoranda before it. A large number strenuously opposed making any alterations to the front of the Capitol. Among the opponents were members of the historic buildings committee of the American Institute of Architects; Dr. Leicester B. Holland, chief of the division of fine arts of the Library of Congress; a committee from the Princeton University School of Architecture, and many others.

The chief reason offered in behalf of the plan was to improve the appearance of the building, first, by curing a purely architectural defect resulting from the overhanging dome—the dome is not centered now but is more to the East than the West—and second, to make the central portion of the Capitol conform with the marble construction of the two wings. A secondary reason advanced was that the alterations would enlarge the space for rooms and offices within the building.

Virtually every witness who appeared conceded that as the Capitol now stands it is one of the most monumental and beautiful buildings in the country and that it is the Nation's foremost historic structure. Yet the proposed alterations would change that part of the building which is oldest and has the richest historic associations. They would wipe out the original work of those early architects—Thornton, Latrobe, Bulfinch and Walter—and they would cover for all time the walls scarred by the flames set to the building by the British in 1814. Gone, too, would be the spot where every President for more than a century has been inaugurated.

Granted that the dome on the present Capitol is lopsided—although it takes an architectural eye to see that; granted that there is a lack of harmony between the central portion and wings of the Capitol; granted that the proposed alterations would improve the building's appearance and make it even more beautiful—what of it?

Has not the country plenty of buildings with symmetrical domes and perfect harmony between central portions and wings? Have we not enough of modern architecture in Washington? Must everything harmonize and fit closely together until the city looks like a block of Baltimore or Philadelphia two-story houses?

The Capitol is a shrine of deep interest to Americans, not for its fine architectural points, but because of what has transpired inside of it—and some of that has been lopsided, too—because George Washington laid the cornerstone of the walls now proposed for obliteration; because Jackson, Lincoln, Cleveland, Wilson and both Roosevelts, in times of stress and storm, gave a new life to the ideal of American democracy by taking their oaths of office before those walls; because those walls under their paint bear the scars of the British invasion—in brief, because those walls stand as a reminder and a symbol of this Nation's growth from a struggling republic to a great world power.

Is nothing sacred from this fever and madness to modernize everything?

Congress Gets 5 Billion U. S. Spending Plan

Six-Year Program Offered by President to Balk Depressions.

volume of State and municipal construction is six to ten times the Federal program. The correlation of Federal activities with regional, State and local public works is important. . . . Joint investigations of divisions of fields of taxation by Federal, State and local interests are recommended, as are joint investigations of selected river basins by State and Federal agencies to provide bases for interstate action or permanent programs of water use and control."

The drainage study, as the report noted "constitutes the first attempt by joint action of State and Federal agencies to consider the Nation's water problems as a whole and to offer a co-ordinated program covering every part of the country."

Presents Specific Projects.

The committee then presented specific construction and investigation projects for each of the 17 major drainage districts of the country, with general priorities of importance and time, classifying them into groups of immediate action; those desirable for immediate construction, but obstructed by difficulties of policy, and those of later need.

For a ten-year period the expenditure of $1,747,000,000 for the first group was recommended, with $20,000,000 of this to go for investigational work. The second group would aggregate in cost $1,024,000,000. The total for the water program for the period would thus be $2,771,000,000.

The Nation was divided into the following drainage areas: New England, North Atlantic, Middle Atlantic, Southeast, Tennessee Valley, Ohio Basin, Lower Mississippi, Western Gulf, Southwest Mississippi basins, Upper Mississippi-Red River of the North, Great Lakes-St. Lawrence, Missouri Basin, Colorado Basin, the Great Basin, Calif., Upper Rio Grande and the Pacific Northwest.

Notable in the report was the fact that since June, 1936, when the projects division of the Public Works Administration asked Federal agencies to submit six-year programs of construction, 71 bureaus submitted 10,000 projects, totaling $5,040,000,000 for that period.

The estimated expenditures for the reservoir of projects for each fiscal year:

First year	$1,058,568,650
Second year	891,762,972
Third year	809,801,895
Fourth year	760,410,881
Fifth year	737,084,401
Sixth year	753,733,438
Total	$5,011,362,237

Distribution of Funds.

These funds would be distributed in the following types of work:

Streets and highways, 25 per cent; irrigation, drainage and flood control, 24 per cent; buildings and equipment, 17 per cent; soil conservation, 8 per cent; forest conservation and development, game protection and pest control, 6 per cent; grade-crossing elimination, 6 per cent; water navigation aids, 6 per cent; low-cost housing, recreation projects, aviation aids, slum clearance, sewer projects, etc., 8 per cent.

In the foreword the committee noted:

"The American people through their various governmental agencies, spent over $3,000,000,000 on public works in 1930. Judging by past experience, it is plausible to assume that some 30-odd billions of dollars will be expended for the development of our natural resources and for the provision of new facilities during the next ten years through public-construction enterprises. How can we safeguard the wise investment of this large sum?"

The dominant note of the report is correlation—correlation of studies and collections of data at all levels of Government and correlation of projects to form a comprehensive national picture.

Favors Resources Board.

The agencies to implement the new national planning policy would include an advisory resources board to correlate planning and research, with a planning director and a series of technical committees; a national development administration or Public Works department, to prepare and revise plans annually, negotiate for division of costs with State and local governments, and to allot funds, and a fiscal advisory committee, appointed by the President, to advise on the manner of providing funds during the particular present phase of the economic cycle.

Under these chief agencies would function State, regional and national planning boards.

The water plan of the committee, as presented in the 220-page report, complete with maps and tables of outlined costs, was based on an investigation of the principal water problems of the various drainage areas of the country.

"In planning the storage of water for irrigation in the arid West the possibilities of concomitant power development have not always been emphasized. In planning the drainage of lands for agricultural use in the humid East, the possibility of injury to other interests affected by the behavior of water has commonly been ignored."

Basing their study on the premise that "water, though at times a merciless enemy of man, is perhaps the most precious natural resource of the Nation," the committee members then detailed the lists of projects ranging from coastal erosion control to pollution abatement; from the collection of detailed hydrologic information on rainfall and snowfall to the relationship of vegetal cover to stream water yield; from power market surveys to topographic mapping.

Text of Roosevelt's Message

The text of the President's message to Congress on public works follows:

During the depression we have substantially increased the facilities and developed the resources of our country for the common welfare through public works and relief programs. We have been compelled to undertake actual work somewhat hurriedly in the emergency. Now it is time to develop a long-range plan and policy for construction—to provide the best use of our resources and to prepare in advance against any other emergency.

In a previous message, I have suggested a permanent planning agency under the Chief Executive in order that, among other things, all public works proposals may filter from the many individual departments and bureaus to a central planning place and thence to the President.

I have also suggested to the Congress that following this course of planning the President will annually submit to the Congress a list of projects which have been studied and approved and, at the same time, inform the Congress, through the Budget, of the total amount of Federal funds which, in his judgment, should be appropriated for public works during the following fiscal year.

Advisory List Only.

The list of public works submitted by the President in the Budget Message would, of course, be wholly advisory, for it is within the discretion of the Congress to eliminate projects from the list, to alter the scope of projects or to add other projects.

The report of the National Resources Committee on public works planning which I submit today should, of course, be read in conjunction with the recommendations for highways, bridges, dams, flood control, and so forth, already under construction, estimates for which have been submitted in the Budget, and also should be read in conjunction with other special reports, such as the report of the Great Plains Committee which I expect to submit to the Congress in a few days.

The National Resources Committee submits a six-year program, based on selection and priority of public works. The period of six years is arbitrarily chosen and can, of course, be made to fit into annual future appropriations made by the Congress.

The report also contains recommendations on the timing of public works and division of costs in their relation to the necessary organization of future continued planning. I have already referred to this in my message relating to the reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government.

List Not Final.

As an example of the kind of reservoir of projects constituting the six-year program, a drainage basin study is included in the report. This summary list of projects involving the uses of water is not to be regarded as fixed or final, as the report itself notes, but rather indicates a great forward step in the development of the planning process, considering not one project alone but the relationships between a great group of projects dealing with water use and control.

Through the formulation and annual revision of a program of all types of construction, revision and adoption of the program by Congress and appropriations under regular budgetary procedure timed in part in relation to economic needs we can provide for the orderly development of our resources and the provision of needed facilities for our people.

House Group Meets Today On Track Bill

Senate D. C. Unit to Map Plans for Studying Reorganization.

The Senate District Committee will meet today to draft a program of inquiry relative to District government reorganization and fiscal matters, while the House District Committee holds an executive session on the District race track bill.

Two local bills were placed on the calendars of the Senate and House yesterday. The House District Committee reported the Norton juvenile court reform measure with minor amendments, while the Senate Committee on Education and Labor voted approval of the Wheeler bill to repeal the red rider.

With the red rider repeal bills on both the House and Senate calendars, action in one or the other bodies, and possibly both, may come within a week.

The bill is scheduled definitely for House consideration Monday, but the Senate may take up its calendar Friday in which case the Wheeler bill might be passed.

Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, said some of the pending District bills will be taken up in the committee meeting today after the fiscal relations and government reorganization recommendations to be made by a subcommittee comprising himself and Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas.

The juvenile court bill, which had been amended previously by a subcommittee, was reported to the House District Committee by Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, in the absence of Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma.

"This bill seeks to make a new type of juvenile court," he said, "based on the broad principle that the child who comes before the court is not to be regarded as a criminal but as one whose individual welfare coincides with the well being of the State and who is to be saved rather than prosecuted."

Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal adopted by the full committee. adopted by the Full Committee. They were aimed at clarifying the measure.

Representative Quinn (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, made an unsuccessful motion to eliminate a provision requiring that the judge of the juvenile court be a lawyer.

After voting on the juvenile court bill, the House Committee met in executive session on the bill to legalize racing in the District. Chairman Norton, who had just returned following ten days illness, predicted the measure will be reported favorably today.

New Orleans Forgets Flood for Mardi Gras

New Orleans, Feb. 3 (AP).—New Orleans citizens and thousands of visitors forgot about the high waters of the Mississippi River today to enter into the spirit of Mardi Gras' week of carnival.

The opening street pageant of the Mardi Gras season will be held tomorrow night with the torchlight procession of Momus, God of Night. A succession of brilliant and spectacular pageants and society balls will continue through Mardi Gras Day, next Tuesday.

730 Red Cross Centers House Flood Victims

Aid Fund at $12,651,000 as Relief Program Goes Forward.

With $12,651,000 already collected for its Flood Relief Fund, the American Red Cross yesterday pushed forward in the grim business of emergency rescue work and rehabilitation along the swollen, but receding Ohio, and the threatened vast reaches of the lower Mississippi Valley.

Already the Red Cross has established 730 concentration centers in nine States where the flood victims are housed, and these centers will give temporary care to 650,000 persons driven from their homes in the flood basins.

Among large contributions received from over the Nation yesterday were $15,000 from the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.; $5,000 from the F. W. Woolworth Co., and $3,000 from the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Libby Holman Reynolds, the erstwhile torch singer and widow of the tobacco heir, sent $500; the Gulf Refining Co. of Toledo sent $2,500, and nine little girls in Palmerston, Pa., sent $2 from their "Be a Good Neighbor Club."

$30,000 Comes From China.

Dr. H. H. Kung, president of the United Charitable Association of Shanghai, China, sent $30,000, and the British and Belgian Red Cross organizations cabled their sympathy and admiration for the work being performed by the Red Cross here.

The Daughters of the American Revolution, at a meeting of the national board of management here, gave $1,000.

The 200 boys who make up the roster of the CCC Camp No. A2, at Beltsville, Md., voluntarily subscribed $25.

Admiral Cary T. Grayson took a taxi to his office yesterday, and when he alighted, he gave the driver 50 cents.

"No, no," remonstrated the driver. "Keep your money and I'll give you another 50 cents for the Red Cross."

Weer to Lecture Today On Christian Science

John Henry Weer, Christian Science lecturer of Brookline, Mass., will lecture on "Christian Science: A Practical Daily Religion" at 8 p. m. today in Constitution Hall.

The speaker will be introduced by Bernard C. Duncan, first reader of First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Washington which is sponsoring the lecture.

Rain Late Tonight, Is Weatherman's Pledge to District

Increasing cloudiness, followed by late rain tonight, was on the weather menu for the District today, the forecaster said last night. Tomorrow will be fair and colder.

But before dawn, officials said, the mercury probably will sink to 24 degrees, rising steadily thereafter.

Brisk winter weather dominated Washington yesterday, with a minimum temperature of 23 at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. A bright sun beamed as pedestrians stepped briskly in their overcoats and motorists made sure sufficient alcohol was in their cars to prevent a freeze.

Secret Agents Disclose 'Vast Plot' Against Government.

Junkers" had flown over Berne, Switzerland, on the night of January 31, "with the undeniable destination of Burcos," the Fascist administration headquarters.

As the insurgent southern army renewed its drive on the southern coastal city of Malaga, the Febus (official Spanish) News Agency reported a plane identified as German by its gas tank markings, had been downed during an air battle over Calaceite, near Malaga.

Part of Malaga was wrecked in an insurgent aerial attack yesterday, and a woman and child were killed, government reports said.

In London, British officials said they received reports that "another contingent of Italian volunteers" reached Cadiz, in southern Spain, January 29.

(Word received at Valencia said Socialist planes bombed the Fascist cruiser Canarias off Malaga, but that the vessel apparently was not damaged.

Five insurgent warships reached Algeciras, on the southern coast, presumably ready to co-operate with the land forces in the push toward Malaga, said a Gibraltar dispatch. Two German warships—the Admiral Graf Spee and the Koln—anchored off Algeciras, this dispatch related.

(The British charge d'affaires in Spain was told to bring to the Spanish govrenment's attention the fact that three small bombs were dropped by its planes near the British battleship Royal Oak, off Gibraltar. The vessel was not damaged.

(Norway demanded that the Socialist administration pay $100,000 indemnity for the bombing of the Norwegian steamer Gulnes, in which four seamen were killed. The attack occurred December 8 at Seville.

(South of Madrid, insurgent guns began to bombard the Madrid-Valencia highway the only main road open to those fleeing from the besieged city. The attack came after a tour of the Madrid fronts yesterday by Gen. Francisco Franco, insurgent dictator-designate.)

From Madrid, Gen. Emilio Kleber, a naturalized Canadian who has been in command of an international brigade fighting for the government, rushed to Malaga to organize government defenses.

Levee at Cairo Stems Record Flood Crest

Lower Mississippi Rising; Dike System to Hold, Engineers Assert.

portant present question—will the main levees hold?—was answered "yes" by flood fighting officials who had led 120,000 men in a great task of pushing upward hundreds upon hundreds of miles of bulwarks to heights well above the expected river levels.

Sectional overflows of minor rivers and preliminary out-bank forays of the Mississippi itself had forced more than 200,000 from their homes and relief sources were taxed.

The Cairo defenders, who like many another such group in the flood zone could not relax their vigilance, had personally-delivered assurance from Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins that WPA men would "stand by until the end."

Hopkins has made available thousands of WPA workers for cleanups in the flood areas; he has promised many thousands more.

After a trip by the Presidential Relief Commission headed by Hopkins over some of the flood sections, James L. Feiser of the American Red Cross reported yesterday:

"Conditions are much better than I had hoped for."

Rail Offer Rejected.

Montreal, Feb. 3 (AP).—Representatives of 17 Canadian railway workers' unions announced after a closed session here today they would not accept the report of a conciliation board on wages, and H. B. Chase, spokesman, said they were preparing a strike ballot to be taken among Canadian railway workers.

Vatican City, Feb. 3 (AP).— Pope Pius was cheered today by warm sunlight. He sat for several hours in a glass-enclosed gallery adjacent to his apartment.

Death of Tinsmith Called a Suicide

A certificate of suicide was issued yesterday by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, after an investigation of the death of Frank Hile, 51, 3718 Fourteenth street northwest, a tinsmith.

Hile was found unconcious on the kitchen floor of his home by Carl Marshall, 420 Seventh street southwest, an employe.

Marshall summoned police and the fire rescue squad whose efforts to revive the man were futile. He was pronounced dead by a doctor from Emergency Hospital.

According to friends of the dead man, he had been despondent over the possibility of losing his hearing.

structions, last Saturday midnight a son-in-law of Dr. Davis drove along a highway between Willow Springs and Ava in a futile search for a white flag on a stick which the kidnaper said would be found with further directions.

A second ransom note was received by Mrs. Davis yesterday. It demanded that the ransom be payed at 9 p. m. tomorrow. It also was signed "The Kidnaper."

Kenyon was seized for questioning yesterday morning. Slim, sallow-faced, brown-haired and weighing about 120 pounds, he fitted the general description of the stranger last seen with Dr. Davis. Kenyon is 5 feet 8 inches tall.

Police said they established a new car of Kenyon's was a stolen vehicle. The West Plains police chief said he had received a tip that descriptions of the stolen car fitted one Kenyon had been driving.

Hours upon hours of questioning began. Kenyon was confronted last night with the writing tablet clew. Later he was quoted as offering to lead investigators to a woman and two men who held the doctor.

Finally Kenyon took them to the thicket, about 14 miles away and off a highway, where the body lay. Dr. Davis seemingly had been forced to alight from a car, climb a barbed-wire fence and walk to a knoll between two ponds. Then he was shot—first in the heart. After the fatal wound he was shot twice in the chest and twice in the head from behind.

There were no signs of a struggle. The doctor's spectacles still were in place and clutched in his left hand was a checkbook, possibly opened in an effort to buy his release. Cartridges found nearby were preserved for comparison with a gun in the possession of Kenyon

Capt. A. D. Sheppard, of the State highway patrol, said investigators told him the physician apparently was shot with a .25-caliber automatic and killed within three hours after he was kidnaped.

Kenyon's parents lived at Grimmett, Mo., an Ozark village near here. The father, Samuel Kenyon, is a farmer.

Kenyon's mother said:

"I'm sure someone else was at the head of this besides him. Bob was home all Tuesday (the day the physician was kidnaped and slain), and I know he never once left the farm."

Prosecutor William D. Robert, of Howell County, obtained a first-degree murder warrant for Kenyon before Justice of the Peace W. H. Luna at West Plains. Sheriff Claud Garrett went to Kansas City to serve it.

Senate Passes $950,000,000 Relief Measure

Inflation, Socialism Talk Fails to Halt Progress of Deficiency Bill.

crats, but stiff opposition from Democratic regulars

For two hours, the Senate heard the North Carolinian warn Federal relief "extravagances" will destroy local responsibility upward, hike Federal taxes and ultimately "burn the republic down." But in the end, Bailey failed to demand a record vote on his own proposal.

"I know what the consequences will be," Bailey shouted. "It will not only mean extravagance; it will not only mean ever-increasing expenditures; but it could never be stopped this side of an inflation which would destroy the country; it could never be stopped this side of national socialism that would repudiate the Republic."

The Senator argued the Nation has "caught the disease of public expenditures, and it is sweeping our people and ourselves, our States and our political subdivisions, like the black plague itself."

Then he quoted a bit of Latin.

"Facilis decensus averni," he said, "easy the road to ruin."

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, corrected him.

"Easy the road to hell," Lewis said, and Bailey admitted "that was a more liberal interpretation."

Says "Need Has Passed."

Bailey said $8,000,000,000 still is being appropriated annually, although "the need has passed," that it is being divided unequally among the States, and that ultimately the cost would be passed in taxes to "the worker, the farmer, the laborer, the consumer."

Then he digressed to pay facetious tribute to Rexford Guy Tugwell and Harry Hopkins.

"I suppose there never was a nobler man in the world than Prof. Tugwell," he said. "He was a paragon of virtue. We gave him $100,000,000. He left us a memorial" (flourishing the Resettlement Administration's elaborately illustrated report).

Bailey said he heard Hopkins had been offered a job with a large mail-order house.

"Needs Experience."

"The best thing that could happen to this country would be for him to get that job," he said. "I would be glad to give him $25,000 a year just for the money we would save by his going into that business. He needs practical experience."

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, interjected that what was needed was a change in the relief "system," and a study should be directed to that end before next year's appropriation. Like Bailey, he said he favored "local responsibility" for relief, but did not think a deficiency bill was the proper place to effect the reform.

Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, opposed amendment of Bailey's proposal so it would not apply to projects already authorized, because he said it would be "discrimination against any community which had not been able to get under the tent."

That proves everything that I have said," said Bailey. "The whole Federal scheme will be a scheme which will be carried on until the crack of doom until everybody gets under the tent."

$789,000,000 Provided.

As passed by the Senate, the relief deficiency provides $789,000,000 for relief and work relief in the next five months, with $855,000,000 of that amount to go to WPA and $79,000,000 to the Resettlement Administration. A cut of $1,000,000 was made in RA's Washington administrative expenses. The bill carried an increase of $50,000,000 over the House measure for feed and seed loans to farmers.

Senate passage of the relief measure came as Hopkins disclosed WPA relief funds are "scraping the bottom of the barrel."

Although the Senate eliminated from the bill a House ban on Congressional investigating committees "borrowing" WPA employes, the independent offices bill which passed the House yesterday carried a similar prohibition, denying use of departmental funds to pay employes of Congressional investigating committees.

House Debates Spending

Originally exempting from the ban inquiries approved by House and Senate, it was tightened yesterday by an amendment by Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, of Virginia, to apply to all Congressional investigations.

Excessive Federal spending figured prominently in House debate on the independent offices bill, but efforts to slash FHA and REA appropriations and to deny appropriations for labor-saving devices were defeated overwhelmingly.

The independent offices bill, providing $61,000,000 more than the same bill did last year, included the following appropriations:

Executive office, $494,478; Civil Service Commission, $75,502,000; Federal Communications Commission, $1,525,000; Federal Trade Commission, $1,961,000; Interstate Commerce Commission, $7,939,000; Labor Relations Board, $785,000; Securities and Exchange Commission, $3,895,000; Public Works Administration, $10,000,000; Rural Electrification Administration, $31,520,000; Home Owners Loan Corporation, $30,000,000, and Federal Housing Administration, $9,500,000.

Mussolini Was 'Bright Fellow' in Student Days, Avers Duce's Teacher, in D. C. for Lecture Series

But Dr. Vittorio Racca Barely Remembers Noted Pupil.

A professor who taught Mussolini, all unaware of the future international phenomenon, owned up to his deficiency in clairvoyance here yesterday.

He is Dr. Vittorio Raca, former lecturer at the University of Lausanne, and since 1911 professor in economics and Italian at New York University.

Italy's "man on horseback," according to Dr. Racca, attending his lectures on sociology and economics at the University of Lausanne. That was in the year 1903-04 when Il Duce was persona non grata in his native land.

The great man was then a socialist, Dr. Racca admitted, and it was his proselytizing activities as schoolmaster that led to his banishment.

But even socialists or future dictators have to eat and Il Duce was getting his hands calloused as a bricklayer when he enrolled in Dr. Racca's class.

The professor unwillingly admitted yesterday that he did not notice Benito Mussolini then. "In Europe there is not much contact between student and professor" he said by way of explanation. Later however, when a famous march on Rome had skyrocketed the Fascist leader to power, Dr. Racca searched his memory for a vision of that glowering face.

"I discovered we had mutual friends in Lausanne," Dr. Racca said with pardonable pride. "Now I remember Mussolini as a very bright fellow, courageous in the statement of his ideas."

Dr. Racca, who did not care to make any comments on Italian politics, refused to say whether he believed in the more abundant life, Mussolini plan, will lecture this semester at the Institute of Criminal Science, 1741 K street northwest. One of his subjects, he admitted, will be: "A description of what the Fascist government is doing to take street urchins out of the streets, and not only prevent them from becoming delinquents but mold them as useful and disciplined citizens."

British Cabinet Weighs Hitler Colonial Plan

Meets Twice; Night Session Follows Arrival of Germany's Envoy.

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 3.—Adolf Hitler's demand for return of some of Germany's former colonial empire, it was reported tonight, caused the British cabinet to meet twice today.

It was the first time the ministers gathered twice in one day since the abdication of Edward VIII December 10. The second session, which ran well into the evening, began after the arrival of Joachim von Ribbentrop, German Ambassador.

Hitler's address to the Reichstag Saturday has been under examination by foreign office experts all this week.

One British source asserted Der Fuehrer might insist on return of colonies which Britain took over from Germany at the end of the World War, on the ground this would solve Germany's economic worries.

(Those colonies include vast sections of Africa as well as several Pacific Island groups.)

Von Ribbentrop was non-committal on whether he had specific instructions to discuss colonies. Informed observers predicted he would talk to British officials about enlarging the German navy.

Comdr. C. S. Stanworth Succumbs at Norfolk

Commander Charles S. Stanworth, U. S. Navy, retired, died at Norfolk yesterday afternoon after an illness of six months, according to the Associated Press. He was 72 years old.

A graduate of the Naval Academy in 1881, he was promoted to Commander in 1907, following "eminent and conspicuous conduct in battle during the Philippine campaign." He served on the cruiser U. S. S. Baltimore during the Battle of Manila Bay and the Boxer Rebellion. He was awarded a special letter of commendation by the Navy Department for service in the World War.

M'Reynolds, at 75, Ignores Birthday

By the Associated Press.

Justice James Clark McReynolds, second member of the Supreme Court in point of service, was 75 years old yesterday.

Associates quoted the Justice as saying that his birthday means "just another day and I'm another year older."

A native of Kentucky, he was appointed to the high bench by President Taft and took his seat January 3, 1911.

Justice McReynolds holds the record for having written more opinions holdings acts of Congress unconstitutional than any other man who ever sat on the Supreme bench. Of the 76 acts invalidated up to the current term, he wrote the opinions in nine. Only ten other justices wrote more than two such opinions.

He has voted against contentions of Roosevelt Administration lawyers in all cases except the silver tax and the prison-made goods law, upheld by the court this term.

Churches Plan Drive On Tavern 'Hostesses'

Salt Lake City, Feb. 3 (AP).—A National campaign to "take women out of the liquor business" was outlined at an inter-denominational church meeting today.

Dr. Edward Delor Kohlstedt, of Philadelphia, president of the Home Missions Council of America and executive secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Church board of home missions, said church groups throughout the United States will be asked to join in a drive to prohibit employment of "hostesses" in taverns.

Paper Firm Seeks To Compel Rebate

The International Paper Co. yesterday asked District Court to compel 16 railroads to carry out the terms of an Interstate Commerce Commission ruling that the company was entitled to a rebate of some $125,000 on freight shipments.

The company said the I. C. C. had decided it was entitled to the rebates some time ago. None the less, the companies refused to refund the money, and a court order is said to be necessary to force compliance.

Through Attorneys Wilbur LaRoe, Frederick E. Brown and Arthur L. Winn, the paper company said the excessive charges were made on clay shipments from South Carolina and Georgia to the Northern units of the concern.

Youth Seized For Attempt At Extortion

Old Typewriter Leads to Arrest in $10,000 Threat Case.

Purchase of a ribbon for a 23-year-old typewriter put an 18-year-old high school senior in the hands of Federal agents yesterday on charges of attempting to extort $10,000 from an elderly Sandusky, Ohio, physician by threatening to kill his two small grandchildren.

Arrest of the boy, Joseph Palazzo, who played on the Sandusky High School football team, was announced by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation.

Hoover said Palazzo was the author of notes threatening death to the grandchildren of Dr. Carl R. Knoble, Sandusky physician, and promising, unless the money were paid, to bomb the home of the physician's son, Dr. Ross Knoble, as well as the Plumbrook Country Club, one of the town's fashionable social centers of which Knoble is president.

The notes were written on a 1914 typewriter, Hoover declared, and Palazzo was arrested when it was learned he had purchased a ribbon for such a machine.

In Sandusky, friends of the Knoble family recalled that Palazzo had worked about the home of the elder Dr. Knoble last summer as a handy man. The first of three extortion notes was written last June.

Hoover said the youth admitted writing the notes. Palazzo was quoted by District Attorney Frank Wiedeman, according to the Associated Press, as saying he held no ill will against the Knobles, but merely wanted money to set himself up in the garage business.

'37 Crime Record Grows

By the Associated Press.

This year, only five weeks old, already has a black record of major crime.

At the outset, it shared with 1936 the horror of the yet unsolved Mattson kidnaping case. The beaten and frozen body of little Charles Mattson, who had been kidnaped December 27 from his home in Tacoma, Wash., first was viewed by Federal agents January 11 in a thicket near Everett, Wash.

The Justice Department added another dismal page to the record yesterday. It concerned the kidnaping and murder of Dr. J. C. B. Davis, wealthy country doctor of Willow Springs, Mo. His kidnaper lured him out of his home to treat a "Mr. James," then shot him down.

Richards F. Hammond, a Michigan State policeman, was another whose violent death has been entered on the Federal crime-fighters' books. Police said he died at the hands of a man he had arrested for questioning.

National Bank robbers apparently were on vacation as 1937 got under way but extortionists have provided plenty of work for Federal agents.

The first case of the year involved the disappearance January 7 of David H. Clark, former deputy district attorney, at Los Angeles. Clark's family said they had received an extortion note demanding $10,000.

On January 21 Federal agents arrested Chune Schied Lee, 25-year-old Chinese, on charges of attempting to extort $5,000 from John P. Mahoney, vice president of the Bendix Products Corporation of South Bend, Ind.

Edward G. Bremer, of St. Paul, Minn., who was kidnaped in 1934 and held for $200,000 ransom, was the third extortion victim. Federal agents arrested Fred Eiden January 28 at St. Paul on charges of attempting to extort $10,000 from him.

Break Widens As Utility Ends TVA Contract

C. & S. Refuses Extension on Conditions Offered by U. S. Agency.

pected the whole problem of the relationship between the Government and the private utility would be discussed but that members of the TVA insisted on limiting the discussion to sale of power.

He presented, he said, a number of possible solutions and advanced the view that competition in distribution of electric energy was unsound economically. The possible solutions included creation of a power pool, once suggested by President Roosevelt who more recently has stopped all pooling negotiations because of an injunction against extension of TVA activities obtained by a number of the Willkie operating companies.

Would Replace Plants.

Another suggestion by Willkie was that private utilities in the Southeast buy all the power generated by the Government and use Government power in lieu of operating their steam plants.

He offered a joint study of the suggestion that the Government purchase "all of our generation, transmission and distribution systems," or buy one of the Willkie companies or a lesser system. He held that should the Government take over some of the distribution systems there should be an understanding that the Government will not compete with the balance of the private systems.

He agreed to purchase part of the power produced by TVA, as provided under the old contract, but insisted TVA should not compete with his companies in selling the power, or sell to others who would compete with them where they were disposing of the TVA energy.

In a statement yesterday he held that "for us to purchase power from the Government in the absence of . . . some understanding as to the manner of the present or future acquisition of the distribution areas, or without the Government agreeing not to sell power directly or indirectly to the consumers in the territory which we were serving with such power . . . was almost impossible."

Boomerang Is Seen.

"We would in such circumstances be providing part of the funds with which our business would be destroyed," he added.

"We could not possibly, without some such solution of the whole problem determine the amount of power we could use and buy from TVA over any period of time if we could not know what customers we were or were not to obtain."

He said he had asked that a decision be postponed by TVA for at least 30 days, but the board refused.

Following this statement, Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of TVA, called reporters to receive a statement from him on Willkie's decision, but changed his mind and decided to say nothing at the present time.

Under the contract expired last night, Commonwealth & Southern bought 557,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity from TVA in 1936, in excess of 80,000,000 hours which it sold to TVA. The corporation paid the Government agency $870,000 for the difference in the interchange. In the previous year it paid TVA about $500,000.

Can Produce Own Power.

Willkie said it had been buying the energy from the Government system and keeping down operation of its own steam plants, but that with expiration of the contract it could easily resume operation of its own plants and produce all of its own power. A readjustment period already has been agreed to in which cessation of power interchange can be brought about.

Operating companies of Commonwealth & Southern were among those which recently obtained temporary injunction against expansion of the TVA power program in the Southeast. The Government had appealed to the Circuit Court. Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill much indignation has been expressed over the companies' court action. Unless the injunction is set aside on appeal it will stand until Judge John J. Gore, of Federal District Court of Tennessee, who granted it, begins hearings March 8 on making it permanent.

Representative Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi, earlier yesterday urged TVA directors not to extend the contract until the injunction suit is withdrawn.

Ousted Policeman Seeks Job Return

A writ of mandamus to compel the District Commissioners to restore him to active duty and pay him for the time he has been on the inactive list was filed in District Court yesterday by former Policeman John R. LeFoe, who was dismissed from the force June 30, 1934.

In his complaint the former policeman said he had been found not guilty of a charge of extortion when he was tried in District Court. Nevertheless, he said, the Commissioners, acting on recommendation of the Trial Board, had dismissed him.

He claims the action of the District Court was binding on the trial board and should have been the yardstick by which his fitness to remain on the force should have been measured.

Whalen Urges Co-operation For N. Y. Fair

1939 Fete Is America's, Diplomats, Statesmen Told at Dinner.

Diplomats, statesmen and many others gathered at the Hotel Mayflower last night as Grover A. Whalen asked the co-operation of the world in the New York World's Fair of 1939.

At a stag dinner attended by members of the Washington Diplomatic Corps, the Postmaster General, the fair committee and others described by Senator Joseph Robinson as "fellow plutocrats," Whalen, president of the fair corporation, declared the 1939 celebration would not be New York's but America's.

"The world is in our presence tonight," Whalen said, as he told the representatives of many nations that the fair committee was anxious to have as large and representative a foreign exhibit as possible.

"Bloods of World" Cited.

Saying "the bloods of the world flow through the veins of the people of New York City," he made the prediction that the fair would top all previous events for foreign participation.

When preparations are complete, he said, the exposition would represent a capital investment of between $125,000,000 and $150,000,000. He added that an expected 50,000,000 visitors would circulate an estimated $1,000,000,000 of new money in New York City.

The event will be held in Queens at a spot Whalen said was in the exact geographical and population center of New York City.

Lindsay, Farley Speak.

Although Whalen had emphasized there would be "no speeches," several of the celebrities were called on for remarks.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, assured the group that his country wished the utmost success to the New York event.

Postmaster General Farley, addressing "Mr. Whalen, your excellencies and fellow office-holders," said that his being called on to speak was probably "a subtle way for Grover to suggest a commemorative stamp" for the exposition. He also asked the assembled diplomats to do their part in making the occasion a success.

Senator Robinson, Democratic floor leader, got a laugh from the audience when he said:

"Fellow plutocrats: We had a celebration in Arkansas this year and extracted $75,000 from the United States Treasury. I will show you my patriotism. * * * I'm willing to do at least as much for the New York celebration as I've done for Arkansas."

LaGuardia Unable to Attend.

The evening concluded with a program of entertainment in which headliners at local theaters took part.

Fiorello LaGuardia, Mayor of New York City, who had accepted an invitation to attend the event, was prevented at the last moment.

Among the invited guests were:

Perkins Committee Split on Silicosis

The report of Secretary Perkins' silicosis committee showed a division yesterday over the proper legislative approach toward elimination of the dust disease.

The committee unanimously agreed, however, that all State workmen's compensation acts should cover silicosis.

Health and labor experts agreed at a meeting here yesterday knowledge now available probably could be used virtually to eliminate the disease from American industry.

This view was expressed at the second national silicosis conference called by Miss Perkins. Speakers included Dr. R. R. Sayers, of the United States Public Health Service; Warren A. Cook, of the Connecticut State department of health; V. P. Ahearn, of Washington, and L. Metcalfe Walling, Rhode Island labor commissioner.

Carefully tailored from Atkinson's Irish Poplin—a silk-and-wool construction which imparts a graceful pliability, gives a trim, smooth knot, banishes wrinkles, and insures long wear.

Italo-Turkish 25-Year Breach Is Seen Closed

Ciano, Istanbul Minister Arrange Part for Duce in Montreaux Parley.

By the Associated Press.

Milan, Italy, Feb. 3.—The foreign ministers of Turkey and Italy, in two conferences lasting almost five hours, sketched the broad outlines of a general Eastern Mediterranean agreement today.

Premier Mussolini's youthful son-in-law and foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, and the Turkish foreign minister, Tevfik Rustu Aras, were understood to have arranged Italian participation in the Montreux convention, which gave Turkey the right to rearm the Dardanelles.

"No question now divides Italy and Turkey," said a communique issued after the meetings, "and in relations between the two countries only the sentiments of reciprocal confidence have reason to exist."

The Turkish minister expressed satisfaction with Ciano's "comprehension of the exigencies of Turkish policy."

Count Ciano assured Rustu Aras, informed sources said, that Italy's extensive air and sea bases in the Dodecanese Islands, particularly at Lero, were not designed to serve against Turkey, but to protect Italy's route to her East African possessions—just as Malta protects Great Britain's route to the East.

The Italian minister was said also to have assured Turkey that ambitions for Turkish Anatolia, cherished by Italy in 1917 and immediately after the World War, have been abandoned by a "satisfied" Fascist empire.

The troubled course of Italo-Turkish relations of the last 25 years was reviewed as the negotiators sought a basis for understanding.

It was believed Mussolini considered the time ripe to make friends with Turkey, first allaying Turkish suspicions and defining spheres of influence, in the hope Italy could woo Turkey from friendship with Soviet Russia—a move which Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany was said to approve.

Italo-Turkish relations were strained during the Ethiopian war and after Italy's refusal to attend the Montreux conference.

Alarm Bell Fails; Four Are Arrested On Gaming Charge

An alarm bell which failed to herald the enrtance of Vice Squad police yesterday afternoon led to the capture of four men in an alleged race-betting establishment at 1417 P street northwest.

Led by Sergt. George Deyoe and Deputy Marshal Thomas Ott, the raiders were not required to smash a 6-inch steel-enforced door leading from a used tire shop into the "plant" in the rear. The door, they said, was opened from within by a policeman who had made several plays in the place.

The men, arrested on a United States Commissioner's warrant charging them with setting up a gaming table, gave their names as William P. Moses, 46, 1200 block Massachusetts avenue northwest; Charles Hurley, 29, 800 block Twenty-second street northwest; Philip M. Petrone, 22, first block K street northwest, and Earl L. Dixon, 33, 1400 block Foxhall road northwest. They were under $1,500 bond for a hearing February 17.

Sergt. Deyoe said numerous horse-betting slips were confiscated with two telephones, an amplifier, rundown sheets and a system of telephone switches.

Mrs. Hannah Warren, 65, of 1302 Twelfth street northwest, died at Emergency Hospital last night of burns suffered in a fire at her home January 25.

Burned in the same fire as they tried to beat out the flames and save their mother were Joseph Warren, 31, and Kermit Warren, 27. Both have recovered.

9 Army Bombers Hop Tomorrow On 1,950-Mile 'Routine Flight'

Squadron of 36 Officers and Enlisted Men to Leave Langley Field for Nonstop Voyage to France Field, Panama Canal Zone.

A squadron of nine Army bombers, carrying 36 officers and enlisted men, will take off tomorrow morning from Langley Field on a one-stop, "routine," 1,950-mile flight to France Field, Panama Canal Zone.

The nine 200-mile-an-hour Martin B-10-B bombers are from the Ninty-sixth Bombardment Squadron, stationed at Langley Field, and under the command of Maj. Jasper K. McDuffie. The Ninty-sixth Squadron is part of the Second Bombardment Group, commanded by Lieut. Col. Charles B. Olfield.

The only stop will be at Miami, Fla., where the squadron will land at Municipal Airport. Accompanied by a YOA-5 Douglas observation amphibian and an officer skilled in meteorological science, the bombers will fly across the Caribbean Sea to Panama the following day.

Immediate Return Planned.

The return flight will be immediate, with a similar overnight stop at Miami.

In announcing the "routine flight" War Department officials emphasized that the flight is not intended as a "maneuver," "demonstration" or "pioneer flight."

The crews of four per plane, first pilot, co-pilot and navigator, crew chief and radio operator, will carry special equipment. A jungle kit, assigned to each plane, will include a flashlight, hunting knife, smoke grenade and bolo knife. An over water kit provides flotation gear for both men and supplies in case of accident at sea; the usual pilot's emergency kit contains rations, compass and maps. These emergency supplies will be carried in non-sinkable bags.

Fair Weather Seen.

For the 1,140-mile hop over open water, from Miami to Panama, the bombers will be supplied with special bomb bay fuel tanks to supplement the normal fuel supply carried in wing tanks. Data on the approximate location of shipping in the Gulf of Mexico during the second day's flight will be secured, and contact will be made with Pan American Airways, to secure from them what assistance may be needed.

Army fliers expect fair weather for the flight, inasmuch as the dry season is on in Panama.

Maj. McDuffie, Squadron Commander, will pilot the first plane in Flight A. Other pilots are Second Lieut. Burton W. Armstrong, Lieut. Clifford H. Rees, Capt. Cornelius W. Cousland, Second Lieut. Cuba Confirms Fraga as New Envoy to U. S.

Dr. Patterson, Formerly Here, Transferred to Post in Mexico City.

The nomination of Pedro Martinez Fraga, present Cuban Minister to London, as Ambassador to the United States was confirmed by the Cuban Senate yesterday.

Fraga, a bachelor in his early forties, and a diplomat of but two years' experience in the Cuban career service, will replace the well-liked Dr. Guillermo Patterson y Jauregui, for several years prominent in local diplomatic social circles.

Dr. Patterson will report to Mexico City shortly as Cuba's Ambassador to Mexico, it was announced.

The appointment of Fraga, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Havana, was made by the Senate in a secret session. Only two weeks ago Dr. Patterson on his arrival in Havana, took issue with a dispatch printed here that he was to lose his post in Washington, and said the President of Cuba, Federico Laredo Bru, had confirmed him again as ambassador here.

Martinez Fraga, the new ambassador, is a lawyer and a little more than two years ago, a member of the Cuban House of Representatives.

His brother, Antonio Martinez Fraga, was one of the three accusers of former President Miguel Mariano Gomez in the impeachment trial which resulted in Gomez's removal from office on December 24.

Mattson Aide Calls New 'Mable' Ad a Fake

Tacoma, Feb. 3 (AP).—Paul Sceva, spokesman for Dr. W. W. Mattson, last night branded a "Mable" advertisement in the Seattle Daily Times as "undoubtedly the work of another crank."

Sceva said, "it has absolutely nothing to do with the Mattson family. It doesn't make sense to me, and the only thing I can think of is some one is trying to chisel-in in some way to try to get money."

TAKE WEIGHT OFF TIRED FEET

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Reducing Exercises.

If your feet and ankles feel tired and ache all over—because you are carrying too much fat—do something about it. Try the treatment that has helped millions to reduce excess weight.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right.

All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks — and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out in this way.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on the same method used by doctors. So don't waste your time or money striving to reduce with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get a box of Marmola today from your druggist. (Adv.)

Detectives Seek Man in Stabbing

Detectives last night were searching for a mysterious assailant who stabbed Arvin Plumley, 29, 715 Sixth street northwest, in the side while he was eating in a Chinese restaurant in the 600 block of H street northwest.

Plumley, according to police, was eating and talking to a waitress when a man known only as "Charlie" began an argument with him. A fight ensued and Plumley was stabbed in the side and arm.

He went to Casualty Hospital for treatment and was released. Later he returned to the hospital, where it was learned the knife had pierced his left lung.

Anderson, Ind., Feb. 3 (AP).—A baby boy was born yesterday to 15-year-old Mrs. Ira Stout. It was her second child, a girl having been born two years ago, when the young wife was only 13. The father is 55 years old.

Police Court's Veteran Clerk Asks to Retire

F. A. Sebring, 77, Wants to Leave Because of Illness.

Francis A. Sebring, 77, chief clerk of Police Court for the last 30 years, asked for retirement yesterday in a letter to Presiding Judge John P. McMahon.

Sebring's request, coming after 40 years employment in the court, was based on an illness which has confined him to his home for two months.

Police Court judges blocked Sebring's retirement in 1932 when he was ruled over retirement age by the economy act. The judges secured special orders from President Hoover which kept the aged chief clerk in office for four more years.

The retirement, if it is approved, will take effect March 1, in order to allow sufficient time to close affairs in the clerk's offiffice.

Sebring was born in Chatfield, Minn., coming here as a young man after being admitted to the North Dakota bar. He graduated from the University of Rochester in 1886.

He is well known here as a member of several Masonic lodges. He is a thirty-third degree Mason; past master of Temple Noyes, No. 32; past potentate of Almas Temple; past high priest of Mount Vernon Temple, No. 32, of Scottish Rite, and past commander of Columbia Commandery, Knights Templars.

Injured Policeman Sues for $50,000

Alleging he has been permanently injured and is facing retirement from the Police Department, Motorcycle Policeman Ernest C. Spaulding yesterday in District Court filed suit against Mary E. Cissel, 3108 Thirty-eighth street northwest, for $50,000 damages.

The officer, through Attorneys F. Joseph Donohue and Myron G. Ehrlich, said that the defendant drove by a stop sign at Thirty-fourth and Garfield streets northwest, last February 21, and despite his screaming siren collided with his motorcycle. At the time, he said, he was chasing a speeder.

Spaulding has lost the use of his left arm. Because of that impairment he is facing retirement, the suit said. In addition, he spent six months in the hospital recuperating from the injuries he received in the collision.

Early Iceberg Is Menacing Shipping in North Atlantic

Patrol Speeds Into Action to Safeguard Boats; Appearance of Huge Floe This Time of Year Called Unusual.

By the Associated Press.

A wireless message saying an iceberg had been sighted in the North Atlantic steamship lanes sent the Coast Guard's iceberg patrol into action yesterday.

The cutter Cayuga was ordered to sail from Boston to watch the berg and warn ships. The berg was reported by the American freighter Black Tern, which said the menace was off the Grand Banks and was 60 feet high and 200 feet long.

Experts said sighting of a berg near steamship lanes so early in the season is exceptional. Last year the patrol did not go out until March 23 and reported no bergs near steamship lanes during the entire season. The earliest the patrol has previously taken station in the North Atlantic was February 7, 1922.

The ice patrol was organized after the Titanic was sunk by an iceberg on April 14, 1912. Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and the United States share its expense.

From now until July 1, when the menace normally ends, cutters will be in the ice area, searching for bergs and charting their movements.

Attempts to blow up big bergs have proved unsuccessful. The cutters stand by any exceptional bergs and warn all ships to change their course until the berg disintegrates in warm water as it floats southward.

Seal Industry Endangered.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, Feb. 3 (AP).—Persistent northwest winds sent parts of Arctic ice floes bumping against the shores of Newfoundland today in the earliest southern invasion of the ice in years.

Seal-fishers speculated on whether their industry would be affected.

Virginia Farmer Found Drowned In Rappahannock

Warrenton, Va., Feb. 3 (AP).—The body of Mason McClannahan, 65, Fauquier County farmer, was found in the Rappahannock River today about 300 yards from the point where he disappeared while fishing Sunday.

Ed Fishback, a member of the searching party that has been dragging the river bottom for three days, discovered the body when his boat struck McClannahan's fishing pole. Entanled in his line, the farmer apparently had toppled into the river.

Surviving are his wife and 11 children. They are John Mason McClannahan, of Clovelly; Mrs. Virginia Riley, Mrs. Mary Augusta Riley, Mrs. Eleanor Curtis, Richard, Chester, Walter, Wallace and Misses Thelma and Billie McClannahan, all of Warrenton, and Mrs. Ruth Wines, of Staunton.

Invited to Parley.

Blacksburg, Va., Feb. 3 (AP).—J. Hurt Whitehead, of Chatham, has been invited to represent Virginia at a national conference of farm leaders with Agriculture Secretary Henry A. Wallace in Washington on February 8 and 9, it was announced here today. Whitehead is chairman of the State Agricultural Conservation Commission.

Addition Planned To Electric Plant

Chambersburg, Pa., Feb. 3.—Preliminary steps toward making additions to the equipment at the municipal electric light plant that may cost $157,000 were taken last night by Borough Council with the retention of the engineering firm of Wood & Kirkpatrick, Philadelphia, to prepare and file an application with the PWA for a grant.

It is proposed to install a 2,500-kilowatt generator and make switchboard changes to conform.

The town also is laying plans to increase the capacity of its sewage disposal plant at a cost of $135,000.

'Sit Down' Strike Ends At Plant in Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 3 (AP).—Members of Local No. 26, United Rubber Workers Union, accepted a proposal today for ending a "sit-down" strike and returning to work at the Kelly-Springfield tire plant here.

Charles L. Richardson, Federal conciliation commissioner, announced that the local had approved the proposal. It provides for the immediate evacuation of the "sit-down" strikers who have occupied the plant since January 19 and for negotiations to settle known grievances. Company officials said the plant would be re-opened as soon as schedules could be arranged.

Child Labor Law Passes N. Y. Test

Albany, Feb. 3. (U.P.).—The Democratic Senate of New York's Legislature last night adopted a resolution ratifying the child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution. The vote was 38 to 12.

The Senate rushed the resolution to approval under an emergency message sent by Governor Herbert H. Lehman.

Republicans charged Democrats with making an "about face" in approving the resolution. Some Republicans voted with Democrats on the measure. Several Democratic members dissented.

In 1935, said Kyhl, there was a gasoline tax yield of $1,268,000,000, the average car-owner paying $43 per year tax.

"WHEN SOMEBODY STARTS RAVIN' ABOUT HOW GOOD A WHISKEY IS, I JUST ASK 'Is it as good as Town Tavern?'"

says the OLD TOWN TAVERN KEEPER

THAT is a good test for judging any whiskey—comparing it with Town Tavern. As far as hundreds of thousands of men are concerned, Town Tavern is the standard straight rye in its class . . . This whiskey has the satisfying, real rye taste. It is grainy and rich as a straight rye should be . . . And it is smooth, too; smooth and easy on the palate, so you never have to gulp it but always can enjoy its flavor fully.

If you judge whiskey the way the most discriminating men judge whiskey—by taste, aroma, smoothness and all-round friendliness—then you'll award Town Tavern a place of honor . . . Not forgetting the sensible price! It certainly is a reasonable figure for such a fine straight rye.

A. F. L. Officer Assails C. I. O. Strike Policies

Holt Will Ask Lewis' Unit Be Included in G. M. Inquiry.

Turmoil of labor controversies, current and prospective, raged in the Capital yesterday with fervor equal to that apparent at Detroit, center of the General Motors automobile strike.

While anxious Government officials kept in touch with negotiations for a peace conference in the Michigan motor metropolis, there were these developments in Washington:

John P. Frey, American Federation of Labor official, bitterly attacked the "militant minority theory and practice" of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization as bearing "the hall mark of Moscow." He denounced the "sit-down" strike method utilized by Lewis.

Senator Rush Holt, of West Virginia, said he would seek to have broadened the Senate investigation of General Motors, demanded by Lewis, to include the C. I. O. as well.

The Senate Labor Committee recommended an additional $50,000 for the La Follette civil liberties inquiry, including the study of the General Motors strike.

Lewis laid the groundwork for still another major conflict by summoning the United Mine Workers' policy committee to prepare demands for a 30-hour week in the bituminous coal industry.

In Touch With Detroit.

Secretary of Labor Perkins and Assistant Secretary Edward F. McGrady had frequent telephone conversations with persons at Detroit and other automobile manufacturing points, seeking to smooth the path to peace talks between officials of the company and union heads, and striving to prevent outbreaks of friction that might be reflected in the Detroit negotiations.

However, it was emphasized in other circles here that even should the Detroit talks bring about resumption of direct negotiations over the eight demands of the union, the end of the strike will still be far off. Numerous points in the union demands promise to cause long and emphatic contention.

This was emphasized by Frey's open attack on Lewis' conduct of his campaign to unionize mass production industries along industrial, as opposed to craft, lines. Frey, head of the Metal Trades Department of the Federation, a department with which 16 international unions are affiliated, hit at "the sit-down" strike as an importation from Italy, "which gave Mussolini the opportunity of issuing those edicts which destroyed the voluntary trade unions of that country."

Committee Called.

The Senate Labor Committee, headed by Hugo Black, Democrat, of Alabama, yesterday invited Senator Neely, Democrat, of West Virginia, to confer with it Friday on his resolution for investigation of General Motors.

Lewis, Philip Murray, vice president, and Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the Mine Workers, yesterday issued a call for the union's policy committee to meet here February 12 to map the union's demands for presentation to mine operators at the joint wage conference opening in New York February 17.

A 30-hour week in the industry is almost certain to be demanded by the union in place of the present 35-hour week. However, the operators already have notified Lewis they will insist on the work week being lengthened to 40 hours.

The present contract between union and operators expires March 31. Failure to agree on a new one by that date might bring either an extension or a "suspension of work."

Lewis and Knudsen to Continue Auto Peace Conference Today

ing members of the United Automobile Workers of America to end their 36-day "stay-in" at two plants of the Fisher Body Co. passed at 3 p. m. (Eastern standard time) without apparent change in the situation.

Adolph Germer, organizer for the Committee for Industrial Organization, after a conference with Sheriff Thomas Wolcott announced he had a definite promise from the sheriff that there would be no attempt at forcible evacuation of the strikers "today or tonight." Germer declined any further comment.

National Guardsmen with machine guns trained on plant entrances controlled the "trouble spot" of the strikes, an avenue separating the Fisher No. 2 plant from the Chevrolet Motor Co. factories. This street was the scene of riots injuring 27 persons January 11, which sent 3,000 guardsmen to Flint.

Lewis in Detroit.

The conferences called by Gov. Murphy, who once before brought Knudsen and Homer Martin, U. A. W. A. president, together at Lansing, began here less than two hours after Lewis, whose Committee for Industrial Organization has supported the strikes paralyzing General Motors production, arrived in Detroit.

Knudsen, replying to the Governor's invitation, said the "wish of the President * * * leaves no alternative except compliance" and promised to confer "with a view to formulating a basis for negotiations."

Lewis entered the conference without comment.

After an hour and a half the conferees left, returning shortly after 3 p. m. when they were joined by Martin and by John Thomas Smith, general counsel of General Motors. Both meetings were held in private George Murphy, brother of the Governor.

Seeks No Orders.

After the deadline for evacuation had passed at Flint, Sheriff Wolcott said "I am prepared to evacuate the men if an order is given to me by chambers of Recorder's Judge the court, but I am not going to ask for any such order."

If an order for ejection of the strikers came, he said, "it probably would be necessary for me to call upon the Governor for assistance." Fisher No. 2 plant is within the military blockade established by National Guardsmen; No. 1 plant is outside the lines.

Judge Gadola said that the next move was up to General Motors. Corporation representatives, he explained, must present proof in court that the injunction suit defendants had failed to comply with the order. Should a writ of attachment be issued, the sheriff would be given the task of bringing the strikers to court to face contempt charges.

Sources close to General Motors executives, which declined to be quoted, indicated today that the corporation did not agree with Judge Gadola's interpretation of the procedure necessary to bring about eviction. The corporation view was represented as being that once the sheriff reported the premises still occupied by the strikers it was the judge's duty to direct their evacuation.

Some 250 members of the union's "emergency brigade" of women, said to represent Flint, Detroit, Lansing and Mount Morris, Mich., and Toledo, Ohio, paraded through downtown Flint today, although Mrs. May Crang, parade chairman, said police "wouldn't let us carry our clubs—not even a rolling pin."

The women appeared later for a demonstration at Fisher No. 1 plant carrying the clubs they had used during an outbreak Monday to smash windows in a Chevrolet plant as an accompaniment to a fight inside the building which injured a dozen persons.

By remaining in the Fisher plants, the striking workers, and officers of their union named in the injunction order, faced possible imposition of a $15,000,000 penalty "to be levied upon their lands, goods and chattels."

The penalty amount was determined by the corporation's computation of its losses because of the strike and the valuation of the occupied property. By obtaining an order from the court, General Motors could levy on funds of the U. A. W. A., or assets of any person violating the injunction, a court clerk explained.

Operations in the huge Chevrolet plant, where union members engaged in a new sit-down hold the "key" motor assembly plant, have been halted since Monday's disorder. Several General Motors units in Indiana and Michigan have resumed work on a part-time scale, building up inventories for the time when assembly lines may begin operating again. Body and parts shortages occasioned by strikes have affected final assemblies in every division of the corporation.

A brief flare-up during a picket demonstration at the Guide Lamp plant at Anderson, Ind., the only strike-closed General Motors unit to reopen, ended today after Capt. Patrick Davis, Anderson policeman, was removed from duty at the scene. Reports at Anderson police headquarters said the officer struck Victor Reuther, of Detroit, union organizer, during a dispute over use of a sound truck.

Canton Strike Ends.

Canton, Ohio, Feb. 3 (AP).—Settlement was reached late today in what union leaders termed the longest "sit-down" strike on record when the United Automobile Workers of America and executives of the Hercules Motors Corporation signed an agreement.

Clifford A. Shiltz, president of the Union Local No. 161, announced that 100 union "sit-downers," many of whom have not left the plant since December 10, would leave early tomorrow.

The controversy affected 1,700 Hercules workers here and 100 in a Muskegon, Mich., branch plant. Terms of the agreement, both sides said, included recognition of the union as a bargaining agent for its members, seniority rights, consideration of wage increases three months hence if business conditions so warrant, and possible adjustments in piecework rates.

Navy Requests Permit to End Steel Shortage

Bids Withheld Under Rules Imposed for Labor by Walsh-Healey Act.

not grant the steel industry an exemption under the emergency clause in the act, allowing her power to do so in case of military or naval exigency. The labor position is that since the department repeatedly has "cracked down" on small businesses bidding for Government contracts, it is inconsistent not to apply the same standards to such a vast industry as steel.

Union Views Sought.

McGrady will confer with President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor and John P. Frey, federation chief of the metal trades division, before the end of this week, to determine their views.

While the possible granting of an exemption to the steel industry held the spotlight of interest, considerable attention was focused on a "loophole" in the act under which the Navy at last managed to get some copper yesterday—"less than one-third of the need," a Navy official remarked ruefully, "but at least that much."

With bids advertised for 2,735,000 pounds of copper, and bids received on only 1,035,000 pounds, the Navy yesterday selected two bidders for a total of 885,000 pounds. These were the American Smelting and Refining Co., 435,000 pounds at 13 cents per pound, and the American Metal Co, 450,000 pounds at 0.1305 cents per pound, the former F. O. B. and the latter delivered. Bids have been advertised for some time.

Loophole in Measure.

The loophole in the act under which these bids were acceptable is that the NRA conditions imposed on industries do not apply on stocks-in-hand of materials, but on manufacture, packing and shipping of materials handled subsequent to bidding. Thus the copper men with much copper mined and ready to ship were able to bid on Government contracts without worry over compliance with labor regulations, while steel companies, basing production on demand, must bid before manufacture.

A total of 25 million pounds of steel has been advertised for bids by the Navy Department since December 4, for submarine and destroyers building. Only 7,000,000 pounds have been bid on thus far, and all bids were refused as unacceptable. The primary reason for refusal, according to the department, was that they were "so obviously attempting to evade the Walsh-Healey act." For instance, the act applies only to bids of $10,000 and more. Many bids were submitted on $9,999 worth of steel, and numerous bids demanded that they be exempted from the act's application.

The decision of Secretary Perkins on possible exemption of steel may not be reached until after public hearing, to be held later this week or early next week, it was learned.

Copper Supply Limited.

Supplies of copper at the local navy yard will last only until May 1 at the latest. If additional supplies are not soon procured, a general layoff is inevitable, reliable authorities stated. The importance of advance copper supplies cannot be overestimated, officials said, and it was under emergency exemptions granted by the Labor Department that 200,000 pounds of copper were secured in December for January and February construction, after advertised bids went begging for offers.

With steel soon necessary for the two great 35,000-ton battleships to be built in the President's projected program—one of which will be built in a Government yard, under the law which requires that at least 50 per cent of such construction be let privately—the present emergency is acute, the Navy men hold. Labor Department officials contrastingly fear granting of the necessary exemptions to steel corporations will provoke charges of unfairness from small industries which have been forced to toe the mark rigidly under the Walsh-Healey act.

Meanwhile, bids received yesterday on a floating drydock for Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, were from $400,000 to $900,000 above an expected figure of $750,000, it was noted.

Langley Field, Va., Feb. 3 (AP).—Bolo knives, good for cleaving paths through vines and thick undergrowth, will be in the jungle kits of the Ninety-sixth Bombardment Squadron when its nine planes hop off Friday for a 1,950-mile flight to France Field, Panama.

The 42 men in nine bombers, commanded by Maj. Joseph K. McDuffie, a World War flier, will be accompained on the trip by an observation amphibian carrying six men and piloted by Capt. Archibald Smith.

Grain Trade Advanced To Aid Government

Boston, Feb. 3 (U.P.). — President Kenneth S. Templeton, of the Chicago Board of Trade, last night said that members of the grain trade should help the Federal Government solve problems of crop insurance, guaranteed production costs and bills affecting processing costs.

In a speech before the annual meeting of the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange, Templeton asserted that the Chicago board's present interest lay in the commodity exchange act.

Cummings Gets Report on Slip By Van Devanter

An Agriculture Department report regarding violation of a game law by Justice Willis Van Devanter of the Supreme Court was received yesterday by the Department of Justice for "appropriate action."

At a press conference Attorney General Cummings said he had referred the report "in a routine way" to the criminal division for study.

On a hunting trip with Chaplain ZeBarney T. Phillips, of the Senate, the justice was questioned by a game warden for failure to have a duck stamp affixed to his hunting license. He later said he had no stamp because he did not know the law required one.

At the time Cummings indicated no action against Van Devanter was planned, but officials of the Agriculture Department pressed the matter after complaints from hunters throughout the Nation.

Coughlin Abandon Politics Over Radio

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Father Charles E. Coughlin came here today to see his parents off on a South American cruise and disclosed that henceforth his Sunday radio broadcasts would not be political.

The Detroit priest, who abandoned broadcasting after President Roosevelt's re-election, said he resumed his radio talks only because of the "fatherly encouragement" of Bishop Michael J. Gallagher, of Detroit. Bishop Gallagher, Father Coughlin's ecclesiastical superior, died ten days ago at about the time arrangements for a new series of broadcasts were completed.

Father Coughlin said he wished President Roosevelt a "plenitude of God's blessings to do what's right. I am not going to criticize nor advise him publicly nor throw any obstructions in his path."

The Shipping Strike Ends.

Storms on the West Coast have delayed a complete vote on the proposed settlement of the shipping strike, now nearing its hundredth day. But all signs indicate that the seven idle unions will accept the agreements produced after months of bickering between operators and labor leaders.

The fact that agreements are the basis of settlement is significant. Following the bitter strife of 1934, with which this year's peaceful walk-out provides an auspicious contrast, maritime employes had only an arbitration award with which to console themselves. Today, however, they can have the greater satisfaction of receiving agreements negotiated by their own representatives. The agreements are to have effect until September 30, following which they may be either renewed or revised.

The longshoremen have won a substantial victory in securing control over hiring halls in face of bitter opposition from the companies. Sailors, too, have gained this privilege for the first time, although employers have succeeded in retaining the essential right to select deck and engine room officers. Provision is also made for general wage increases, but inasmuch as the employers had scheduled some wage advances before the strike began, this is a limited gain. It is, however, important that the longshoremen are to receive cash for overtime work, instead of being laid off as heretofore when they had worked a maximum number of hours per week. On the whole, in fact, the prolonged contest appears to have ended with pronounced gains for the unions.

"Port committees" are again set up to hear individual disputes, but since agreements go into great detail it is hoped that few difficulties will arise, and that work will go on with a minimum of misunderstanding. That, of course, will depend very largely upon the attitude of the maritime unions—the responsibility of their leaders and their ability to discipline the rank and file. In the past the shipping companies have complained bitterly that contracts were not lived up to.

With full recognition of the unions accorded, and with the maritime workers employed under a negotiated agreement of a favorable nature, there will be no excuse for a continuance of the irresponsible tactics that have cost the companies, the workers and the country at large hundreds of millions of dollars from transportation tie-ups.

Overtime In Federal Agencies.

Reports of the Civil Service commission indicate that employes of the Federal and District governments contributed nearly 14,000,000 hours of overtime work without compensation during the last six months of 1936. The situation is particularly ironical in view of the pressure which President Roosevelt has brought to bear upon private industry to shorten the working day and eliminate overtime. But, as so often in matters affecting governmental policy, reform does not begin at home.

In this particular case, it is difficult to say where the remedy for a very real evil lies. Representative Connery is urging penalization of department heads who permit employes to work overtime without giving them time off or paying them at the rate of time and one-half. Remuneration for extra work, however, is not an adequate solution for the problem of overtime in the Government service. Indeed, it might give rise to abuses more serious than those it is intended to cure. It might result in slowing down the pace of work unduly, and it would unquestionably offer opportunities for favoritism.

In some instances a limited amount of overtime is necessary and may be properly offset by shorter working hours during slack periods. In many branches of the Government service, there are recurrent periods of excessive activity followed by dull days. A little systematic overtime hurts no one under such conditions.

It is quite different, however, in cases where overtime is the rule and has become what the National Federation of Federal Employes calls "an ordinary administrative practice." Regular continuous overtime work of this sort should not be tolerated. Certainly it should not be made attractive by offers of extra pay at more than regular rates. For the sake of efficiency and with a view to sparing the employes, the Government is under obligations to increase the size of the staffs in agencies where overtime work has become a custom instead of an exception.

Blame for present conditions must be laid in good part at the door of Congress, which so often passes legislation imposing new tasks and heavy responsibilities upon Federal administrative agencies without a thought for the serious personnel problems thus created. When Congress piles new duties upon undermanned executive establishments, those tasks cannot be properly performed by overworked men and women, no matter how well they are paid for their exertions. The solution lies in more systematic personnel adjustments in line with the work each agency is required to perform.

A Test Of Labor Leadership.

When the tension in Michigan subsides the injunction issued by Judge Gadola will probably be seen as the turning point in this industrial crisis. Apparently the decision of the court impressed both sides of the dispute with a new appreciation of their responsibilities. At any rate it was followed by a hasty conference of company and union officials—the first in more than a month of controversy.

In accepting Gov. Murphy's invitation to the conference William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, indicated that he had no alternative to compliance with the President's wish. For some time he must have known that the White House desired a meeting between the principals in the strike. Indeed, the Secretary of Labor, who in her official acts is a representative of the President, almost begged officials of the automobile company to discuss with John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., terms on which negotiations could begin.

It is more reasonable to suppose that General Motors did not wish to assume in the eyes of the public any responsibility for the tragedy which might result from forcible eviction of the strikers from its manufacturing plants. If the law had been called into play, with resulting violence and bloodshed, before company officials had even consented to discuss the issues with union representatives, the public reaction against the employers might have been very unfavorable. No doubt that realization carried far more weight than the President's wish expressed through Gov. Murphy.

Company officials took a long time to recognize the desirability of conferring with labor leaders. This step should have been taken weeks ago, even though actual negotiations for a settlement of the dispute cannot reasonably be undertaken while strikers illegally hold company plants. Belated though its action was, however, the company has now thrown the full weight of responsibility for any violence that may result from occupation of the Flint plants upon John L. Lewis.

The plea of General Motors that its plants be cleared has now been superseded by an order carrying the authority of the State. Throughout the decision in which he ordered evacuation of the plants and in his subsequent conduct, Judge Gadola has expressed his concern for the avoidance of a clash. But he had no alternative to issuance of the injunction. Both the law and its interpretation by the courts are plain. Any other decision would have opened the way for widespread intimidation and violence on the part of any minority group that could seize and hold an industrial plant.

The court was asked to justify this seizure of property on the flimsy ground that the people have expressed their approval of such tactics through the ballot. Judge Gadola's reply is a classic expression of the attitude all courts must necessarily assume in dealing with cases of this sort:

> This Court cannot take the mandate of 1936. As expressed, this Court must follow the law as established by the Supreme Court of the State of Michigan.

Since the illegality of the strikers' tactics has been conclusively established, union leaders will necessarily be held responsible for any bloodshed that may result from attempts to oust the men barricaded in the factories. Mr. Lewis cannot hope successfully to defy the law. Nor would it be safe for him to gamble upon indefinite delay in enforcement of the court's order. In the interest of the automobile workers' union as well as the future of his own leadership he cannot too quickly bring about complete evacuation of the occupied plants.

One reason why organization of labor has not made greater progress in this country is the frequency with which unions take an irresponsible attitude. It is eminently clear that labor organizations, as well as other groups, must operate within the law. That is the severe test which the new movement for widespread organization under the C. I. O. must meet. If it fails in this instance, the cause of labor as well as the specific interests of the automobile workers involved in this dispute will suffer a terrific blow.

A Significant Decision.

In a decision handed down Monday, in the case of the Knox National Farm Loan Association and the Federal Land Bank of Louisville versus Arthur C. Phillips, the Supreme Court reversed the rulings of Ohio State courts that shares owned by a borrower-member of a national farm loan association might be offset against a loan at time of repayment. The Court also denied the right of a State court to appoint a receiver to take charge of the insolvent association, holding that such power is vested exclusively in the Farm Credit Administration.

The Supreme Court's denial of the right of a shareholder in an insolvent co-operative membership organization to have the par value of his shares credited against his loan was not unexpected. As counsel for the Government financing agencies pointed out, the farm loan act contemplates a solvent association in providing for the retirement of the stock of withdrawing members. Moreover, numerous precedents can be cited to support the contention that a member may not withdraw his capital from an insolvent mutual association.

The particularly significant feature of the decision which makes it highly important to Federal financing agencies and national banks, too, is the Court's assertion that a "national farm loan association is an instrumentality of the Federal Government; that the time and manner of liquidation are governed by the Federal statute; and that jurisdiction does not reside in the tribunals of a State to wind up business of this governmental agency either by a receivership or otherwise."

To permit State courts to appoint receivers to liquidate national farm loan associations would throw the doors wide open to State interference with other Federal financing agencies in addition to nullifying the wide discretionary powers vested in the Farm Credit Administration to appoint receivers or to permit an association to continue in business under proper safeguards.

In affirming the right of the Farm Credit Administration to prescribe the exclusive method by which national farm loan associations may be wound up, the Court has followed a line of reasoning similar to that by which it has upheld the right of the Comptroller of the Currency to exercise discretion as to the suspension of business and appointment of receivers for national banks in cases of insolvency. Moreover, the Court has held that the policy of the national banking act in respect to embarrassed institutions cannot be overridden by State laws.

Reaffirmation of this sound general doctrine in the case of the national farm loan associations is equally important. It means that Federal agricultural financing agencies will be protected against State interference of a most vexatious and dangerous sort that would seriously impair the regulatory authority of the Farm Credit Administration.

France's Defense Plans.

The decisive approval given by the Chamber of Deputies to the Blum government's national-defense program has a far-reaching significance. It constitutes, in the first place, an effective demonstration of the continuing unity of the French Popular Front. And it is a clear indication that the French people, regardless of party and at no matter what cost, intend to safeguard their nation against attack.

Repeatedly since the very moment the Blum cabinet was formed in June, 1936, there have been predictions that the Popular Front was about to crack wide open. It is now clear, however, that after nearly eight months of rule the present government is more firmly in the saddle than ever. In the vote on the defense bill, Communists lined up solidly with Socialists and Radicals and carried a section of the opposition with them. The final vote was 405 to 186 in the government's favor. Coming as this vote did close on the heels of the unanimous approval given Mr. Blum's foreign policy with regard to Spain, it strengthens the growing impression that France today has the strongest government it has had in years.

Indeed it is strong enough to afford the luxury of speaking moderately. M. Blum's recent plea to Chancellor Hitler to join France and Great Britain in a program of international co-operation was a masterpiece of conciliation. And in the defense debate both Edouard Daladier, the war minister, and Pierre Cot, the air minister, instead of using the occasion to whip up French fears did precisely the opposite.

M. Daladier pooh-poohed the idea that France faced any immediate danger of attack from the East or, even if it did, could not adequately defend itself. M. Cot spoke in the same vein. The French air force has been thoroughly overhauled and expanded, he said, and today is the equal in material of any other except the Russian. Both ministers emphasized that there was no occasion for alarm. Nothing better illustrates the quiet assurance of the present cabinet that it has the situation well in hand than these speeches.

It is a circumstance that will not be lost sight of in Berlin and Rome where the leaders have indulged recently in some wishful thinking concerning the imminence of the Blum government's overthrow. Nor will it be lost sight of in the capitals of France's allies where, not so long ago, French timidity in the face of growing international dangers, led to growing doubts as to the wisdom of continuing any further the tie with Paris. These doubts will now be dispelled. The Blum government has shown itself skillful in mending France's battered fences.

Rearmament is an expensive business. The bill which has just passed the Chamber calls for an outlay of 19,000,000,000 francs this year plus an additional outlay of similar proportions spread over the next four years. For a nation that is still grappling with the serious problems arising out of a chronically unbalanced budget and a none too secure currency, this rise in government costs has its real dangers. But until the others are prepared to join hands with them in limiting and reducing armaments, the French are determined to maintain their relative strength.

Revised, to fit the trailer age: "What is home without a motor?"

So many who try to live by their wits have only half the necessary resources.

Lanier Vs. St. Louis.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. George St. Louis in his letter to The Post of February 2, appears to have become unnecessarily excited over my letter on the "sit-down strike," and to have gone off on a tangent.

He ascribes to me all kinds of ideas, which were never in my mind, and which were certainly not deducible from anything in my letter. My letter was in no way concerned with the merits of the controversy between General Motors and its striking employes, or with the propriety of strikes, collective bargaining, unionism, or with the social and economic phases of the issue, and for the simple reason that I have no interest directly or indirectly in the General Motors Corporation.

My only interest, and to which my letter was confined, is with the principle involved in the action of the employes trying to enforce their demands by trespassing upon and taking forcible possession of the plants of the company, or in other words of the vicious and subversive, and utterly indefensible "sit down strike." Trespass upon private property is in violation of private right and of the common as well as the statute law, and has been so since the dawn of civilization and the establishment of orderly governments among mankind.

My only point was that such trespass, if condoned or tolerated would in its final analysis and inevitable results destroy the right of peaceable ownership, possession and use of property, and in turn subvert the social order, and the government, because it is the negation of the primary duty of Government to protect the citizen in his lawful possessions.

It may be stated, also, that a fair and reasonable inference from the last paragraph of Mr. St. Louis' letter is that he limits the constitutional guarantee of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" to Mr. Lewis and his union, and that gives them the right to defy the law and the mandates of the courts, and other constituted authorities, and invade, take away, or destroy the property and the rights thereto of all others.

Flood Control.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Elderman's cartoon, "Flood Control," in today's Post does not tell the whole story—it has had a prologue and will have an epilogue.

The prologue can be drawn now. It covers the period from April, 1933, to the summer of 1936 and shows Messrs. Eccles and Morgenthau and a host of others—among them Thomas, Wheeler, Frazier, Lemke, Patman—striving like madmen under the leadership and direction of Mr. Roosevelt to force to ever greater heights the fearful flood of inflation. Glass, Bulkley, Sprague, Douglas, Acheson, Coolidge, Kemmerer, Mills—indeed, all the experts of the country with knowledge of financial technique and history—endeavor by every means in their power to halt the suicidal work, but in vain—their pleadings are scorned by the master.

The epilogue—who can say? Perhaps the levees may hold—we all pray that they will. But if they do not hold, the havoc wrought in this country will make the flood damage of the past few weeks seem insignificant.

If that should come to pass, let us learn from our dearly bought experience. Let us remember that our sufferings are not Heaven sent, but are the result of well intended but tragically mistaken human interventions. And let us not forget the names of those who so light-heartedly disregarded the teachings of all history and experience and unleashed upon us the most destructive forces known to economics.

The Salvation Army.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is very satisfying to hear and see the general recognition the Red Cross is receiving over the radio and in the press for the colossal work this organization is doing in the flood area. I feel impelled to mention at the same time the magnitude of the charity being administered by another band of persons, even though, by their very simplicity, they seem to evade all public notice. I speak of the Salvation Army.

Only once since the beginning of our present national disaster have I heard the name of these valiant workers mentioned, and this by a radio commentator who stated in passing that the Salvation Army had that day fed 1,100 persons in a certain area. This is a mere flash of the heroic and completely unselfish work we conclude, from the examples of their past labors, they must be carrying on in the present situation.

The very fact that these humble volunteers of the Salvation Army never demand huge sums of money but accept gratefully anything that is given to them (often cast-offs to be transformed by their assiduous labor into presentable garments for their unfortunate brethren) and the joy with which they labor among the fallen and degenerate compels us to recognize their present contribution in the great work being done in the flood area.

GRATITUDE.

Overtime In Government Service.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The views of Senator McCarran on civil service, as reported on The Post's front page of February 2, are probably not news to the rank and file of Government workers. That millions of overtime hours are being put in is not news either to them; however, the public will change its conception of the conditions under which so many of Uncle Sam's clerks are obliged to labor.

The Senator is quoted as saying: "The poorest paid employes do the most work." He could also have added that they work the greatest number of hours. In the past few years man-hour production in private industry has been "stepped up," but not so where the Government is concerned. I have never heard of or seen an efficiency engineer in any Federal department.

That inefficient management accounts for the main cause of this needless overtime cannot be denied. It has been my experience that many executives do not know how to apportion their schedules, and as conferences and visitors take up much of their time, giving instructions to subordinates, dictation and signing correspondence, etc., are left until late in the day.

While it is not so bad to have to spend long hours at one's desk during the winter months, when fine weather comes around you can't blame Federal employes for being human. Even air conditioned offices are headache breeders for lack of fresh, out-of-door air. This writer always makes it a point to start the day about 8 a. m. in summer in order to quit work at a reasonable hour. It has also come to my notice that continued overtime is the cause of nervous breakdowns, digestive ills and other ailments, especially in the lower ranks, whose members cannot afford to be sick.

Now that they have 26 days annual leave with pay, it is contended that Government workers should not stint themselves when asked to work overtime. The record just made public proves that they do not.

PRO BONO PUBLICO.
Washington, Feb. 2.

Conditions In Russia.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Archbishop Curley, of Baltimore, is quoted in your columns as stating that in Russia "one-third of the population is in jail, another third has just been released from jail, and the other third is just about to go to jail." And he waives any privilege that might be his under the rhetorical principle of "exaggeration for emphasis" by clinching his pronouncement with "and that is the truth about Russia."

But, of course, it isn't the truth about Russia. Latest available figures give the population of the seven autonomous republics comprising the Soviet Union as something over 161,000,000. Now, according to His Grace, there would be at the present time approximately 53,000,000 of these in the "cooler," an equal number just released, and an equal number waiting vacancies. And, naturally, such a gigantic penal system would require several million attendants. No wonder the five-year plan was a flop!

Population statistics are readily available in refuting the peculiar brand of guff that the archbishop is quoted as passing out, which might be taken as the truth by the gullible, but his "inside stuff" about the Soviet lady who "had 60 husbands in 12 months" I shall let stand. It is worthy of a Walter Winchell. What a bill for postal cards this gal must have had! It is my understanding that a postal card to the "kom" something or other is all that is necessary for a fresh romance.

As for the subtle infiltration of the red menace into the Washington school systems, if these young hopefuls learn about communism, it will be, according to my observation, about the only thing they have learned about anything. With a few exceptions for genius, of course.

CHARLES E. CROSS.
Washington, Jan. 27.

Civil Service Tests.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: There are two phases of the proposed shift of emphasis to competitive examination by civil service in government employment that both our members of Congress and the general public should consider.

Should rating be made to depend too heavily upon grades in examinations, the educational work of our schools and colleges will continue to emphasize scholarship with frequent examinations and promotions by grades, while if aptitude tests for special fitness be required also, the work of research by specialists in school systems must be continued and supported. Either way, the public secondary schools and colleges of the country must take into account this demand of the Government for trained and efficient civil servants to meet the growing dependence of the Nation upon the Government.

Without appreciation of the possible effects of this proposed change in our policy, with its place in any workable reorganization of governmental machinery, self-interest, not necessarily intelligent, will employ ridicule and sarcasm to prevent what is commonly called a "brain trust" in public service. The practical man is the more numerous and will be heard.

The "Red Rider."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you kindly make plain to your readers the fact that the Federation of Citizens Associations D. C. is on record as opposing the repeal of the so-called "Red Rider" until some other legislative protection is given to pupils in the public schools, so that they will be prepared to combat communism, instead of having the classroom used to cultivate in pupils a receptive and friendly attitude toward communism?

The Post Impressionist

Shakespeare Today.

ALTOGETHER, I didn't get up and move but twice, hunting the exact eye range, and that isn't so bad. I've seen other people do worse. And anyway it didn't matter because it was during the "shorts." So at last the trumpets blew, and I was with the lady called Elisabeth Bergner, in the place called the Forest of Arden and held by the superb imagination of the man called William Shakespeare.

Last week—though if you saw it you've not forgotten it—there was a film in town (or should I say cinema? It was made in England) called "As You Like It." Somehow, I have never seen that play but I remember reading it back in high school. (Didn't Miss Crawle sit before a blackboard on a little dais? Didn't Miss Crawle once say she pitied people so misguided as to believe they didn't like Shakespeare? It seems to me I remember a pall descending on the class one day.) And I remember learning by heart some lines that begin, "All the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players." And then, there before me, were the irrepressible Rosalind masquerading as a boy, the lovely Celia, the lovesick Orlando, the two dukes who took turns at banishment and all the others.

The picture unfolded and I found myself thinking, "This is literature, and yet how simple it all is. The lines are clear and direct, there are no ambiguous words, there is no complication of plot. This is literature." I watched Miss Bergner, who was torn with grief when told by the duke, her uncle, that she must go away, thinking, "she is not beautiful but she has something. Look at the expression on her face. She has ceased being Elizabeth Bergner and she is Rosalind now. It doesn't matter to her that she is an Austrian, not even a native of Rosalind's country; it doesn't matter to her that she had to learn Rosalind's language. She has something and she uses it. That's the important thing."

Even with Shakespeare it must have been so. If it had not been so, boys and girls in their teens would not be standing on a little dais before a blackboard saying, "All the world——" If it had not been so, all the world would not remember Shakespeare in a way that exalts him to the point where no one else in the literature of all the world has been able to dim his eminence.

And I thought, too, that the day of Shakespeare's plays being given only on the stages of the world is past. We have an additional medium now, and within less than a year the makers of pictures have brought "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Romeo and Juliet" and now "As You Like It" within eye range of people forever isolated from "two in the fourth on the aisle." From the days when Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks faced each other in "The Taming of the Shrew" a certain public has been waiting for this. Let us hope more will follow.

But that was last week. This week Shakespeare is again in town. His "The Tragedy of Hamlet, Prince of Denmark," appears before us on the stage, played with an amazing facility and a most admirable understanding by John Gielgud and an excellent cast. "Hamlet" (as Miss Crawle would be the first to agree) is one of the most renowned plays in the world. For more than 300 years it has held audiences enthralled, and today "Hamlet" is, in Broadway's parlance, a "smash."

It was the platform before the Castle of Elsinore, and the guards, conversing among themselves, saw the ghost they feared. It was a room of state in the castle, with the King, the Queen, Hamlet, the Lord Chamberlain, Ophelia and the others talking. Already the tragedy was building itself. The audience breathed—imperceptibly. Somewhere between the poetic lines I thought again of Miss Crawle, and I wished that she could have been there seeing "Hamlet." And I was thinking, too:

"This is the way Shakespeare wanted his play given, on a stage before a darkened house in which unknown people sit, the favored and the unfavored alike, caught up by the mastery of the words he wrote and by the mastery of people who can interpret them. This is literature. It makes us forget because it creates for us something that isn't but that appears as if it were. We admire Hamlet and we pity him, we may never find ourselves in a situation comparable to his, and yet we understand."

PENDLETON HOGAN.

The Wrath of God.

There is no alternative. Repentance must be mete unto salvation. The timber must come back; the grass must grow in larger areas. Plow land must be terraced and conserved by nature.

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. The law of the Lord is just and righteous altogether.

Which, being translated into modern scientific and agrarian terms means—plant trees, extend your pastures, terrace the land, build ponds, erect reservoirs and restore the land to something like its primeval condition. This flood is just the wrath of God and nothing else. God will not be mocked!

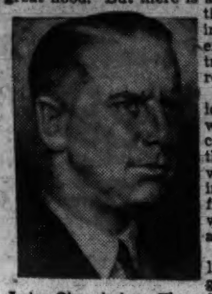
The Flood.

French Lick, Ind.

THIS CERTAINLY is no attempt to debunk a disaster or to deal flippantly with the tragedy of the great flood. But there is a large discrepancy between the demeanor of the people in the flood country and the emotional mind's-eye portrait of them formed by the rest of the Nation.



Though their fellow Americans elsewhere sympathize with them, they are innocent of self-pity, and when the water goes down they will follow it back inch by inch to save what they can from the wreckage, which will be very little, and start all over.

It was the same in the little settlements of Belleglade and Lockhaven, on Lake Okeechobee, Fla., after the terrible blow which scooped the water out of the largest fresh-water lake in the country except Michigan, blew it over the dikes and killed about 2,000 pioneers of the last American frontier by drowning or snake bite.

When the water ran off, the survivors went back to their farms. There has been more excitement in New York than in Tell City, Ind., which is mostly under water.

• • • •

A FEW NIGHTS AGO in Evansville, as the Ohio crept up the last remaining slight rise of ground, there was a little disgust because some radio announcer, apparently reading from a script prepared by an old-school rewrite man, remarked in ominous tones that grim-faced men with muskets were patrolling the streets. The grim-faced men were highly civilized militia boys, many of them high school students, and their relations with the citizens were entirely neighborly.

In fact, although many poor people had been wiped out and the local aristocracy had lost heavily in household stuff and factory equipment, there was, nevertheless, a sort of country fair spirit abroad.

Since then I have been in Newburgh, Rockport, Tell City and Alton, Ind., and in Owensboro and Cloverport, on the Kentucky side, and the manner of the people makes it almost possible to understand the reports of censorship in Louisville, where the mayor seems to resent as dramatics the descriptions of the flood sent out of his town.

THE LOSS OF LIFE has been comparatively small to date, considering the large population of the flood country, and the danger of disease was cried up so loud and so early, and met so vigorously, that in all probability there will be very little sickness. So, aside from the mortality, which is regrettable but might have been much worse, there is nothing the matter that money will not cure.

There were no drownings at any of the points which I touched in three days on the Coast Guard picket boat 2318, and of the ten patients in the little hospital at Tell City most were elderly people down with colds or heart disease. The money to cure the damage will come straight from Washington, because a large proportion of the victims are included in that one-third of the American population whom Mr. Roosevelt in his inaugural address described as ill fed, ill housed and ill clothed. He was planning to get around to them pretty soon, anyway.

If the people have such a thing as an attitude toward the troops and the Coast Guards I would say that it ranges between indifference and mild resentment. Certainly they do not regard them as deliverers, and they are just the least bit impatient of the restrictions imposed by martial law. At Rockport a gang of civilians was unloading with sacks a barge of soft coal and hastily dumping it on the road in order to release the barge and towboat as soon as possible. One of the civilians fell out of line to light a cigarette and scratch his back, and the sentry, who was unarmed, yelled at him to snap back into it. The "loafer" obeyed but glared at the soldier, for he had been publicly humiliated.

• • • •

THE COAST GUARD shipped in with their boats from the Great Lakes and from the Atlantic Coast between Maine and Virginia hold themselves apart from the population and go through their assignments without ostentation. But they can hardly do justice to their reputation as life savers, for much of the force has been sent up river from the crest into a country where the refugees were brought out long ago.

Down below the Coast Guards are handicapped by the type of their boats, which are small patrols with little space for supplies or refugees, and draw more water than scows. The surf boats are useful, but the best craft for rescue work in the river are flatboats which can go into shallow water and carry out a hundred while a picket takes off a dozen. But the men themselves know how, and when the emergency came any boat that was a boat probably seemed appropriate in Washington.

There is now some talk of building basins to catch the floods and dribble them out concretely for occasions the like of this. That is all right, but they will have to be ocean basins.

Japan And Germany

Tokyo Observer Finds Japanese Bewildered By Anti-Communist Agreement; Worried By British Suspicions.

By K. K. Kawakami.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

THE DIPLOMATIC QUESTION which is uppermost in all articulate Japanese minds these days is the recent agreement with Germany. On its face the instrument is innocuous enough. It merely obligates the signatories to co-operate on anti-Communist measures, exchanging police information and setting up a German-Japanese commission to facilitate the necessary co-operation. But its very innocuousness has aroused the suspicion that it is a camouflage for a more far-reaching understanding of a politico-military nature.

Both Tokyo and Berlin have characterized this suspicion as entirely groundless. Perhaps this categorial denial is technically correct. But an understanding of the alleged nature does not necessarily have to be converted into black and white. That is why the Japanese, or a great majority of them, are uneasy about it.

Has this agreement with Germany thrust Japan into the European vortex from which our wise sires admonished us to keep away? Why should we surrender our political advantage inherent in our happy geographical situation, and venture forth into the quagmire of European politics, particularly at this time when many think the continent on the eve of another catastrophe? Is Japan expected to come to Germany's aid when the Reich comes into armed collision with Russia?

Quite possibly this anti-Communist compact was not palatable to the Foreign Office of Japan. Conceivably, it was rather the army and the navy which welcomed it. The army needed up-to-date technical information regarding ever-advancing military aeronautics, especially as Soviet Russia was building up a tremendous air armada with French help. The navy, too, needed advance information regarding naval construction. Our naval engineers are proud of the progress they have made in their own field, but in these days of keen international rivalry and of ever-changing naval technique, no nation can afford to be self-contained and self-contented. In both naval and airplane construction, Germany is in a position to help Japan.

If the anti-Communist agreement is the only price Japan has paid for the above advantages, no harm has been done. But the Japanese, being in the dark as to what may be behind that agreement, are disturbed and apprehensive.

Military Diplomats May Have Looked To China.

PERHAPS the timing of the publication of the German agreement to coincide with the impasse of the Sino-Japanese negotiations at Nanking was not accidental. Quite possibly the dilettante diplomacy of the Japanese army so noticable in China these days conceived the idea of using the entente with Germany to impress the Chinese that Japan had a powerful ally, thus hoping to coerce China into a speedy acceptance of Japanese proposals. If so, it overlooked one important factor—that in China, German prestige and German influence falls far short of Anglo-American prestige and influence.

Naturally, the Tokyo-Berlin accord of so mild a nature as had been made public exercised but little influence upon Nanking. On the contrary, China habitually lends ear to Anglo-American counsel. Undoubtedly England, and to a lesser extent the United States, suspicious and resentful of the German-Japanese deal, did what they could to minimize its effect upon China.

True, neither Tokyo nor Berlin is desirous of alienating British sympathy. Hitler, in "Mein Kampf," makes it quite clear that the axiom of Nazi diplomacy is to keep British friendship. In Japan, too, many still hope for a rapprochement with England. Both the German and Japannese governments even thought that the anti-Communist front they had formed would be approved by Downing street.

Generally speaking, England, or at least her ruling class, is anti-Red. Because she is anti-Red she is apparently even pro-German. Such outstanding men as Sir Samuel Hoare, Viscount Hailsham, Lord Ernest Swinton, Ramsay MacDonald, Sir Bolton Eyre-Monsell, Winston Churchill and Geoffrey Dawson, to name only a few, are known to be Russophobes. Nor can it be denied that a considerable pro-German sentiment exists in high quarters. The royal court itself is friendly to Germany. It is even said that King Edward's partiality to Germany had something to do with his recent abdication. Men like Montague Norman, Lord Lothian, Lord Astor, Lord Londonderry, David Lloyd George, Sir Stafford Cripps and Lord Arnold are said to be more or less pro-German.

Berlin And Tokyo Mistaken About British.

IT IS small wonder, then, that diplomatic observers, German and Japanese, hastened to the conclusion that Downing street and the British public would welcome the anti-Communist agreement openly aimed at the Third International and by implication also at the Soviet government itself. That, however, was a miscalculation.

England's concern is, first and foremost, the preservation of Empire interest through maintenance of the balance of power in Europe and in Asia. For the same reason she wants peace based upon the status quo. The British diplomat is richly endowed with the enviable ability of playing the game of diplomacy quite impersonally. He plays it as he plays a game of chess. He does not permit his personal feelings toward Germany or Russia or Japan to interfere with the diplomatic course he has to pursue in the interest of British Empire.

As long as Russia is confronted separately by Japan in the east and by the Reich in the west, England can afford to hate Russia and evince a friendliness toward Germany, for this situation creates a sort of stalemate and preserves the balance of power so essential to the maintenance of empire interest. But the moment Germany and Japan form a united front, call it an alliance or an entente, aimed at Russia, British interest requires that England cast aside Russophobia as well as pro-German sentiment to the end that such a united front will not upset the balance of power.

For the same reason England would just as strongly object to an alliance between Japan and Russia, were such a misalliance possible. England, says Mr. Anthony Eden, in effect, does not like the anti-Communist agreement because it divides Europe into two camps along ideological lines. That is merely a diplomatic way of expressing what is really in his mind, namely, the preservation of the balance of power.

Wishful Thinking Seen As Factor In Agreement.

BOTH in Berlin and in Tokyo strategists, diplomatic and military, seem to be thinking their wish that war between Russia on one hand and Germany and Japan on the other, if it should unfortunately come, could be limited to the three nations concerned. Were this possible England might remain neutral in such a conflict, but that is hardly possible.

The key is in France's hand. It is inconceivable that France should with folded arms watch German victory over Russia. With France leaping into the fray, England could not long remain neutral. And as for Italy, she would probably sit on the fence as long as she could conveniently do so, but would eventually cast her lot with the side most likely to win.

Should the war develop to this magnitude could the isolationists of America keep their country out of it, neutrality law or no neutrality law? That is the question thoughtful Japanese are anxiously asking these days. It explains, at least partly, why the cabinet at Tokyo, which signed the German agreement, has been a target of public censure.

Roosevelt, Envoys Invited to Virginia Huguenot Service

Richmond, Va., Feb. 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt has been invited to attend the unveiling of a monument to the Huguenot Settlers of Manakintowne on April 18, Mrs. William A. Porter, of Richmond, president of the Virginia branch of the National Society, said today.

The Chief Executive is descended from Huguenot ancestry—French Protestant refugees to this country—through the Delano family, Mrs. Porter said.

Senators Glass and Byrd, of Virginia, have accepted invitations to attend the ceremonies as well as Ambassadors from France, England, Belgium, Holland, Germany and the Irish Free State.

The exercises will be held at Manakin Church, 28 miles from Richmond on the highway south of the James River.

Cash-And-Carry

By Barnet Nover

Foreign Policy—Cafeteria Style.

TO NO SMALL number of mandatory neutrality advocates the so-called "cash and carry" plan seems a heaven-sent answer to an extremely awkward problem.

That problem is how to avoid the entanglements which developed in 1914-1917 out of our war-time trade and which led, many believe, to our participation in the conflict, while, at the same time, not cutting off such trade entirely. It is being recognized in Congress that while the American people are desperately anxious to avoid getting involved in war, they are not yet prepared to pay the full price demanded, namely, to consent to the complete economic isolation of the United States once war did break out abroad.

Under this plan, while the present mandatory embargoes on arms, munitions and implements of war to all belligerents would be continued, there would be no parallel prohibition of shipments of essential raw materials and foodstuffs. Such trade would be permitted to continue. But belligerents seeking our cotton, our copper, our wheat, our oil and so on would have to come and get them in their own ships. And payment would have to be in spot cash.

Thus, the United States would be in a position to eat its cake and have it too; to stay out of war while profiting from the existence of war elsewhere in the world.

"CASH-AND-CARRY" is an attractive slogan and slogans play a good part in our thinking. But before the American people and Congress are carried away by it it is worth examining it in the light of present actualities.

It should be clear, in the first place, that in any war, major or minor, a "cash-and-carry" plan would work no hardships on the nation or nations controlling the seas. As long as their money held out they could continue buying from us not arms and munitions, which all the great powers manufacture for themselves anyway, but the raw material and foodstuffs which are of equal importance in modern wars.

To get down to cases: In any general European war, one in which, say Great Britain and France would be on one side and Germany on the other, the first two powers would be in a position to monopolize our trade in war essentials. They have the ships; they have the sea power, and they have the money.

Of the 7,000,000,000 in foreign holdings in the United States, the great bulk belongs to nationals of France, Great Britain or nations likely to be found with them in the same camp should a general war break out. That sum is certainly sufficient to buy all the raw material and foodstuffs those allies may need for many months. So it is that in the event of another European war broadly similar to the last, the direction of our war-time trade would be exactly the same as it was in 1914 and 1915 except that this time we would make no effort to protect our trade with neutrals against encroachments by the belligerents.

IN 1914 the Allies established a blockade of German ports. In the event of another war it would be, in a real sense, American ports that would be blockaded. With the United States indifferent as to what might happen outside our borders, Great Britain and France could establish and maintain a patrol outside American territorial water to prevent neutral or enemy ships from leaving American harbors for enemy ports.

Germany resented America's one-way trade in 1914-1915 as being unneutral. It would no doubt resent the repetition of such a situation. But this time it would not have to take American susceptibilities into account because the United States, through a mandatory neutrality policy, may by that time have completely abandoned the doctrine of the freedom of the seas.

Is there any reason to believe, then, that Germany would not by means of the submarine seek to prevent her enemies from securing essential supplies in this country? Obviously not. And with the submarine's cruising capacity extended far beyond what was possible during the World War—when German U-boats were already able to cross to the Atlantic—the likelihood is that submarine warfare would be extended very close to the American coast.

IN ANY MINOR war, which we could stay out of anyway should we choose to do so, as we have stayed out of the 30-odd wars that have been waged since 1918, a "cash-and-carry" plan would clearly work to the advantage of the stronger power.

In the event of a struggle between Japan and China, for instance, Japan would be able to buy from us the raw materials it needs; China would not. It is easy to see how such a possibility might spur the Japanese militarists, still in the saddle in Tokyo, to take even more drastic measures against the Chinese republic than they have seen fit to do heretofore. Only, because of the American neutrality policy, it would be distinctly to their advantage to get their government to declare war and thus automatically bring into operation the terms of the neutrality act. Hitherto Japan has waged war against China, as Italy waged war against Ethiopia, without benefit of such declaration.

Perhaps it makes no difference to us what Japan does or what any other nation does so long as we are let alone.

THE UNITED STATES today is spending more money for its Army and Navy than ever before in peace-time history. Presumably it is necessary for us to bear the added burden of mounting defense preparations because there is more rather than less security in the world. But let it be clearly understood that a "cash-and-carry" plan will most certainly intensify existing insecurities and give an added fillip to the race in armaments, particularly naval armaments.

For the United States is and will continue to be for some time a great reservoir of essential raw materials indispensable in war. The nations that find they will be at a disadvantage unless they can assure themselves of supplies available in this country will most certainly try with might and main to assure themselves of control of the seas. But if they increase their naval armaments so will we. That sequence has happened in the past, it is happening today and it will continue to happen. If other nations raise the ante we will not be left behind.

Alice for Adults?

By William Lyon Phelps

Recent Criticism.

Recently some phychologist or psychiatrist stated that the immortal and beloved book, "Alice in Wonderland," should not be read by children. It seems that there is danger of warping and twisting childish minds by the unnatural perspectives of the scenes in this extraordinary book. Both animate and inanimate things forget the law of gravitation, and the law of causation is suspended, as it is in dreams. Thus children may lose the proper sense of proportion, and they obtain false ideas of relativity. This is bad, very bad; and yet really not so bad as the attempt to submit "Alice in Wonderland" to a psychological analysis.

The absurdities in Alice are wonderfully delightful, both stimulating and refreshing. The absurdities of psychological analysis are indeed wonderful, but they are stupefying and depressing.

In Augustine Birrell's first series of Obiter Dicta, there is an account of certain criticisms passed on the character of Falstaff, made by a learned German pedant. He said we should not admire Falstaff, because he was a poltroon, a liar and a thief; above all, in financial matters he was not trustworthy. The Birrell essay, commenting on this commentator, said that Falstaff was the author of laughter, while this Teutonic scholar was the author of headaches.

There were two remarks made on Falstaff by those who knew him that counteract this particular scholar's objections. Prince Henry, when he thought that Falstaff had died, spoke an obituary in one line: "I could have better spared a better man."

And when Falstaff actually was dead, poor old red-nosed Bardolph, who had been the butt of Falstaff's jokes, and who never received his due pay in his service, said he wished he knew whether Falstaff was in heaven or in hell, for wherever he was, he wished he were with him.

Remarks like those I have quoted from scholars on Alice and on Falstaff, are like the recently quoted comments on Santa Claus, for it was reported at last Christmastide that several psychiatrists condemned the teaching of children to believe in the jolly old Saint. When I read such statements, coming from professional scholars, I wonder if common sense is becoming even less common than it used to be.

The Democracies Gain Strength

Franco-British Liaison Makes Peace Hopes Optimistic

By Raymond Leslie Buell.

The Post presents the second of a series of articles by the president of the Foreign Policy Association.

DESPITE the series of recent victories by Germany and Italy, a number of factors in the international situation are working against the outbreak of general war and particularly against further aggressions by the Fascist powers. In Germany least of all does one find the view that war is imminent or inevitable. Admittedly, this country is making a formidable effort to build up a powerful army, but adequate noncommissioned officers and trained troops are still lacking, and some material, such as airplane and tanks, seems defective in quality.

An additional difficulty in going to war is that Germany lacks raw materials. The Nazis may prefer cannon to butter, but no modern army can fight without stocks of iron, petroleum, nickel and rubber. Despite the four-year plan, it is doubtful whether Germany can find adequate synthetic substitutes for all of these materials, and its lack of foreign exchange would seem to hamper it in buying large stocks abroad.

Whether Germany will go to war during the next year or two will depend on the strength and unity of the world and Hitler's ability to obtain allies.

British Solidity Seen In King And Thomas Crises.

THE INHERENT moral strength of British democracy was illustrated not only by the forced resignation in June of J. H. Thomas, who was accused of being a source of budget "leaks," but also by the promptness and dignity with which the country in December solved the grave constitutional crisis arising out of King Edward's desire to marry a twice-divorced American. Britain, moreover, has embarked on an intensive rearmament program which, in spite of the charges made by Mr. Churchill in the November armament debate in the House, is already serving to stabilize European peace.

Simarily, the internal difficulties in France have become less acute. Despite the hatred and falsehoods vented by extremists on the Right and Left, business recovery seems to be taking place. In some ways it is remarkable that the French Popular Front government has stayed in office six months, and there is no sign whatever that the country will be overcome by a civil war such as that which has ravaged Spain. Should an unforeseen internal crisis yet arise, France would instantly unite in case of German attack.

Outnumbered nearly two to one by Germany, France cannot attempt to match Hitler's increases in man power. Steps are being taken, however, to increase the quality and strength of French airplanes, as well as the mobility and striking power of new formations. Many branches of French material are already the best in the world.

Behind the new armies of Britain and France loom the vast forces of Soviet Russia. Between 1933 and 1936 this power increased its army from 562,000 to 1,300,000 men. The Russian tank and air force are the most numerous in the world, while the Russian army is being rapidly increased. Through the development of powerful naval bases at Murmansk and other Arctic ports, and the use of ice-breakers, the Soviet Union plans to keep open communications between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans via Siberia even though hostile fleets close the Baltic Sea and the Suez and Panama canals. To assure the loyalty of its population in the event of war with Germany, Soviet Russia not only relaxed the severity of the agricultural regime but in December adopted a new constitution. Since only Communist-approved candidates may stand for election, the new constitution may not actually establish democracy. It may lead to increased personal liberties for the masses, however, and soften the severity of the regime.

Moscow And Paris Cool On Spanish War.

ALTHOUGH the alliance between Moscow and Paris has undoubtedly been weakened by Soviet assistance to Madrid during the civil war, there is no indication that France will terminate this alliance to please Germany. Many French statesmen believe that if this alliance were terminated, Germany and the Soviet Union would at once come to terms at the expense of Western powers. Reichswehr officers still desire an understanding with Moscow, on the ground that Germany can win a successful war only if it has access to Russian raw materials.

Despite the insults exchanged by Moscow and Berlin, the internal regimes of both countries are becoming more and more alike. Behind this war of ideologies lie fundamental national interests and, if Hitler believed that these interests would be advanced by an understanding with the Soviet Union, no doubt he would find means to justify one more departure from the teachings of "Mein Kampf." It is this fear which partly explains why France clings to its agreement with Moscow.

The Blum government, nevertheless, has failed to conclude a military convention specifying the precise aid to be given the Soviet Union in case of attack. Such a convention, without which the alliance remains only of moral importance, would close the door to conciliation with Germany. M. Blum apparently believes, and constitute a great internal triumph for the Communist party. Meanwhile French conservatives, such as Flandin and Mandel, demand that the convention be made for reasons of security but by a Right government!

In addition to increasing their strength, France and Britain have moved extremely close to each other during the past six months; and both are determined to restore the authority of the League of Nations and to work for a policy of general appeasement in Europe.

In a speech at Leamington on November 21 Foreign Minister Eden went so far as to declare that British arms would "never be used for a purpose inconsistent with the Covenant of the League or the Pact of Paris."

Although Britain does not propose to extend the automatic Locarno commitments to central Europe, this statement stands in marked contrast to the attitude taken by many Englishmen following the Ethiopian crisis that Britain would follow a policy of "neutrality" in the event of a war outside western Europe. Germany's refusal to answer the British questionnaire of May 8 relative to Hitler's peace proposals, the German anti-Communist pact with Japan, German intervention in Spain, and a number of provocative speeches on the part of Goering and Goebbels, however, virtually eliminated the possibility of a direct understanding between Britain and Germany at the expense of France, which at one time some prominent Englishmen favored.

Britain Committed To Defend Rhine Border.

UNLIKE 1914, Britain is openly committed to the defense of the western frontier. France, in turn, is committed to the defense of Soviet Russia and the three Little Entente countries of central Europe. Although legally Britain may not be obliged to support France in case the latter goes to the assistance of the Soviet Union at war with Germany, in fact Britain will probably be involved. During 1936 France and Britain have steadily grown stronger and closer together. The result has been to create the hope in central Europe that Germany will not dare to attack.

Finally, Germany's attempt to break up the French alliances in Central Europe and to secure dependable alliances of its own has not yet been successful. Poland, which three years ago virtually abandoned its French alliance for Germany, has now moved toward the French camp, disturbed at German designs on Danzig. Despite the overthrow of Titulescu in Rumania, the ties binding the Little Entente states to Central Europe were strengthened by the Bratislava conference of September, the subsequent visit of Prince Carol of Rumania to Prague, and Mussolini's Milan speech of November 1 favoring Hungary's demands for treaty revision.

During the fall of 1936 relations markedly improved between Yugoslavia and Rumania, between Rumania and Czechoslovakia, and between Rumania and Poland. In November the two latter countries strengthened their alliance. Neither wishes to become the battleground of a war between Soviet Russia and Germany. Unlike Czechoslovakia, they are not willing to accept an alliance with Moscow due to the fear of communism. Nevertheless, by forming a vast corridor separating Germany from the Soviet Union, these two states hope to maintain the peace of Central Europe.

Despite the fears to the contrary, Austria remains independent of Germany. In November Chancellor Schuschnigg publicly stated that nazism was Austria's greatest enemy. The death of Goemboes and Admiral Horthy's visit to Rome have placed Hungary decisively in the Italian camp. While Mussolini, as a result of the October entente, is willing to play for a time the German game with respect to Locarno and Spain, Italy remains fundamentally opposed to German domination of Central Europe.

Duce More Amenable To British Suggestions.

MOREOVER, Italy's attitude has been influenced by the fact that during the past year Britain has slowly recovered its position in the Mediterranean, which for a time was threatened by the Italian conquest of Ethiopia.

In August Britain took a step of equal importance by concluding an alliance with Egypt liquidating the differences which have divided the two countries since the termination of the British protectorate in 1922.

While Britain was thus rehabilitating its Mediterranean position, marked also by improvements of its relations with Greece and Yugoslavia, Mussolini was confronted with the task of developing the Ethiopian empire. The cost of the war, which exceeded a billion dollars, together with the cost of sanctions, bore heavily on the poor country. Consequently, in October the Fascist authorities took a drastic step and imposed a forced loan of one-fifth of the value of all property—a measure affecting 6,000,000 property owners, most of whom had no capital.

On December 21 both Britain and France reduced their legations at Addis Ababa to the status of consulates general, although emphasizing that such action did not constitute recognition. On January 2, 1937, Italy and Britain signed an agreement declaring they would respect the territorial status quo in the Mediterranean, which probably means that the two powers will support the territorial and colonial integrity of Spain against both Germany and the Soviet Union. While Rome continues to insist that it remains bound to its agreement with Berlin, and Fascist "volunteers" continue to be sent to Spain, it seems doubtful that Hitler can depend on Mussolini for support in case of a showdown with France or Britain over Spain.

A Woman's NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Feb. 3.

ALICE HUGHES.

WE HAVE a lot of precious organizations in this weird melange of noise-maddened humans, and one of my favorite too-too groups is the dandy little coterie known as the Gourmet Society, whose purpose is the glorification of the Great Gotham Gullet.

The boys meet once a month at some local restaurant noted for the alertness of its cookery, and there attack a long well-chosen and carefully prepared list of high-class fodder. Each meal represents a different type of grub, and each course is accompanied by the proper fluid. When the lads are stuffed right up to the Adam's apple, they listen to a speech or two on the subject of the meal just concluded. If the white wine is two or three degrees off room temperature, their delicate palates detect it at once, and their anguish screams waken babies for blocks around.

These tummy-worshipers have just concluded their monthly burpfest, this time devoted to Eskimo food. The piece de resistance was reindeer steak, served at the famous Cavanaugh chop-house on West Twenty-third street, in old Chelsea. When it was all over, perhaps with gum-drops as dessert, the stuffed members listened to wise words from Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, on the subject of northland fare. Good old Stef, among other things, lauded the virtues of seal blubber as food. When fresh, young and uncooked, said Stef, it tastes "like cow's cream with a very slight grating of walnut." However, Eskimos preserve it about six months. Then it tastes terrible.

What was that line in Scripture about the man "whose god was his belly?" These Gourmets faintly annoy me. I'll have the regular blue plate, please!

There's to be much matching in the spring costumes again. Gloves, bags and hats. I see many elegant white gloves to go with the white pique hats and collars on the navy suits. Personally, I think that's overdoing it. I like the contrast colors all in one area—either up around the hat and collar, or down around the bags and gloves. Just one little old lady's notion, of course!

• • • •

The girl novelists certainly are running well up in the pack this year. I turn to the book review section and find that the first four novels reviewed are by our sistern —"The Sound of Running Feet," by Josephine Lawrence; "Naked to Laughter," by Dorothy McCleary; "Portrait of a Lady," by Lady Eleanor Smith, and "Barren Metal," by Naomi Jacob. Good work—keep punching, girls!

Mirrored Walls and Combination Furniture Make Studio Apartment Serve for Numerous Purposes

With a mirror built in the back of a closing desk, a woman living in a studio apartment may have the convenience of a dressing table yet retain the effect of a living room. The arrangement is indispensable to a woman who would otherwise have to comb her hair in front of the bathroom mirror or stand by a chest of drawers.

Every Woman Should Have Dressing Table; It May Be Disguised as Knee-Hole Desk or End Table in Small Dwelling.

By Carolyn Abbott.

YOU MAY THINK it difficult to be beautiful when you eat, sleep, entertain and dress in one room. With a little planning and devising on your own part, you can sit down and rest as you powder and primp, instead of standing in front of the bathroom or a masculine chest of drawers to comb your tresses.

If you live in a studio apartment, you realize the need for a dressing table but remember that the ordinary dressing table or fluffy-draped boudoir table is too informal or feminine for a living room. Also, a chest of drawers is inconvenient.

If you are an employed woman, you are constantly being reminded that good grooming and a pleasing personality are most essential to your success. Therefore you will want to accomplish these points of interest in the most satisfactory manner with the least strain on your strength and vitality.

Dresser in Disguise.

A little interior decorating will enable you to have a dresser in disguise in your living room. Since entire walls covered with mirrors are smart and modern, include such a wall in your apartment. This is especially good in a modern or formal room. Or have a mirror panel on one wall. Perhaps you will drape it to resemble a window. Place a kneehole desk in front of this glass and who will guess that the combination serves as a dressing table each night and morning?

Foresight on the part of the furniture designers also helps you to solve this problem. If your friends wonder why your drop top desk is always open, perhaps they do not realize that on the under side of the lid, a mirror is fastened. When the desk is closed, a complete dressing table makes its appearance. There is a long drawer in the desk for toilet essentials. Another desk arrangement has a mirror that slides up and down in grooves on the back. This way the glass is only brought into view when it is needed and is concealed completely at other times.

Instead of the usual end table by your studio couch, have a table with a top that opens like a box lid, revealing combs, creams, lotions, powders and other make-up necessities.

A Versatile Drawer.

A chest of drawers or a bookcase may have one drawer that, instead of pulling out as it should, opens out like a drop lid desk. A complete dressing table is set up inside the drawer.

A small table may be placed in front of a window, for good light, and a collapsible mirror set up on it when it is wanted as a dressing table. This is an excellent way of using the space usually taken up by a radiator as the table may be set over the heater. Small chests of drawers may be used at either side of the table to resemble a kneehole desk. These drawers may be used to hold lingerie and linen as well as toiletries.

Just as home bars, now so popular, close up into chest-like pieces of furniture, so may the dressing tables be disguised and your friends will wonder how you live so comfortably in such small quarters.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

How to Live With a Weak Heart.

Everyone who possesses a weakened heart muscle wants to know how much he can stand with safety in the way of physical effort and how much extra rest he must provide for. This is important because if the muscle is overtaxed it is likely to stretch or, as we say, break down and be unable to pump the needed amount of blood. Of course, those who can afford to remain inactive for long periods of time, not returning to work until they are well able to do so, have a great advantage over the one who must keep going.

Now and then we see a heart sufferer who is carrying on satisfactorily, inasmuch as he has his activities under control. But let him run 50 feet to catch a train or attempt to lift a heavy object and anywhere from one to three months of incapacity may ensue. The strain on the pump was just too much.

Some of these individuals should play golf, others should not. The same may be said of dancing, but no general rule can be laid down. I know many such persons who can play 18 holes of golf without the slightest sign of fatigue. They are not breathless at any time during the game. Furthermore, there is no swelling of the ankles observed when they strip for the shower. For those who become "tuckered out" after three or four holes, golf should not be indulged in.

Physicians are asked repeatedly, "Should a cardiac patient be allowed to drive an automobile?" In most instances the answer is yes, but a negative reply should be given to a person who is naturally of a nervous disposition and who might become excited by a traffic jam. If he is likely to drive at a high rate of speed or is always in a hurry to get somewhere, the element of danger may become prominent.

Mental Stress Also Bad.

One thing must be learned, namely, to take things leisurely. Much wear and tear comes to the nervous system and to the heart muscle because of the never-ending rush of our daily affairs. The stress which follows the statement, "I must have this in an hour" should be avoided if possible. Let the victim take his time and most tasks can be accomplished without injury.

Employers for the most part will be anxious to co-operate with a physician in an effort to find some task that can be carried on by the patient with safety—a type of occupation which will be valuable to the employer and in which the worker will not feel that he is placed on the shelf, as it were. Those who follow pursuits requiring considerable physical labor must be switched to those demanding lighter loads. A standing, lifting job may be changed to one where the individual is seated, possibly at a machine. Even when angina is present the number of attacks can be reduced greatly if exertion can be lessened.

About the worst possible advice is to "give up, retire and loaf." The mental and moral effects are bad. There is nothing quite so conducive to invalidism as to have too much time to think about oneself. The whole affair creates its own vicious circle. Apprehension and nervousness will increase the rate of the beat.

We must look upon heart disease purely as a physical handicap. It can be lived with and conquered with intelligence and understanding.

Mothers Must Give Reproach In Quiet Strain

Care Should Be Exercised to Appreciate Child's Enthusiasms.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

"MOTHER! What do you think happened at school today?"

John rushed into the room eager and breathless, bursting to tell his mother the news of the great event. But she did not wait to hear him.

"How many times have I told you not to shout? And look at your shoes! What is the door mat for? Go get the carpet sweeper."

Her reply pricked the bubble of his self-esteem at once; and left him feeling foolish and therefore resentful. When John had cleaned his shoes and swept the carpet, any desire to tell his mother the great news he had been full of was gone. Indeed, the news no longer seemed as great.

Of course it is annoying to be shouted at. One may be at the telephone or receiving callers or putting the baby to bed. It is still more of a trial to have mud tracked over a clean floor. But there are occasions when such infractions of rules should be overlooked. They are a small price to pay for a child's spontaneous confidences.

If John broke the rules every day the mother would have a right to complain, but not at the moment. She would gain for more by entering into the spirit of the occasion and listening to what he had to say with interest and enthusiasm, than by wet-blanketing his excitment with criticism and reproof.

Later on, when both she and the child have cooled down, she can call his attention to the noise and dirt and point out his thoughtlessness.

Even with the best behaved children there will come times when every rule is forgotten.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

14-Year-Old Girl, After Winning Place on Basketball Team, Is Forbidden by Mother to Play.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a 14-year-old girl in my second year of high school. I am strong and healthy and love to play basketball. I practiced diligently and when the time came for the coach to select a team, I was chosen and received my suit. I was very proud and after much persuasion, my mother permitted me to play one game at school. But then she decided I cannot play any more. She says: "It isn't the thing for a girl to do, and besides, I don't think it is safe for you to travel all over the county at all hours of the night."

• • • •

Now my mother knows that a separate bus is provided for the team and that a teacher goes with the team to keep order. I feel that I am entirely safe when traveling with the team and coach, and that mother has no reason for worry. She also says I might be injured during a game, but I am sure I wouldn't be—at least, nothing critical.

• • • •

Please help me. I do so want to play basetball and win my letter. Who do you think is right, my mother or I? After considering all aspects of my problem, please give me your opinion. Hoping to hear from you soon, I am, as ever,

DISCOURAGED.

Severe Precaution.

DEAR DISCOURAGED: To my thinking, your mother's attitude is rather severely precautionary; and is calculated to save herself worry quite as much as it is designed to preserve your strength and protect your health. No doubt the majority of parents feel just as she does about their sons' or daughters' participation in strenuous competitive sports, but the more generous, self-disciplined and sacrificial-minded parents manage to keep their worries to themselves in order to permit their children the fullest social experience during their school years.

• • • •

There is no denying that physical injuries are sometimes sustained on the basketball court; that there is some question as to whether the adolescent girl does not do her body more harm than good by engaging in this rather violent exercise; and that tragic accidents might conceivably overtake busloads of young persons—however adequately chaperoned—when "traveling all over the county at all hours of the night," so your mother has certain hypothetical unanswerable arguments to advance in defense of her point of view.

• • • •

I can only suggest that you take your family problem to your coach. The latter, if she regards you as an indispensible member of the team, and sympathizes with your prideful ambition to win glory for yourself and your school, might be induced to talk with your mother and attempt to change her mind. Has your mother ever witnessed a basketball game in which you played? If not, it might help a great deal to get her to go to one game. She might find herself so caught up in the enthusiastic spirit of the occasion that she would thereafter withdraw her objections to your playing.

If she can't be persuaded out of her present attitude of mind, I see nothing else to do but to adjust yourself to it with the best possible grace, and try to find other and more approved methods of representing your school in group activities.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Sports and Formal Wear Adopt Vogue Of Patent Leather

Hollywood, (AP).—The patent leather vogue, say studio stylists, promises to become one of the strongest of the year, adapted to sports and afternoon as well as formal occasions.

Cecelia Parker, in a new picture, wears a dinner gown made of thin white net over matching taffeta, and banded about the entire hemline with narrow strips of patent leather.

The stiffness of this material gives to the full skirt an almost hooped appearance, accentuated by movement. The brilliance of lights is reflected in the patent leather.

The dress is simple, relying on touches of leather for its dash. The bodice features high V's from which pieces are gathered, forming the neckline in front and in back. Set-in-sleeves are puffed at the shoulders and trimmed with vertical bands of the leather.

Mrs. Cordell Hull and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings "At Home" For Brilliant Teas Which Keep Washington Social Set Busy

Home of Attorney General Is Decorated With Calla Lilies.

Wife of Secretary of State Entertains Guests at Carlton Hotel.

Two Cabinet wives, Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, were at home yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Hull at the Carlton Hotel, on Sixteenth street, and Mrs. Cummings at Ruthven, her home on Tilden street. The two teas were such a distance apart they kept members of Capital society on the move, but despite the haste it entailed getting from one to the other between the hours of 4 and 6, nearly everyone went to both.

The Cummings' home was filled with a gay springtime atmosphere. The large, comfortable drawing room, where the hostess received, was artistically decorated with her favorite flowers, tall, graceful calla lilies. Mrs. Cummings wore a gown of dark blue chiffon trimmed about the neck and hemline with rows of large cherry red satin dots.

In the dining room the long table had in its center a large crystal globe in which floated several delicately tinted gardenias. On either side were smaller globes, each containing a single blossom. Further adding to the spring touch were the platters of tiny strawberry delicacies, miniature tarts topped with several sugar powdered berries.

Wears Green Frock.

Among the first to take their turn at the tea table were Mrs. James Roosevelt, who was wearing a green frock with vestee and cuffs of crisp white organdie, and a small brown cloth and mink hat atop her smooth blonde coiffure; and Miss Marguerite LeHand, attired in cocoa satin trimmed with mink.

Some of those seen were Mrs. Sydney Taliaferro, in a beige princess coat, the collar and flaring skirt trimmed with bands of sable, and a small dark brown turban bound with needle-quills; Mrs. Stanley Reed in black with a small black velvet poke bonnet; Mrs. William Stanley wearing dark red crepe; Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Ambassador of Turkey, in black with turquoise clips at the neck; Mr. and Mrs. J. Clinton Tribby, Miss Mildred Short, of Chicago, who has been in town for a very brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lasker, and who accompanied Miss Leila Stiles to the tea.

Others were Miss Ida Guffey, in all black and her sister, Miss Pauletta Guffey, who wore a Dalmatian frock with a scarlet blouse and gold stitching around the short jacket; Mrs. Frank Bohn, in dove gray, with Mrs. Benton McMillan; Mrs. William Jennings Price, Miss Frances Root, Mme. Dimitriu and her mother Mrs. John Bennett; Mrs. Harry W. Blair, in black flecked with silver, who had with her her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Newell Blair, who was costumed in brick red crepe; Mme. do Prado, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of the Brazilian Embassy, in dark blue with a platinum box collar; Mme. Freitas, in all black; Mrs. Morris Clark in black crepe with bright flowers printed at the shoulder and cascading down the skirt, her hat was a wide brimmed, crownless model of green starched linen; Mrs. Dwight Webb, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, Mrs. R. Golden Donaldson and Mme. Pastoriza with her sister, Mme. Espaillet.

Spring Flowers Appear.

The Carlton room of the hotel where the Hulls make their home was the scene of Mrs. Hull's first at home of this season. In the conners and at the occasional tables were clusters of pastel shaded spring flowers, which also decorated the long buffet table, arranged around the huge low bowl of pale pink roses in the center.

Quite a contrast to her party Tuesday afternoon the guests yesterday were entirely from the official and residential sets, as the members of the diplomatic corps had been entertained the day before.

Several members of the State Department assisted in directing the guests and alternating at the tea table during the afternoon were Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture; Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, Mrs. Ewing Davis, Mrs. Alben Barkley, Mrs. James Byrnes, Mrs. Monroe Johnson, Mrs. Pat Harrison and Mrs. Finis J. Garrett.

Introductions were made by Mr. Richard Southgate, chief of protocol, and Mr. Julius Holmes, assistant chief of protocol. Also assisting in the role of hosts were Mr. James Clement Dunn, special assistant to the Secretary of State, and Mr. J. H. Lord, assistant chief of protocol.

Guest From Boston.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman was among the guests, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. George Marrs, of Boston. Miss Dorothy Tirrell was accompanied by her aunts, the Misses Maud and Anna Richards who are here from Pennsylvania, stopping at the Mayflower for the winter season.

In the group with them was Lady Lister Kaye, wearing a gown of blue crepe. Mrs. Emily Stubblefield had with her, her guest, Mrs. John Aust, of Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hill were there with their daughter, Miss Cynthia Hill, wearing a frock of dark blue and a smart little hat with fringe over the crown, and their son, Mr. Benjamin Hill, jr. They were in conversation with Mrs. Arthur Wright and her daughters, Miss Mary Morris Wright and Miss Betty Wright, and were joined by Mrs. Vincent Miles and Mrs. Cabot Stevens. Mrs. Miles wore a costume of turquoise blue and black, the blouse of blue, with a strand of beads to match, and a bolero jacket and skirt of black crepe. Her small hat had a perky feather on top.

There was much more color in the costumes of the guests than there has been at recent social functions. It was as though the bright sunshine had encouraged everyone to come out in gay colors.

Mrs. Carl Arnold was there with Mrs. Paul Greever, wife of Representative Greever. Mrs. Arnold, known in the literary world as Olga Moore, is looking forward to the publication of her new book, "Wind-Swept," which will be off the press next Wednesday.

Among other guests were Mrs. Brady Ruttencutter, Mrs. Ross McIntyre, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Baroness von Below, who wore a purple velvet gown with hat to match and amethyst jewelry; Mrs. Pat Harrison, Mrs. Thomas Dawson, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, who wore a tweed suit with a hip-length cape; Mrs. Herron Pearson, Mrs. Robert Hill, wife of Representative Hill, of Oklahoma; Representative and Mrs. Thomas S. McMillan, Miss Margaret Delano Gage and Mrs. William Fitch Kelley.

At top is Mrs. Cordell Hull, who was one of two Cabinet wives giving "at homes" yesterday. Mrs. Cummings was the other. Mrs. Hull gave her first "at home" of the season in the Carlton Room of the Carlton Hotel where she and Mr. Hull make their home. With her in the photo is Mr. Julius C. Holmes, assistant chief of protocol in the State Department, who with Mr. Richard Southgate, chief of protocol, assisted her with introductions. Below is Mrs. Henry Wallace snapped as she stopped to chat a moment with Mr. Keith Merrill just previous to leaving the Hull reception.

Wadsworths Guests At Roush Reception

Col. and Mrs. C. W. Wadsworth, well known to Washington, were honor guests at a reception given last Tuesday by Dr. and Mrs. Franklin W. Roush in St. Petersburg, Fla., on the occasion of their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

In the receiving line were the host and hostess, the guests of honor, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Covington, of Avon Park, and Mrs. C. N. Chipman, of Washington.

Col. and Mrs. Wadsworth were married January 26, 1887, in Salina, Kans. They have two daughters, Mrs. Ralph Breiling, Hastings on the Hudson, N. Y., and Mrs. John S. Lineberger, of Long Beach, Cal.

THE MERRY WHIRL by MARYLYN

Anne Barrett and her grandmother, Mrs. Baldwin Spilman, are two of the lucky people who are not staying here to chatter and freeze. A day or so ago Anne drove in from Warrenton and had a whole day of shopping for nifty white hats, summer sandals, printed cottons and bathing suits. Sounds like a trip to Florida. No, you are wrong, the destination is to be Palm Springs, Calif.

Anne's cousin, George Thompson, is going along. The trio will start today by train for the West Coast, where they plan to "see in" the spring and possibly the summer.

And speaking of trips—Alex McCone is here, having just arrived on a month's leave. This jolly person, who has been sadly missed since his departure for Panama, had been looking forward to his furlough with all kinds of pleasant ideas, but he struck town just at the moment the Weather Man turned on the frigid air, and that month certainly does look a lot longer than a mere four weeks.

Alex, who gained fame for his Spanish omelets when an aide at the White House and living at Fort Myer, is tremendously fond of the Canal Zone, and judging from his fund of fascinating stories of the place, we suspect he has some connection with the Chamber of Commerce or the Travelers' Bureau or something.

Saw the Strickland Gillilans at luncheon in the Willard Coffee Shop the other afternoon. We were admiring her luxurious mink coat when she tossed it back over her chair, disclosing a smart Dalmation outfit.

Boleslaw Jan Czedekowski is by no means the only artist in his family. His young and pretty daughter, Halka, is also talented in art and has several paintings and sketches to her credit.

The artist, with his wife and daughter, is here for several months and they are at 2400 Sixteenth street.

What is this about a large and very brilliant diamond reposing on the proper finger of the correct hand of one Miss Betty Mattingly? With this and the fact that there is to be a party Sunday afternoon (the invitations were very clever rhymes) we are wondering if perhaps announcements are not due soon.

REA Chief, Wife Fete Colleagues At Carlton Tea

Mr. and Mrs. Cooke were assisted in receiving by the Deputy Administrator of the REA and Mrs. John Carmody. The room was decorated with spring flowers.

Mr. Lowell Mason Dinner Host; Caesar Franck 'Honor Guest'

Novel Event Staged in the Atmosphere of Noted Composer's Time—Famous Characters Are Impersonated by Company.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

Time turned back 50 years last night and Caesar Franck was guest of honor at a dinner by Mr. Lowell Mason at Wesley Hall.

The novel affair was the second of its kind at which Mr. Mason has been host this season. The guests were asked to imagine themselves living in the time of the great composer. The tables with small center bouquets of pink sweet peas were lighted by white candles, and a crackling fire on the hearth presumably provided the only heat in the room. Conversation was confined to subjects of the day during which Franck lived. After the other guests had been seated, the host presented Caesar Franck, portrayed by Mr. Francis Bowers, of Peabody Institute.

"It seems as though he were really living and were right here," said one guest to another. "He does live here and he is here in his great music," was the reply of Miss Rose d'Amore, who was Franck's pupil, Paula Brandt, for the evening.

There was music between courses and the gentlemen in the company changed tables for each course. The host, at the beginning of the occasion, told the story of Franck having been slightly injured on his way to a dinner in Paris called as a protest to the honor conferred upon him by the French government as a teacher and not as a distinguished composer. Mr. Mason told how his pupils played in his stead at this affair because the injury was painful to him. This bit of history was dramatized in the presentation of the program when Mr. Bowers, in the character of the composer, went to the piano and explained he did not feel quite equal to playing and called upon Paula Brandt to substitute for him. She did so, playing numbers by his contemporary, Franz Lizt, also one by Mendelssohn and later Chopin's "Scherzzo."

There was not a dull moment in the evening, for not only was the music in itself charming but also there were constant surprises in the manner of introducing the artists. The host surprised his friends, who knew him as an attorney and a former Senator, but not as a singer, by announcing he would sing "Calm as the Night."

"The Maestro," Caesar Franck, sat with his back to the guests facing Mr. Mason, who stood beside the fireplace assuming the attitude of the soloist. The tones came and eventually were identified as the voice of Mr. Bowers with whose singing the host cleverly synchronized his gestures. Later Mr. Bowers sang another solo.

The host also announced he would entertain his guests with a Chopin prelude, but when he was seated at the piano he asked Miss Mabel Willebrandt, daughter of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, and a pupil of Miss d'Amore, to play it in his stead. She did so with fine mastery for so young an artist. She wore her hair in two simple braids down her back and a bright blue taffeta frock with full puffed sleeves.

Mrs. Hazel Helsper sang two songs, one by Franck, and the program closed with his symphonic variations played by Miss d'Amore at first piano with Mr. Glenn Carow, of Peabody Institute, at the second piano.

Every detail of the dinner and musicale bespoke the originality of the host. The printed menu included dishes with French names identifying them as favorite foods of some of the guests. There was potage parmentier a la March in tribute to Col. Charles March, of the Federal Trade Commission, who with Mrs. March was among the guests. There was also pintadeau farci et garni a la Davis in compliment to Judge Ewin Davis, who was present with Mrs. Davis. Among other guests were Mrs. Willebrandt, Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Whiteley, Mrs. Joseph P. O'Connell, Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan, Mrs. Edwina Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jones, Miss Sally Turner, Mr. Joseph Ulmer, Miss Gladys Redman, Mr. Lyle Brookover, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Cattell and Miss Catherine Mitchell.

Mother Wants Less Fuss Over Baby Bride of 9

Let Decent Married Folk Alone, Says 35-Year-Old Mountaineer.

"Eunice don't know nothing," Mrs. Winstead said, "and she certainly ain't in no fix.

"Charlie ain't never laid a hand on Eunice. But I want him to make her mind and I'll appreciate him correcting her mistakes. He's a good boy as anyone can testify."

Herbie, a young brother of Eunice, was listening, and spoke up:

"I aimed to get married too—even had by license—but they hemmed up my girl," he said. "I'm near 18."

His mother giggled and whispered in my ear:

"Why he ain't but barely 16."

Herbie's girl is "Clarey" Johns—Clara Belle Johns—the 24-year-old sister of Eunice's husband.

"If I cain't have the woman I want, I won't have any," Herbie said, but added cheerfully that his license would be "good until we get a chance to get married."

The motive for the youthful marriage of Eunice, Mrs. Winstead said, was that a neighbor family "put the peep on Herbie and Clarey and Charlie was afeered we would do the same on Eunice."

Although she and her husband were unaware that Charlie and Eunice were planning to marry last January 14, Mrs. Winstead said, "We knew it was going to happen eventually because Eunice has been in love for the longest with Charlie and he has loved her since the first time he seen her."

The mother said about a year ago Eunice went through Charlie's pockets and "found a picture of a woman from across the mountain."

"She was so mad that she teared it up in little pieces and hid them under a rock pile, where I guess they still are," the mother said.

"Why, only a week ago, that child came dancing through the house singing: 'I love Charlie from the bottom of my heart' at the top of her voice."

Mother to Be Pitied.

This mother has my pity. She is frightened, puzzled and heart-sick and is completely honest in her fear Eunice will be "kidnaped" and placed in a "reform school."

"And," she said, "Eunice ain't done nothin' to git put in the reform school fer."

When I knocked on the door and asked if I might come in, she said resignedly: "Oh, sho; everybody else jest walks in."

I told her I was from Rogersville, just 24 miles away.

"Oh, then you're home folks," she said, as her face lighted up. "I been to Rogersville a time or two and I bet I seen you there."

Anybody from as far distant as Knoxville is a "furriner," and she keenly resents intrusion of such "furriners."

Interest in Bride Keen.

Sneedville, Tenn., Feb. 3 (AP).—Public interest aroused by his marriage to a 9-year-old girl is causing strapping, 22-year-old Charlie Johns no end of trouble.

"I'm not going to be disturbed with these people much longer—I'll get the law or something," the mountaineer said, as he put his little bride, Eunice, in seclusion at his parents' home.

Mrs. Lewis Winstead, 33-year-old mother of the flaxen-haired girl, told reporters that "she's skeered to come out of the house with all the strangers about."

She referred to the curious who came to see the "child bride."

Farm Unit to Meet In Baltimore Feb. 8

Baltimore, Feb. 3 (AP).—The board of directors of the Maryland Farm Bureau will meet here February 8 and 9 to work out details of the agricultural program to be carried out by some 4,000 organized Maryland farms during 1937.

Representatives from 20 of the 23 counties will gather at the meeting to interpret the policies adopted by delegates to the annual farm bureau meeting January 15, and to organize the activities through which the policies will be carried forward.

C. E. Wise, jr., secretary-treasurer of the bureau, said three sub-committees will meet prior to the directors' session to consider program and membership, legislation and cooperative business activities of the organization.

Demands of U. S. Jews Irk Official in Poland

Warsaw, Poland, Feb. 3 (AP).—A Polish foreign office spokesman lamented today action by the American Jewish Congress which adopted a resolution demanding this nation restore "equal rights" to Jews.

"It is very regrettable that Jewish impulsiveness and nervousness should aggravate friction which the government is so energetically striving to allay," the official said. Nationalist newspapers here charged anti-Semitic outbreaks had been exaggerated grossly by the American Press.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Pinch Hits as Groom.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—A mother of three children, posing as a man, went through a marriage ceremony with a 16-year-old girl to protect the girl's "honor," it was disclosed in Magistrate's Court today when two Chinese were arraigned on statutory charges.

They were accused of assaulting the "bride," who, it was said, is an expectant mother.

The "bridegroom," known in Bronx taverns as "Tom Collins," disappeared when her identity was disclosed after the ceremony and is being sought by police.

The story of the strange wedding ceremony was told to Magistrate Overton Harris today when he held for further hearing the two Chinese, Chin Tong Ming, 22, and Wong Park on, 26. Dominick Raneiri, 21, who police said permitted his name to be used by the "bridegroom" and later offered to marry the 16-year-old girl himself, was held without bail. The magistrate set bail of $5,000 for the "bride."

Man Returns to Prison To Save Stain on Family

McAlester, Okla., Feb. 3 (AP).—Jack Brodie, a 42-year-old Washington State highway worker, returned voluntarily to Oklahoma penitentiary today, 10 years after his escape, to complete a sentence "before my children grow up."

Behind him at Colfax, Wash., Brodie left a good job and his wife and four children, the oldest a 6-year-old boy.

Warden Jess Dunn said Brodie has 11 months and 28 days left to serve. He was sentenced in 1922 for robbery of a bank at Sallisaw, and escaped from a trusty camp at Ardmore, June 13, 1926.

Fitts Refuses To Open Taylor Murder Case

Mary Miles Minter Request for 'Prosecution or Exoneration' Denied.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Feb. 3.—District Attorney Buron Fitts announced today he was not "at this time" reopening the William Desmond Taylor murder mystery case.

His statement followed the demand of Mary Miles Minter, star of the silent movies, yesterday that he prosecute or exonerate her.

She referred specifically to published reports that police possessed a nightgown bearing the initials "M. M. M.," assertedly discovered in Taylor's apartment when he was found shot to death 15 years ago.

"There never was any such garment," said Miss Minter. . . . I know that no such garment of mine was ever found there. . . . he was always a perfect gentleman to me."

The district attorney's file revealed no nightgown and Miss Minter and her attorney, Eugene H. Marcus, searched a bundle marked "Taylor case exhibits" in police hands at the City Hall. If the nightie ever had been in the bundle, it was gone.

Fitts' statement said in part:

"No new evidence has been presented to warrant the reopening of the case. Shortly after the murder of Taylor a complaint was issued against Edward F. Sands, charging Sands with the murder. He has not been apprehended."

Claim to Gold Mine Given New Pensioner

Chelan, Wash., Feb. 3 (AP).—Mrs. Retta Freeman, 68, Chelan's second Townsend test "pensioner," announced yesterday she had been given a gold and silver mine.

An unidentified "customer" who came into her son's tiny grocery store, gave it to her, she said.

"He said he wanted to do something for me, so he gave me a claim in the Methow Valley, near Squaw Creek. He said it assayed high in gold and silver ore," she explained.

'Pent-House' Prison Has 24 Occupants

Salisbury, Md., Feb. 3 (AP).—Twenty-four prisoners settled down today in the comparative luxury of Wicomico County's "pent-house" jail atop the new courthouse addition.

The most modern jail in Maryland, the new prison also is the most nearly escape-proof. Its barriers of steel, concrete and bullet-proof glass are four floors above street level. The prisoners go up in elevators.

Sheriff Charles H. Truitt said a prisoner would have to cut through four steel doors to escape.

Errant Sea Cook Abandons Mates; Draws 4 Years

Nassau, the Bahamas, Feb. 3 (AP). A sea cook, who made off wth a sponge schooner, leaving 12 shipmates to the waves, went to Nassau prison today to serve four years at hard labor.

The errant cook, Oswald Bain, was sentenced after his defense, based on near-sightedness, fell on deaf ears.

Bain hoisted anchor and set sail with the schooner Rozetta last November 14, when the crew of sponge fishermen aproached in six small dinghies at the end of day's fishing.

Aboard the Rozetta with Bain was a cabin boy. The cook headed the vessel for Andros, one of the larger islands of the Bahamas group, abondoning the 12 fisherman off a remote coral reef.

Bain testified defective eyesight prevented his seeing his mates, who set out in pursuit and were quickly outdistanced.

The abandoned men, picked up next day by another sponge boat, were carried to Andros, where they reported to the commissioner.

100,000 Mass Before Altar At Manila Bay

Solemn Services Mark Eucharistic Congress' 33d Opening.

By the Associated Press.

Manila, Feb. 3.—The Catholic Church, amid solemn scenes of devotion, opened the thirty-third International Eucharistic Congress tonight with an apostolic injunction to spur missionary work in the Far East.

Civil officials estimated 100,000 devout Filipinos and foreign pilgrims massed in Luneta Park to participate in opening ceremonies before a great, outdoor Eucharistic altar on the shore of Manila Bay.

Members of the church heirarchy, clad in rich-hued vestments, brought word from Pope Pius XI stressing the missionary character of the first Eucharistic Congress to be held in the Orient.

Filipino and Chinese priests, mingling with pilgrims from all parts of the world, illustrated the Far Eastern character of the four-day Congress.

The papal brief, serving as credentials for his personal representative, Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, said "the strength of the missionary must spring from the most august sacrament which binds him to his Divine King."

After joining in a mighty chorus of the Congress hymn, the massed thousands silently dropped to their knees in devotion when the blessed sacrament was elevated at the end of the day.

The delegates and pilgrims were welcomed by the Archbishop of Manila, Michael J. O'Doherty.

The archbishop denounced "minor scientists" who explain all phenomena by evolution, authors who avow their independence of Almighty God," and the "unspeakable Communists" who, he said, seize power and make use of their position to "eradicate every idea of the author of authority."

O'Doherty urged Catholics to "go and preach the gospel to every nation" to halt the wave of infidelity which he said cause wars, rumors of wars, broken treaties, violation of sacred persons and sanctuaries, and the slaughter of human life.

"...a light smoke is a joy to the throat"

"Before I came over to this country an English cigarette appealed to me because it was firmly packed. In America I tried various popular brands looking for the same virtue. Lucky Strike led all the rest. And what's more—I soon discovered that Luckies were a light smoke and a positive joy to the throat."

HERBERT MARSHALL
FAMOUS RKO RADIO PICTURES' STAR

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Marshall verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen, and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. Life Line Projectile.

Michael J. Ryan, former ordnance officer of the Coast Guard in this city, has just received a patent on a new life-line projectile that makes far more accurate firing and almost doubles the range.

The Coast Guard has been using Ryan's projectile for some time now and has found it a great improvement over the old projectiles. The old projectiles, when fired, used to turn somersaults in the air—"tumbling" is how Coast Guard officials describe it—with the result that the line would lose force and direction. Ryan's projectile, a round 13-ounce ball, like Wild Bill Hickock (Gary Cooper to us) shoots straight and fast.

Ryan is now chief of staff of the Coast Guard at Seattle, Wash.

That little story about Laura Drye's elevator ride with Robert Taylor brought a telephone call from a friend of Evelyn Lee, of Procurement, who (Miss Lee, not the friend), it seems, had a real "encounter with the screen star. Miss Lee knows Carter Barron, the Loew's local manager, fairly well, and when she expressed the desire to meet Taylor he said "fine, come along."

It was 11:30 Friday night when Miss Lee, Jean Harlow, Robert Taylor, Barron and a friend of Taylor left the Mayflower for a snack. They wound up in a Connecticut avenue restaurant, where they stayed until 4 o'clock in the morning eating—guess what? Salami and eggs.

Miss Lee didn't get to work the next day.

Wandering Pintail.

The Biological Survey was the proud recipient recently of a bird band recovered from a pintail duck killed in Eastern Siberia—the first time a bird band has been reported to the survey from Asia.

The Pintail started his wanderings a year ago January from Los Banos, Calif., apparently headed north to Alaska across the Bering Straits into Siberia, where he was "liquidated," as the Bolsheviks put it, by a Soviet Eskimo.

If we can interrupt ourselves, here's a little information of Soviet Eskimos we got from the Russian embassy—there are only 1,300 in the country; they have been allowed to retain their own language but are being taught Russian in schools set up by the government; fishing and fur-trapping are still the principal occupations, but mining is a flourishing industry. However, the most radical change effected—at least according to our distorted perspective—is that the Russian Eskimos have been provided with regular brick houses and no longer live in igloos. The age of romance seems to be taking a beating everywhere.

To get back to the bird-banding, the Biological Survey has been doing it for about 16 years and has banded roughly 2,000,000 birds in all. Bands are made of aluminum, about half an inch in diameter, and carry the legend, "Notify the Biological Survey" and a serial number. When a bird is banded, the bander drops the survey a note giving the serial number, and when and where the bird was banded.

There are about 2,000 banders cooperating with the survey in this country and Canada and they band about 250,000 birds a year. Most of the birds, of course, are never heard of again. With ducks band recovery is about 10 per cent; with smaller birds less than 5.

Research experiments are making the sweet potato a most versatile vegetable according to an agriculture report. Besides candied sweets there are sweet potato chips in the eating line; then the potato's pulp is being used in the manufacture of cattle feed, while the potato's starch is going into producing adhesives, laundry starch, paper and yarn.

Home Group Seeks to Ban Apartments

Bloom Calls Eighteenth and Columbia Noisier Than Broadway.

Washington's private home owners are on the warpath. Apparently we ary of retreating before the overwhelming tide of apartment house advances, they joined yesterday to lodge vigorous protests with the District Zoning Commission.

The Capital's far-flung reputation as "the city beautiful" and community of fasihonable residences is fast being marred by the erection of too many apartments, protesting citizens told the commission as public rezoning hearings opened at the District Building.

Of 45 cases scheduled to be heard by the commission, the majority concern rezoning of certain areas to permit apartment buildings. As case after case was reached yesterday, the District Building board room resounded with citizen protests.

Bloom Decries Noise.

A lighter touch to the proceedings was added by Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), of New York, who charged the intersection of Eighteenth Street and Columbia road was noisiest in the city—"even worse than Broadway."

He appeared before the commission to urge approval of a petition by Charles A. Douglas, local attorney, for commercial classification of his property at 1930 Columbia road northwest.

Representative Bloom said he now leases the property as his home. Douglas proposes to erect an apartfloor if the site is rezoned "first floor is the site is rezoned "first commercial."

Since May 15, 1935, Representative Bloom said, he has been protesting against the unnecessary noises made by street cars at the adjacent intersection. He argued that commercial use of the propery was the only way Douglas could realize a paying investment.

Objects to Change.

Objection to the proposed change in zoning came from Dr. James G. McKay, 2009 Columbia road northwest. He contended there was no need for additional stores in the community, and was joined by John L. Barr, local real estate man, who said that if stores were permitted in a new apartment "it would wallop the rest of us."

Attorney Ringgold Hart presented Douglas' petition and told the commission that Representative Bloom has refused to renew his lease when it expires in October. The "unnecessary noise'" cited by Bloom had forced him to seek living quarters elsewhere, Hart pointed out.

Opponents of the project said that within two blocks of the property are 5 drug stores, 14 groceries, 1 branch bank, 6 beauty parlors, 4 shoe repair shops, 2 laundries and 6 liquor stores.

Would Extend Service.

Owners of the Parrot, fashionable restaurant at Twentieth and R streets northwest, sought rezoning of a rear portion of the property as "'first commercial." This area is now residential, and the management wants to extend table service to a rear garden.

Members of the Dupont Circle Citizens Association, protesting against rezoning as commercial any other section of the block, agreed to the rear garden propsal.

An early attack on proposals to erect additional apartment houses was launched by Attorney Paul Lesh, representing Robert Woods Bliss, owner of property in the vicinity of Thirty-second and R streets northwest. The commission was asked to approve application for an apartment building. Lesh, however, contended that character of the proposed building would "not be an ornament to the community."

Opposes Apartment.

Paul E. Warring, representing the North Cleveland Park Citizens Association, opposed construction of an apartment building at Fortieth and Warren streets northwest. The section is now zoned restricted residential—private homes.

Warring said his association was against the erection of any apartment houses in the area, pointing out that additional traffic hazards and noise nuisances wou'd result.

Andrew D. Tory proposed to erect an apartment on the Southwest corner of Connecticut avenue and Legation street and was immediately met by protests from residents of exclusive Chevy Chase.

A resident of Legation street told the Commission that erection of the proposed apartment would "cut off light and air and create parking problems." It was also pointed out that two other apartment buildings now occupy the northwest and northeast corners of the intersection.

Members of the Zoning Commission include District Commissioners Dan I. Sultan, Melvin Hazen, Georgt E. Allen, David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, and Arno B. Cammerer, of the National Park and Planning Commission. Hearings wil be resumed today.

40 Flee Night Fire In Store Apartment

Nearly 40 persons living in apartments above the Service Pharmacy in the 1100 block of Fourteenth street northwest were routed out early this morning by a two-alarm blaze in the drug store.

Two firemen suffered slight cuts of the hands from glass in a door which they broke in to reach the fire. They were W. F. Benthal, of No. 3 Engine Co., and Paul Perg, of No. 11 Engine Co.

This rare document, signed by Jefferson Davis as President of the Confederate States of America, has come into the possession of John T. Loomis, of this city.

Yellowed Parchment, Dated April 19, 1861, Bears Signature of Confederate States President; History Shows D. C. in Peril on That Date.

A rare document, signed by Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederate States of America, Vice President Alexander H. Stevens, of Georgia, and Robert Tombs, Secretary of State, is now in the possession of John T. Loomis, managing partner of the W. H. Lowdermilk Book Store, 1418 street northwest.

The yellowing parchment which came into Loomis' possession a year ago and which, according to him, bears the authentic Davis signature, is braided with a red ribbon. Lacking a seal of State at that time, Loomis holds that the ribbon was used as a temporary substitute.

Confederate States of America
Jefferson Davis
President and Commander in Chief

Know ye—that reposing special trust and confidence in the discretion, fidelity and valor of citizen—

Henry Whitney Cleveland

I hereby, with the consent of the Senate, commission him to be Colonel of the Staff of the President in the bureau of Ordinance and Information, for the purpose of resisting invasion.

He is therefore diligently and carefully to discharge the duties of such rank and office by doing and performing all manner of such things thereunto belonging and appertaining; and I charge all of the officers, Agents and soldiers communicating with him, to be obedient to his orders as given from the Commander in Chief. He is to observe and obey such orders as he may from time to time receive from me or the Secretary of War or from any future President—

This Commission to continue in force unless he is removed by a Court-Martial or until disbanded.

Given unto my hand and the provisional seal of the Confederate States at Montgomery—this the 19th day of April A. D. 1861 and of our Independence the First.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.
ROBERT TOMBS,
Secretary of State.
ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS,
(By the Senate).

Six days before President Davis had appended his signature to this document Fort Johnson had bombarded Fort Sumter, commanded by Maj. Anderson, into submission and the South had gone wild with joy.

Looking at that document yesterday as street cars on nearby Fourteenth street clanged noisily by it was a little difficult to visualize the terror that gripped Washington that 19th day of April. And yet history tells us that the terror was real and that panic-stricken residents were leaving by the hundreds.

Rumors were rife in the Capital that night; stories of wrecked railroads and bridges and cut telegraph wires. There was no communication between the Government and the Northern States and a worried and distraught Lincoln was expecting any moment to see Confederate gunboats, their decks cleared, steaming up the Potomac.

Traffic Victim Fights for Life; 2 Others Hurt

Moses Herman, 50, of 717 H street northeast, lay near death in Casualty Hospital last night, suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries, after he was struck by an automobile as he attempted to cross the street at Seventh and H streets northeast.

Police said the car was driven by Harry Hodkinson, 39, of 2009 Gale street northeast. Hodkinson was not held.

Catherine May, 36, of 921 Butternut street northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital after she was knocked down at Tenth and F streets northwest, by an automobile operated by Ansel D. Moore, 24, Takoma Park, Md.

At the hospital, physicians said the woman suffered a possible fractured left ankle and cuts.

The third traffic victim was Daniel Webster, colored, 68, 2328 Pomeroy street southeast, who received cuts and bruises when he was struck at Nichols avenue and U street southeast. He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Eleventh Precinct police arrested James L. Holland, colored, 31, 7 Allen's Court southwest, and charged him with driving while drunk.

A coroner's jury will investigate the recent deaths of Charles B. Saylor, 65, 3603 O street northwest, and William Kanode, 45, Fort Eustis, Va.

Kanode was injured January 31 in a collision at Thirteenth and M streets northwest.

Col. Peak Indorsed By Citizens' Group

The Friendship Heights Citizens' Association, in session at the Janney School, last night indorsed Col. William Peak for the position of head of District Penal Institutions, to succeed Capt. M. M. Barnard upon the latter's retirement.

L. Cornwall, chairman of the Boys' Club committee, announced that boys in the community between 8 and 18 years of age would meet in Woodrow Wilson High School February 10, at 7:45 p. m., to form a Friendship Heights Boys' Club. There will boxing and refreshments.

The association was addressed by Dr. George F. Bowerman, the public librarian, who said the library annually had more than 3,000,000 books in circulation, and stressed the need for more books and an increased library staff.

Auditorium Bill Receives House Favor

Robinson Measure Voted by Buildings, Grounds Committee.

Ickes Estimates Cost at $10,000,000; Quick Action Expected.

With the dispatch that characterized handling of the measure in the Senate, the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds yesterday approved the Robinson bill to set up a Capital Auditorium Commission.

Amending the bill only to increase the proposed commission's membership from three to five, the committee voted a favorable report to the House five minutes after the last witness had been heard.

Passed Saturday by the Senate, the bill is expected to be brought up promptly on the House floor. Less than two weeks have elapsed since President Roosevelt indorsed the movement to erect an auditorium here and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, majority leader, introduced the proposed legislation.

$10,000,000 Estimated.

As approved yesterday, it provides that the ranking minority members of the House and Senate Buildings and Grounds Committees shall serve on the commission, as well as the two chairmen and Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

Testifying to the need of a capacious hall for large assemblies, Ickes told the House group he thinks $10,000,000 would cover the cost of the project. He said it should accommodate "as many as you can get in consistent with their ability to see and hear."

The Secretary of the Interior, who touched off a renewal of agitation for a Washington auditorium on the day following the rain-drenched inaugural ceremonies, modified his previous position as to the desirability of an auditorium as a memorial to Thomas Jefferson.

Studies for the two projects might be conducted concurrently, he asserted yesterday. Earlier he had announced that an auditorium would be an admirable choice as a monument to Jefferson.

King to Urge Memorial.

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, meanwhile announced that he has not given up hope of having the Capital auditorium built as a memorial to Thomas Jefferson.

"I will go before the commission as soon as it is appointed," he said, "and if it does nothing I shall try to get the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds to report on my joint resolution." King's resolution would authorize the Jefferson Commission to build an auditorium at a cost not to exceed $3,000,000.

Nearly every witness was asked by Representative Eugene B. Crowe (Democrat), Indiana, whether he favored the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Auditorium idea, which has many supporters in Congress but which is frowned on by Chairman John J. Boylan, and most, if not all, the members of the Federal commission now formulating plans for a monument in Washington to the third President.

Moore Is Opposed.

"No," answered Dr. Charles Moore, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission. He deprecated the selection of utilitarian memorials to American Presidents, singling out William Howard Taft bridge here and New York's George Washington bridge.

"No one calls it 'Taft Bridge,' " said Dr. Moore. "It's known as Connecticut avenue bridge."

Chairman Frederic A. Delano of the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission, also answered Crowe's question in the negative, making it clear that he was not speaking for the commission.

The Jefferson Memorial," said Delano, "should be modest in size and represent the type of man he was. It should not depend on size for its appeal."

Francis P. Sullivan, representing the American Institute of Architects, said Jefferson was of sufficient stature to deserve a monument which would not be put to practical use.

A. B. Heaton Heard.

Others heard yesterday were Arthur B. Heaton, chairman of the public buildings committee of the Washington Board of Trade; W. H. Press, assistant secretary of the Board of Trade; Capt. Patrick H. Tansey, representing Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan, and Joseph Berst, who spoke as a private citizen.

When one member of the committee raised the question of the legality of the Federal Government charging rent for the use of its auditorium, Secretary Ickes laughingly expressed the opinion such procedure "would not be unconstitutional."

Board Bars Maryland Child From Entering School Here

Guardian, Even a Grandmother, Not Same as Parent, Is Ruling; 'Clear Precedent' Is Cited by Member.

Supporting the view that a guardian, even though it be a grandparent, is not a parent, the Board of Education yesterday ruled against admitting Robert A. Gingell, 11, of Bethesda, Md., to the Alice Deal Junior High School free.

Robert, whose parents are dead, lives with his five brothers and sisters, all minors, with his grandmother, Mrs. Minnie M. Gingell.

Mrs. Gingell, an employe at the Veterans' Administration, applied for the admission of her grandson to the District public schools, on the ground that she is his legally appointed guardian. The law under which the board is acting pending a decision of the Court of Appeals, entitles all pupils whose parents are employed in the District to admission "free of charge in the schools of the District."

Superintendent Frank W. Ballou, declaring there was no provision for accepting "guardians" or "grandparents" as "parents" denied the admission request. The Board of Education upheld his decision.

"There is nothing we can do," declared Henry Gilligan, board member, who brought the matter before the board on appeal from Mrs. Gingell. "The precedent is clear."

The question, he said, has arisen before, and never has "guardianship constituted parenthood."

Gilligan cited a 1933 ruling of the late William W. Bride, former corporation counsel, whose ruling on "nonresident pupils" in the Lois Kemp case last November was reversed by a District court.

"If a child is so unfortunate as to have lost both parents, it's too bad he should be denied admission on a technicality," said John H. Wilson, board member.

"Of course, we do not mean that the child is barred from entering Alice Deal," explained Robert A. Maurer, of the board "He can enter if he pays his own tuition."

The board, voting to uphold Dr. Ballou's decision, instructed the secretary to send Mrs. Gingell a letter of explanation.

The board yesterday received the superintendent's report that 95 nonresident pupils have been entered in District schools since the Kemp ruling went into effect, making the admission of non-resident pupils mandatory. Fifty-four of these pupils have been admitted with the beginning of the second semester this week.

The board has appealed the Kemp decision.

Rep. Collins Advocates Selling D. C. Jail as Apartment Site

If the District Commissioners can get a good price for the District Jail, Chairman Collins of the House sub-committee on District appropriations, would be in favor of building a new one on land now owned by the District.

He suggested the sale as a possible solution to the problem of raising funds for erection of a new jail following a tour of inspection in company with other members of the sub-committee and District officials.

"There is no doubt that the District needs a new jail," he said. "The trouble is where the District is going to get the money.

"I think the Commissioners might do well to find out how much they could get for the old jail. Maybe some one would like to build a nice apartment house on the site."

Collins' proposal is in line with a recommendation by Thomas M. Rives, superintendent of the jail, that the new institution be erected on District-owned property at Blue Plains, Va.

The sub-committee yesterday did not complete its inspection of all welfare, health and penal institutions, but probably will do so later in the week.

Besides the jail, it visited Gallinger Hospital and the Children's Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Glen Dale, Md.

Rives called attention of the Congressmen to crowded conditions and the need for additional guards to relieve present employes from long hours.

Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendent of Gallinger Hospital, likewise emphasized the congestion and told the House members that while Gallinger has a capacity of 800 it is now treating 1,006 patients. He also said that additional personnel is needed to supplement the 53 graduate nurses and 150 student nurses.

Allen Finds Caddy In Jail, Pays Fine

Commissioner George E. Allen met his caddy under unusual circumstances yesterday.

The Commissioner was inspecting the District Jail with members of the District subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee when a prisoner piped up:

"Mr. Commissioner, could I see you a minute."

It was the voice of the caddy, Bernard Turner, 22, who was in jail because he didn't have $5 when the judge said he was guilty of disorderly conduct.

Allen reached in his pants pocket and made the necessary arrangements for Turner's release.

Law Reform Urged to Aid Disease Fight

Stricter Rooming House Control Also Asked by Milliken.

Law reforms and additional appropriations for public health work are essential in the campaign against venereal disease, 100 representative Washingtonians were told yesterday at a luncheon meeting celebrating National Social Hygiene Day.

Addressing a group composed of doctors, nurses, clergymen, lawyers, social workers, school teachers and clubwomen, Capt. Rhoda Milliken, head of the Women's Bureau, urged revision of District laws on compulsory treatment of syphilitics and on the control of rooming houses.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, stressed the inadequacy of funds allotted for operation of the Health Department's sole social disease clinic, pointing out that its staff is overworked and its two social service workers are far from enough to meet the need.

Four-Point Attack Planned.

The third speaker on the program, one of 200 held simultaneously throughout the country, was Dr. R. A. Vonderlehr, Assistant Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service in charge of venereal disease control. He outlined a four-point line of attack on the problem.

Sponsored by the Washington Social Hygiene Society, the meeting attracted an overflow audience, which leaders of the anti-syphilis drive hailed as another indication of increasing public interest in means of combating the evil. Dr. William A. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital and society president, presided.

Washington's downtown area has many rooming houses, run by absentee landlords, which are used in part for immoral purposes, thus contributing to the number of syphilis and gonorrhea infections, said Capt. Milliken. Tenants unable to afford more respectable quarters must stand by helplessly while their children are subjected to the resultant evil influences, she declared.

Laws Need Extension.

While the existing laws on compulsory treatment of the venereally infected "read well" they still leave a "tremendous gap" between the Health and Police departments, said the head of the Women's Bureau.

Dr. Ruhland pointed out that 76,000 visits were made to the department's clinic at 512 I street northwest in 1936, at least 15,000 less than the number needed to conform with public health standards.

Well, I'll Tell You . . . . . By Bob Burns

There's nothing in the world that saves time like tellin' the truth. If you tell the truth about a thing, it ends the matter then and there, but a lie will start you out on a long series of lies tryin' to cover up the first one.

I know a big business man that is looked on as a genius because he handles so many matters and deals with so many people. I asked him how in the world he did it all alone and he says "Because I don't have to try to remember what I told the other fellow." He says "Truth not only saves time, but it gives you a clear conscience and it pays dividends." The other day, a beautiful girl come into his office lookin' for a job as a stenographer. He told her he didn't need one, but as she turned to go, he asked her how she lost her last job. The girl says "I'll tell you the truth. I lost my last three jobs because the bosses' wives caught me sittin' on their husbands' laps. This man looked at her and he says "Your truthfulness is a quality that should be rewarded. You can report for work in the morning."

Miss Bankhead Stars Next at The National

Will Open Monday Night in 'Reflected Glory' to Rival Film Hits.

Tallulah Bankhead, daughter of the Speaker of the House of Representatives and a former resident of this city, will be next week's star at the National Theater in George Kelly's new play of "Reflected Glory." Miss Bankhead will be supported by the same cast that appeared at the Morosco Theater in New York during the Broadway run of the piece, including Clay Clement, Ann Andrews, Phillip Reed, Alden Chase, Elizabeth Dunne, Chester Miller, William H. Turner, Robert Bordoni, Madeleine Holmes, Edmund George and S. T. Bratton. There will be the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees and a special benefit performance for the flood sufferers on Thursday afternoon, February 11.

The first attraction under the Belasco Theater's new policy of living stage attractions will be "Hey Diddle Diddle," a new comedy by Bartlett Cormack. The principal roles will be played by stars who long have been famous on the screen—Conway Tearle, Alice White, Russell Hardie and Martha Sleeper. The story is described as one of "Hollywood lunacies," concerning itself principally with the lives of "extra girls" in the movie capital. It is declared to be an item of supreme hilarity. Lucille Ball and Adele Rowland also are important members of the cast. The engagement opens on Monday night and will inaugurate a succession of stage attractions on Lafayette Square.

Kay Francis will be the pictured star on the screen at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, in "Stolen Holiday," a new First National release, with Claude Rains and Ian Hunter in the principal male roles. Miss Francis in this subject is cast as a French mannequin who becomes one of the world's fashion dictators—an appropriate assignment, since in her own right she is acclaimed as one of the world's best-dressed women. On the stage, the Earle will present Rachel Carley, singing star of the "Manhattan Merry-Go-Round" radio hour, as headliner. Other turns will be offered by the Mattison Rhythms, "an array of youth," in dance specialties; De Paul, billed as "the ace of card manipulators," and The Bradwins in "Funny Feats."

"Outcasts," the emotional drama that stars Warren William, Karen Morley and Lewis S. Stone, will be the foremost screen feature of the bill at Loew's Capitol Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The screen feature is based on the widely read novel, "Happiness Preferred," by Frank R. Adams. The story concerns an invalid husband who is jealous of the surgeon treating his ailing wife. The wife dies and the surgeon is falsely accused of murder. From that point on, developments are highly dramatic. On the stage, the headline attraction will be Ray Noble and His Orchestra, featuring the songs of Howard Barry, Lynn Martin and the Merry Macs, the band's star vocalists. Also on the stage bill will be Lowe, Hite and Stanley and the aerial thrills of Rector and Doreen.

Bulldog Drummond, one of the most popular detective adventurers in modern fiction and celluloid drama, has only eight hours in which to solve a series of crimes which grip London in terror in his latest film appearance in "Bulldog Drummond Escapes." This new Paramount production opens a week's engagement on the screen of the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater tomorrow. Ray Milland appears in the stellar role, with Sir Guy Standing, Reginald Denny, Heather Angel and Porter Hall in support.

Beginning tomorrow at RKO-Keith's, James Cagney will make his first local screen appearance since his feud with the Warner Brothers. The vehicle in which he will appear bears the title of "Great Guy" and deals with the experiences of a weights and measures inspector who breaks up a new sort of racket. The plot seems to be precisely down Mr. Cagney's alley. The leading feminine role is played by May Clarke and that admirable actor, Henry Kolker, also is prominently cast. The story is adapted from the Johnny Cave fictions in the Satevepost. As an extra added attraction, the Pathe News will provide an exclusive close-up of the Dionne Quintuplets.

"The Plainsman," that admirable Cecil B. De Mille "Western," in which bold liberties are taken with historical fact, will continue a second week at Loew's Palace Theater. The stellar roles are played by Gary Cooper as "Wild Bill" Hickok, and Jean Arthur, as Calamity Jane. Others of note in the cast include Fred Kohler, Charles Bickford, James Ellison, Porter Hall and Helen Burgess. The short-reel subjects also will be continued.

Shirley Temple will be the pictured star at Loew's Columbia Theater for the week beginning tomorrow in a repeat engagement of her latest starring vehicle, "Stowaway." Robert Young and Alice Faye lead the supporting cast. The action gets involved in extremely dramatic difficulties in the interior of China and, altogether, Miss Temple finds herself in quite a predicament—from which she extricates herself with characteristic charm.

Jeannette MacDonald's first major hit, "Monte Carlo," will be revived at the Rialto Theater next week, beginning Sunday. The bill also will include Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi in a revival of "The Raven." Short-reel subjects, as usual, will augment the bill.

The first showing of Elizabeth Bergner's film production of Shakespeare's "As You Like It," at the Rialto recently, was so successful that the picture is to be replayed at the Little Theater for the week beginning Sunday. As the madcap Rosalind, Miss Bergner has achieved one of her major screen successes.

Beginning with the customary Sunday matinee, Col. James J. Lake, manager of the Gayety Theater, will present a return engagement of Washington's own comedian, Billy (Cheese and Crackers) Hagen. The feminine contingent in this new Independent Burlesque Association production will be led by a newcomer to the Capital, known as Aunt Hattie. Aunt Hattie is said to be a sensation.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

An Emissary From the West Coast Drops By to Sow Some Seeds of Enthusiasm for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Barrett Kiesling, Itinerant Publicist for Studio, Drops Hints of Future Releases That Will Bear Stamp of Greatness; Afterthoughts Concerning John Gielgud's "Hamlet" and Its Bonna Fide Early Curtains; News Notes of the Current Theater.

YESTERDAY was another festive day in the lives of the drama desks. That incorrigible transcontinental commuter, Barret Kiesling, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's itinerant publicist, blew back into town, intent upon engaging the critical eyes and ears with photographic and verbal exuberances concerning the imminent output of his company. So we lunched with him at the Variety Club, under the hospitable auspices of Carter Barron, Eastern division manager for Loew's, Inc., and then cocktailed with him again at 4 p. m.

BELL.

Mr. Kiesling's major enthusiasm on this trip is "The Good Earth," the celluloid transcription of Pearl Buck's monumental novel that encompasses the entire history of the human race in its manifestation of every motion to which mankind can be subjected.

It is Mr. Kiesling's belief that when this picture finally has been released, after three years in the making, Luise Rainer will emerge as the winner of the Academy Award for the best acting of the year. Paul Muni is expected to come close to garnering first male honors in the character of Wang Lung.

Then there are "Parnell," with Clark Gable and Myrna Loy; "Maytime," costarring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy; Robert Montgomery, Joan Crawford and William Powell in a new filming of "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" and other items to engage the interest of the commentator which Mr. Kiesling will not permit you to forget.

From the armful of photographic art which I accumulated yesterday afternoon and the voluminous stories with which Mr. Kiesling loaded me down, I judge that the ensuing few months hold few box-office terrors for M-G-M. That is as it should be, for they are making a succession of superlatively excellent pictures.

It was nice to see Mr. Kiesling again, in company with his old pals, Carter Barron, Norman Pyle, Ray Bell—no relation—and the other members of the local staff of the organization which he so ably represents as a wandering minstrel of good will.

Present at yesterday afternoon's late cocktail party was Charles C. Pettijohn, chief counsel of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., presided over by Will H. Hays as president. Mr. Pettijohn yesterday was in a reminiscent and anecdotal mood and regaled a tableful of kindred spirits with numerous recitals of the various vicissitudes of film business which he has encountered in a long and honorable career. One of the mainstays of the industry, Charlie is full of years and wisdom and one at whose feet the youngsters in the industry might sit to advantage to themselves.

It seems worth emphasizing that the management of the National Theater means what it says when it declares that curtains will rise on Guthrie McClintic's production of "Hamlet," starring John Gielgud, with Judith Anderson, Lillian Gish and Arthur Byron, at 2:10 at matinees and 8:10 nights.

On opening night, Monday, they missed the 8:10 curtain by only five minutes and no one was allowed to be seated until after the first scene of the Shakespeare tragedy has been played. Even with this early start, the last curtain was not down on the 19 scenes of the two acts into which the play has been divided in this acting version until 11:30 p. m.

I cannot too strongly exhort lovers of the best in the theater to see this enactment of the greatest play ever written in the English language. Mr. Gielgud, in the title role, has an uncanny sense of tempo and timing and lends new vigor, new meaning and new clarity to speeches that have been familiar for years but never quite so well interpreted for this generation of theatergoers. Arthur Byron betrays a similar skill in transforming mere elocution into vivid realism and no less may be said of the Queen of Judith Anderson or the Ophelia of Lillian Gish.

Yesterday's matinee was a complete sell-out—as it so richly deserved to be—and it excessively behooves anyone who wishes to avail himself of this dramatic treat to get about the business of getting his seats, if there are any left.

It is my good friend Charles Kranz, Washington branch exchange manager for United Artists, who calls my attention to the fact that for the first time in the 19 years of his company's existence a sales drive is in course of promotion in compliment to George Schaefer, vice president and general manager. Under the supervision of Andy W. Smith, another old friend, who occupies the post of general sales manager for U. A., the campaign to stimulate sales of current and forthcoming releases throughout the country will continue for 14 weeks, ending May 1. The sales drive also is in the nature of an anniversary celebration, Mr. Schaefer having joined United Artists just one year ago. Branch managers, salesmen, district managers and division managers will compete for important cash prizes for greatest sales and most notable increase in played and earned figures. Their slogan will be "All United for George J. Schaefer."

Warner Brothers have in production what they look upon as the most formidable line-up of feature pictures they have ever had in work, according to an announcment made yesterday by John J. Payette, zone manager for the Warner interests in the Washington territory.

Now in the final stages of editing are "Call It a Day," based on the Broadway stage success; Mervyn LeRoy's "The King and the Chorus Girl," with Fernand Gravet and Joan Blondell; Pat O'Brien and Henry Fonda in "Slim;" Ruby Keeler in a musical, "Ready, Willing and Able," and "Another Dawn," with Kay Francis and Errol Flynn teamed for the first time.

Current productions, ready for release, include "The Prince and the Pauper," by Mark Twain, with Errol Flynn and Billy and Bobby Mauch; Bette Davis in "Marked Woman;" Hugh Herbert and Mary Boland in "Marry the Girl," and Dick Powell in "The Singing Marine."

Vacation Note.

It looks as if we might get to bed tonight by 4 a. m., tomorrow morning—practically the equivalent of being on leave!

To Reappear on Local Screen

James Cagney, the gifted young actor pictured above, who has been warring with the Warners over salary disputes, comes back to the local screen under different auspices in "Great Guy," to be shown at RKO-Keith's for the week beginning tomorrow. On the screen, Mr. Cagney is a very belligerent young fellow, but in private life he is a mild and docile player, wholly likable. He is supported in his new picture by Mae Clark and Henry Kolker.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Settin' Around.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 3.

During the recent cold snaps here in southern California, a low lying, dark cloud has hovered over the city, circling it on all horizons. It is the smoke from smudges, fired by citrus growers to protect young fruit from frost and ice.

MacMURRAY. FRED

Driving to Paramount this morning, I had the feeling that this smoke was a screen around the city. Hollywood has always seemed to me a world complete in itself, but never more so than today, when it gave the physical appearance of being walled in. In this colony, the motion picture industry occupies the undivided attention of the populace, entirely obliterating the land beyond the mountains that surround us. To Hollywood, the rest of the world is simply a box office.

Entering Paramount, my nose frozen to a nice technicolor red, I met Ray Milland. He looked frostbitten, too, and we swapped sheepish grins, but said nothing. We Californians don't like to talk about our bad weather. As I chatted with Ray, a young woman arrived, and apologized profusely to him for being late. To which Milland replied, "I don't mind waiting. Reminds me of the hours I spent warming benches outside producers' offices. Besides, it's good for me. Keeps me from being egotistical." Too bad more stars I might name are not kept waiting occasionally, if it helps lessen the sizes of hatbands.

Met Fred MacMurray as I was leaving the studio, and fell to talking about a preview of a tenth-rate musical comedy we had both seen the night before. "Trouble with the darn picture," growled Fred, "was that every time I dozed off to sleep, some actor sang a song and woke me up."

Most people have found themselves in the embarrassing situation which involved Preston Foster and myself yesterday evening. We were riding in Preston's car and he was so busy talking (he generally is, bless him) that he ran half-way through a traffic signal. He jammed on his brakes, stopped suddenly—and as always happens when you least want it, the motor stalled.

We were directly in the path of a giant truck, manned by a gaunt driver. Knowing the vocabularies of truck drivers and Army mule teamsters, we both shrank down into our seats. But the truckster purred, in a voice so sarcastic that it wilted the enamel on our teeth: "If you guys must play, we will all back up for you!"

ABE LYMAN, Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor were being shown through the White House by Mrs. Roosevelt last Saturday. Miss Harlow turned to Mrs. Rosevelt and asked: "Do you mind if I smoke?" The President's wife answered: "Not at all. Go right ahead. All I ask is that you don't throw matches on the rugs. They don't belong to us!" . . . That group all were with the President when he made his Birthday broadcast. When it was over, he turned to them, smiled, and asked: "How's my diction?" . . . The news-reel cameramen then asked F. Roosevelt prepared to pose, patted his head, and asked Robert Taylor: "Is my hair okay?"

COMMISSIONER ALLEN then introduced Abe Lyman to the President. "Oh, sure," Roosevelt greeted, "har'ya Abie!" . . . After Mrs. Roosevelt had shown the party through every room of the White House, she turned to the eyes-popping group, and said: "Thank you so much—for being so patient!"

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Conceding a Trick.

The ability to concede a trick gracefully at the proper time is directly responsible for the success of many a contract. A psychological quirk in the minds of many players interferes with this process. Apparently they feel that the voluntary concession of a trick, at slam contracts particularly, is foolish, since it then becomes necessary to take "all the rest." Thus, it is a common sight to see an inexperienced declarer run off his 11 sure tricks and then helplessly collapse. The hand shown below offered opportunity for a graceful and profitable trick concession.

West's three spade bid obviously was an attempt at a shut-out; South read it as such, hence, bid all the stronger to reach a slam.

The spade King was the opening lead; Declarer won, and took two rounds of clubs. Then, since the diamond finess was unavoidable in any case, he took it immediately. The Queen held, and now it became necessary to make a decision between two lines of play.

Declarer had a losing diamond and a losing heart. If the latter suit were to break 4-3, the diamond could be discarded on dummy's fourth heart. But in view of West's preemptive spade bid, which certainly could not nave been based on fewer than six cards and two clubs and two diamonds (he must have had at least two diamonds for the finesse to have succeeded, it was an odds-on-chance that the heart suit would not break. There was a much better chance that the three spade bid had represented a seven-card suit, which would leave West with only four cards in the red suits. If he had only one heart, things looked hopeless, but if his red suit holding had been 2 and 2, declarer was home.

Acting on this premise, declarer cashed the Ace and King of hearts, noting with pleasure that West followed to both rounds. It then became an elementary matter to lay down the diamond Ace, stripping West of all but spades, then to lead the Jack of spades from dummy, and to throw one of his red losers on it. West, on winning with the spade Queen, could return nothing but a spade, which declarer ruffed in dummy while discarding his other loser.

* X WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1937 17

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

The glory that was Carlisle's, unlike that of ancient Greece, remains a living, breathing thing, unforgettable as long as those famous Indian athletes from the Pennsylvania school move among us as coaches, sculpture models and in the trades that they have found.

POVICH.

Washingtonians have revelled for years in the presence of Charley Guyon, eldest of Carlisle's famous Guyon brothers. Guyon, now physical director at Eastern High School, regales his listeners with the tall tales of the feats of Jim Thorpe, John Sweetcorn, Albert Exendine and Gus Welch.

They were the scourge of the college gridirons in 1911-12-13 when the name of Carlisle was synonymous with wild Injun football—that upset every defense—against which no college team could cope. They were wily Redskins, operating under the coaching of the equally cunning Pop Warner, and their hidden-ball trick that beat haughty Harvard remains as, perhaps, the greatest of gridiron classics.

To Washington have gravitated three of the men famed in the annals of football at the Carlisle School for Indians. At Eastern High School, Charley Guyon has been, since the war, an ever-present reminder of Carlisle's gridiron glory. A month ago, Exendine, a teammate of Thorpe's, accepted a job in the Government service here. Yesterday, Gus Welch signed to coach at American University.

Every graduate of Carlisle knows Welch as the greatest of all of Warner's Indian quarterbacks. And every Carlisle man knows, too, of Welch's one great failure. That was the day he was sent by Warner to New York to scout Carlisle's foe of the next Saturday, became lost in the maze of traffic, followed a man in a fur coat who looked like he was going to a football game, followed him into the stadium and then learned during the second half that he was at the wrong field scouting the wrong team.

Of one thing Carlisle will never be accused—recruiting the peerless Jim Thorpe because of his athletic ability. Charley Guyon tells the story of Thorpe's first appearance on the field at Carlisle.

"Warner had both the track team and the baseball team out there practicing one afternoon in the spring of 1909. A half-dozen fellows were going over the high hurdles and another group was practicing the high jump at the far end of the track. Nobody even knew Thorpe was around.

"Suddenly we saw a fellow skipping over those high hurdles like he had springs in his shoes. He didn't even have on a track suit, but was wearing overalls. After he finished the hurdle course he kept right on running down to the high jump pit where Exendine and some others were having trouble with the bar at 5 feet 8 inches.

"Well, this fellow in overalls didn't even stop after he made the last hurdle. Without apparently changing his stride he went over that high jump bar with what looked like a foot of daylight between him and the bar.

"Pop Warner, who had seen what happened, came running over in a dither. 'Hey, you,' he shouted to Thorpe, 'Who are you? If you can do that, why aren't you out for this track team? Take off those overalls and let's see what you can really do.'"

If Warner didn't find out to his satisfaction what Thorpe could really do that afternoon, he learned fully the extent of Thorpe's capabilities the following winter at the Fifth Regiment Armory in Baltimore.

A delegation of track officials from the indoor games who greeted the Carlisle team at the station were surprised to find Warner accompanied only by three athletes. Carlisle, competing against Yale, Navy, West Point, Georgetown, Penn and Syracuse, won the meet because—well, because Thorpe himself won the 100-yard dash, the 220, the high and low hurdles, the high jump and two other first places, seven in all.

In Short—

The famous hidden-ball trick was pulled by Carlisle against Harvard in 1903 . . . Dillon, a guard, wore a loose-fitting jersey especially for the purpose of hiding the ball . . . Quarterback Johnson slipped the ball underneath Dillon's jersey on the Carlisle 20-yard line after a Harvard kick, and every Indian faked possession of it while Harvard men, bewildered, permitted Dillon to trot 80 yards across the goal line unmolested . . . compelled under the rules, then, to touch the ball to the ground after crossing the goal line, Dillon squirmed futilely but could not release the ball from under his jersey . . . in a grand rush and scramble, Carlisle men beat Harvard men to the scene, took the ball from Dillon and scored the touchdown . . . according to Guyon, the trick was concocted by Dillon himself and was no invention of Coach Warner's . . . anyway a change in the rules followed the next season, preventing any such tricks in the future . . . Gus Welch all but failed to reach Carlisle when he left his Oklahoma reservation to attend the Pennsylvania school . . . on the train, the Pullman conductor asked for his reservation . . . Welch, misunderstanding, attempted to describe its location in Oklahoma . . . the conductor, believing that Welch had left his reservation at home, threatened to throw the Indian boy off the train . . . another traveler happily explained the situation to Welch who finally pulled his train reservation out of his pocket, appeased the conductor, and continued on to Carlisle.

American U. Signs Gus Welch as Coach

Carlisle Ace Appointed to Post Here

Half-Blooded Chippewa Succeeds Young as Athletic Director.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

American University's future in athletics, with particular emphasis on football, yesterday was entrusted to a veteran of the old school in the person of Gus Welch, one of Carlisle's most famous gridiron heroes.

The quiet, unassuming half-blooded Chippewa succeeds Walter Young, former director of athletics and head coach of all major sports, whose resignation recently was accepted. Welch will not assume command, officially, until next autumn, although spring football practice to be held in April will be under his direction.

Two assistants were appointed simultaneously by the athletic board to serve with Welch, Paul Smith, who already has assumed the duties of basket ball coach, and Stafford Cassell, who will be Welch's lieutenant in football.

A regular at Carlisle when the copper-skinned athletes fresh off the reservation were the most feared band of gridmen in the Nation, Welch quarterbacked the team for three successive years, 1911, 1912 and 1913. In 1916 he enrolled at nearby Dickinson Institute to study law and played one year at that school.

He was one of the first to respond to the call to arms in 1917, enrolling in the infantry the same day the United Staes entered the great conflict. He served 18 months overseas as a captain.

While awaiting orders, however, Welch was given his first coaching assignmenet at Camp Meade, Md., drilling the officers' eleven of that post. His first collegiate undertaking in this field was at Washington State where he took over the reins in 1919, making an auspicious debut tying Oregon for the Pacific Coast championship. Dick

Florida Match Won by Helen Dettweiler

By the Associated Press.

Coral Gables, Fla., Feb. 3.—Crossing paths with the golfer who defeated her in the finals of the District championship four years ago, Helen Dettweiler, blonde Washington, D. C., star, turned back Mrs. Elsie Haynes, member of Miss Dettweiler's club, 2 and 1 today in first round of the Miami Biltmore Golf tournament.

Miss Dettweiler shot the outgoing nine in an even 40 to take a three-up lead. The youthful Washington golfer won five straight holes starting with the fifth, after Mrs. Haynes former Middle Atlantic champion, had sunk a chip shot on the first hole to go 1 up and par the second to go 2 up.

Four down and four to go, Mrs. Haynes rallied, winning the fifteenth and sixteenth with pars, and they halved the seventeenth in fives.

Tomorrow Miss Dettweiler, who last week lost to Patty Berg in the second round at Punta Gorda, will meet Dorothy Traung, sensational Pacific Coast golfer, who was runner-up for the National Championship a few years ago.

Miss Berg, medalist, eliminated Mrs. Freeda Nolan, of New Castle, Pa., 5 and 3, and Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, S. C., favored to meet Miss Berg in the finals, won easily from Kathryn Bragaw, of Orange, N. J., 4 and 3.

Another Washington golfer, Mrs. L. G. Pray, lost by one up to Alberta Haycraft, of Minneapolis, one up.

Col. Rupper Raps Gehrig, Gomez and Powell In Vigorous Reply to Yanks' Holdout Brigade

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—In the spacious reception room of his big brewery on Third avenue, Col. Jacob Ruppert spoke his piece on baseball holdouts today, and what he had to say was plenty.

Nettled and thoroughly aroused by what he termed "unreasonable demands," the New York Yankee club owner aimed punch after punch at Lou Gehrig and Lefty Gomez, whom he accused of wrecking the club's pennant chances in 1935 by their barnstorming tour of Japan.

"Gehrig comes to my office, contract in hand, and says he ought to get more than $31,000 next season," the colonel opened up on his star first baseman. "He doesn't say a word about his poor season in 1935, when he got $31,000, too. He doesn't mention that he made more than $6,000 in the world series. All he could remember was what he did last year.

Refreshed His Memory.

"So I told him about it; refreshed his memory. I told him we were just getting back some of the money we lost in the lean years and that if he and Gomez hadn't gone to Japan we would have won the 1935 pennant. He hasn't much to say, but he leaves his contract. Humph!

"And Gomez! He's got a lot of nerve saying we offered him a bat boy's salary. He's lucky we didn't cut him worse than we did. After he got back from Japan why he couldn't pitch up a dark alley. He did a poor job in '35 and not much better last season. Still we paid him well. Humph!"

The colonel shook his head. Then he brought up Jake Powell, Yankee world series hitting hero.

"He beats them all," said the Colonel. "He calls my attention to the number of hits he made in the world series. That's a laugh. On that basis, what about poor Dickey? He made only three hits to Powell's ten. I suppose, then, I should pay Powell three times as much as I pay Dickey. That shows how a baseball player's mind works sometimes."

With that, the colonel, steaming up faster and faster, went back to Gehrig.

"I notice he threw a cocktail party for you newspaper fellows the other day, or rather his press agent manager, not Joe McCarthy, did. Tells you, he's going to go after Cobb's and Ruth's records, and play 2,500 consecutive games if he can. Who cares about records? I know I don't and I'm as much a fan as any one, I guess. Fans go to see a ball game. They're not interested much whether a fellow's playing his 2,500th straight game or breaking an old record. It's what a player is today that counts."

The trouble with most ball players, says the colonel, is that they don't realize they've been paid for what they did last season and that a ball club takes a gamble on con-

Negro Scribe Seeks Rebate

Says Fight Fixed So Louis Wouldn't Be Beaten.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 3.—Joseph Bostica, Negro sports writer for the New York Age, appealed to the New York State Athletic Commission today to help him recover all or part of the $16.50 he said he paid to the Joe Louis-Bob Pastor fight last Friday.

He said he regarded the ticket as a contract with Madison Square Garden to "get what I paid for." John J. Phelan, chairman of the commission, said there was nothing he could do about it.

Bostica said he was sending the ticket stub to his attorney to recover at least part of the $16.50. He is taking this action, he said, because Jimmy Johnston, Garden boxing director, and Pastor made prebattle plans for Pastor "to stay with Louis for ten rounds."

"If he had fought against Louis the way he did against Ray Impellittiere he would have won," Bostica said.

The commission, meanwhile, announced the suspension of Pastor's manager, James J. Johnston, jr., until next week, at least. He was summoned to attend today's meeting, but did not show up. It was not revealed what he is wanted for.

Budge, Grant Net Winners

Californian Is Pressed to Down Senior.

Surfside, Fla., Feb. 3 (AP).—Recovering from a cold that hampered his earlier play, Bryan M. Grant, jr., of Atlanta advanced today to the semi-finals of the Surf Club Tennis tournament by trouncing Ellwood Cooke, of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-1.

In the opening set Grant won the first game on his own service and Cooke won his service, each game going to deuce three times. In the third game Cooke broke through Grant's service and Grant retaliated to take the fourth. Each held his own service to four-all and Grant ran out the last two games.

Arthur Hendrix, Lakeland, Fla., seeded fourth, eliminated Dr. Eugene McCauliff, Chicago, 6-1, 6-3.

Charles R. Harris, Palm Beach, seeded third, was far too steady for Wayne Sabin, Los Angeles, and won 6-4, 6-2.

Don Budge, of Oakland, Calif., had a hard battle from Walter Senior, of San Francisco, but won 8-6, 6-4, to complete the quarter finals. Tomorrow will be devoted to doubles, with the singles semi-finals Friday.

Jockey Hanford Again Suspended

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 3.—Ira Hanford, Omaha lad under contract to Miss Mary Hirsch, today drew a suspension of 20 racing days from the local stewards for employing unfair tactics astride his employer's 3-year-old No Sir in the fifth race. No Sir, 7-to-10 favorite, bore over on Rainland, the winner, through the stretch and was beaten a nose. Rainland's rider, Irving Anderson, claimed foul against No Sir while the official decision waited pending the photo finish result.

Hanford drew numerous suspensions last year, including one of 15 days after he drove Bold Venture home and became the first apprentice to win a Kentucky Derby.

Navy Crushes Terp Cagers, 53 to 37

Ruge Stars, Making 18 Points for Victors; Johnson Has 12.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 3.—The Navy five ran up its biggest score of the season, 53 to 37, against the University of Maryland here this afternoon, showing some of its best play of they ear. Capt. Bob Ruge and Alan McFarland, forwards, and Tiny Lynch, towering center, piled up a total of 40 points for Navy.

Maryland scored the first four points of the game, but was overhauled for the Navy to lead at the end of the half, 28 to 8.

Today's victory was the seventh for the Navy out of ten starts and was encouraging as Maryland is the strongest team Navy has defeated this year.

After Maryland had scored four points at the start on a double success from the line by Guyckeson and Wheeler's goal from the court, Laney, a sophomore sub for Ingram, netted the ball from the field and Frank Shamer scored two goals from the line. Shamer then scored from the field to put the Navy two points ahead, and Capt. Bob Ruge swung into action to put the Navy well in the lead.

Ruge had a remarkable scoring record. During the first half, he sank four field goals and as many from the line. Three more field goals before he was called to the bench in the second half brought his total to 18 points for the highest individual score made this year.

Alan McFarland, who played a shorter time, was the next highest scorer, he did not get going in the first half, but signalized his return to the game in the second period by scoring five field goals in six minutes, some of them on fine quick shots after taking a pass. Frank Lynch, towering center, did some great work in handling

Zone Defense Proves no Puzzle; Kiesel and O'Brien Star.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Employing a few sleight of hand tricks that completely mystified the visitors and disorganized their jack-in-the-box zone defense, George Washington last night turned Geneva College's representatives over its collective knee and gave them a sound 46-26 thrashing in full view of some 3,000 fans.

Conquerors of Long Island, the only team to win over the downtown dribblers this season, Geneva trotted out on the slippery Tech High School floor with a proud step and nonchalant air, but it was a bedraggled and crestfallen group of boys who left the court after running the merciless G. W. gantlet.

Geneva started well enough, helping itself to a 4-to-0 lead soon after the initial tap-off on field goals by Don Hamer and George Pennebaker, but wilted just as quickly as Kiesel, Butterworth and O'Brien pocketed field goals to shove the Colonials out in front.

Geneva tied it up at 11-all with Tom Hurley and Jack Sterling in the scoring roles, but again George Washington spurted, and on the strength of goals by O'Brien, Kiesel and Schonfeld, assumed a 16-11 lead. The eventual winners were never headed after that, but won going away.

Zone Defense Routed.

Geneva's zone defense, a radical departure from the orthodox style inasmuch as the players used it out around midcourt, was fairly successful in the first half, but in the second, when they really needed a defense, it was as effective as an anti-war treaty. George Washington tore it to shreds with the finest passing attack the non-voters of this town have seen in many days. It left the visitors, fans and officials as dizzy as a runaway barber pole.

George Washington swung into action swiftly with the start of the second half, raising the ante from 21 to 23, 25 and eventually 37 while Geneva was accumulating a few points the hard way for a total of 22. Coach Bill Reinhart sent his reserves into the fray with five minutes of play remaining, and even they handled the Pennsylvanians with ease.

Pastor's Pilot Barred; Louis' Handlers, Jacobs Near Break

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—The co-managers of Joe Louis threatened tonight to break with Mike Jacobs, New York boxing promoter, and sign for a heavyweight championship fight with James J. Braddock in Soldiers Field, Chicago, June 15, "over Jacob's head," if necessary.

The managers of the Detroit Brown Bomber are Julian Black, of Chicago, and John Roxborough, Detroit.

"We are dissatisfied with Jacobs' action with regard to the Braddock fight," Black bellowed. "We think it time Mike gave Louis a break and quit protecting Max Schmeling, whom he also has under contract."

Jacobs holds a contract calling for the exclusive promotional rights on Louis until 1940. He has staged all of his fights since February, 1935. A split-up would dissolve the biggest fistic combination since the Dempsey-Kearns-Rickard triumvirate, which produced boxing's first million-dollar gate.

"If Jacobs insists upon stalling we intend to break with him and sign for the fight ourselves," Black declared. "It is too big for us to pass up. When Sheldon Clark, the oil man, made us an offer for the Braddock fight, we asked Mike to sign immediately. Instead, we think he has been stalling. He told us he wanted to see what Schmeling would do first, and then left for New York without signing.

"Louis has done everything Jacobs has asked of him. He is the drawing card. He is an American citizen paying taxes in this country, and is entitled to a shot at the championship. Last fall when the Braddock-Schmeling fight fell through, we offered to fight Schmeling again. The German was offered $300,000 to get in the ring with Louis and demanded $600,000.

New York, Feb. 3.—Shorn of its highly advertised feature when Joe Gould, manager of Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock, failed to appear to demand return of forfeit money from the signed Braddock-Max Schmeling fight, the New York State Athletic Commission suspended one fight manager and announced a new knockdown rule today.

Jimmy Johnston, jr., son of the Madison Square Garden matchmaker and manager of Bob Pastor, was indefinitely suspended for failing to show up at the meeting. What the commission wanted to talk to him about was not revealed, although the general impression was that it concerned Pastor's 10-round fight against Joe Louis last Friday night.

Stirred into action by the death of Tony Marino, Pittsburgh bantamweight, after his fight last week against Indian Quintana, the commission announced it would frame a new rule whereby any fighter who has been knocked down three times in any one round would be automatically disqualified from continuing in that particular match.

The new knockdown rule will not apply to championship matches, explained Gen. John J. Phelan, commission chairman.

"What the rule will do is to empower the referee with the right to stop a fight when a man is knocked down three times in one round," said the general. "Of course, discretion will have to be used. If a man slips, such a fall will not be counted as a knockdown."

Manager Gould failed to appear as he promised, telling reporters he would come to the commission when the right time came. Gould thinks the commission should return the $5,000 he posted as good faith that Braddock would defend his title against Schmeling in New York, June 3. Now Gould has his heart and mind on passing up the Schmeling fight and throwing Braddock against Louis in Chicago for a $500,-

Finance, Equaling One Mile Track Record, Wins at Hialeah

Count Morse Is Second To Entry

No Sir Beaten by Nose by Rainland; Round Table Sets Mark.

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 3.—Equalling Steel Cutter's 1-mile track record of 1:35 1-5, Mrs. Emil Denemark's 5-year-old gelding Finance, carrying 116 pounds, easily won the grade "A" handicap that topped an eight-race card here this afternoon. Warren Wright's Count Morse gained the place by five lengths over Ogden Phipps' White Cockade, the choice in the field of six.

Genie Palatine, coupled with the winner, was fourth, while the 9-year-old Azucar, starting for the first time since October, was fifth. Gyral was left at the post with no chance. The Denemark entry paid $7.40 for $2.

The well-played Count Morse had the speed of the field as far as he wanted to go. Irving Anderson broke the Calumet colt on his toes and swung him into clear advantage entering the backstretch. Genie Palatine and Finance were closest on the trail. Charlie Kurtsinger, pace-setting jockey at the meeting, made his move with Finance at the far turn, his mount drawing away from the faltering Genie Palatine and setting sail for Count Morse. The Denemark gelding collared Count Morse at the entrance to the last furlong and romped away as if much the best. White Cockade, a recent winner over an off-track, could not threaten the leaders under hard urging.

Benjam, in the silks of the Detroit-owned Bomar Stable, outfoot-ed six other 2-year-olds of the male division to win the 3-furlong curtain raiser on today's program. With the ace juvenile rider Earl Steffen handling the reins, the son of Jean Valjean ran straight and true down the inside path and scored by a neck for his second victory in a row, paying $8.90. Stormy Sea was the contender from the start and easily saved the place, three lengths before Maepop, which got a photo call over the favored Family Friend for the show. The time was 0:34.

The third "Helpful Purse" of the meeting, the proceeds of which go to charity, was a two-horse affair for the entire 6 furlongs, with Patsey Begone and Whooper, a pair of long shots, finishing as named, a head apart. The two outsiders quickly opened up a wide margin over the remainder of the field, with the filly outlasting the gelding under Apprentice Schmidl. She returned $27.50. Whooper was three lengths better than Sage Girl. Shyno, the favorite, never was a factor.

Col. Ruppert Blasts Yankee Holdouts

tracting to pay them so much in advance.

"Another thing, they don't seem to realize," he stated, "was that we spend a lot of money to win that pennant. It's worth thousands of dollars to any player to sign a Yankee contract. We're always in the race. The players always get some cut out of the world series money. I never pass up a good player, because I want my ball club to win the pennant every year if it can.

"Gehrig and Gomez and the rest of them don't appreciate this. They don't think of the seven or eight farms we have or of the young fellows who are working their heads off to bring new talent to the Yankees so we can stay on top."

How about 1937 chances?

"If I sign up all my ballplayers—and I'm not going to be easy this time—we should run away with the pennant," said the colonel. "We've got a lot of great young fellows coming up. Why, my club at Norfolk, Va., is good enough right now to give a lot of major league teams a tough season."

Col. Ruppert has had a lot of fun since he bought the Yankees in 1915 with Col. T. L. Huston, but Catcher Bill Dickey gave him his greatest laugh in the last world series. Bill couldn't get a hit. His duck was against him. So, in one game he strode up to Col. Ruppert's box.

"Rub this bat for me, Mr. Ruppert," he said. "Then I'll hit a home run sure."

The colonel gave the bat a good rub.

"Bill went up to bat with blood in his eyes," laughed the colonel, "and struck out."

Selections at Hialeah.

Dear Al,

Here's a telegram that Walter E. O'Hara, president of Narragansett Park, dispatched to Col. Matthew Winn, president of Churchill Downs:

Dear Col. Winn:

In the event that floods may prevent Churchill Downs being made ready for the Kentucky Derby please consider Narragansett Park at your disposal for the 1937 running of this historic event. Offer you choice of running complete card of races or the Kentucky Derby only. Am sincerely anxious to co-operate with you in any direction you may indicate. All good wishes and personal felicitations.

WALTER E. O'HARA,
Coral Gables, Florida."

The spring meeting at Narragansett opens on May 1 and the Derby is scheduled for May 8. It has been learned since that Churchill Downs, barring future floods, will be ready for its regular meeting. However, O'Hara's gesture is another proof of his ability to lend a helping hand and to think quickly. Incidently, the Derby has an unbroken annual sequence at the same track since 1875. Forty thousand Kentucky colonels would stage a "sit down" strike if the classic were run in Rhode Island.

BILL.

First race—Miss Dolly Kay is said to be a promising juvenile and I'm going to try to make her defeat the bulky field of gals named for this event. Kurtsinger will do the riding. Sing Low and Witch Hazel to take care of the others.

Second race—Marfeu has run up a string of seconds but is the logical choice in this field of maidens. Wagner, who is in good form now, will do the booting. Sceneshifter and Rippling Ray for the place and show awards.

Third race—Sanctity seems the best suited of this field. Has worked well and has shown enough in competition to warrant the choice. Sam Worthy has speed on occasions and is dangerous. Dixie Princess could awake.

Fourth race—Par has been passed along to me as one with a fighting chance of taking this heat. Wayne Wright will do the riding and I'm going to string along. Carlovinian and Early Setiler may account for the minor awards.

Fifth race—Mixwell gets in light due to the apprentice allowance and will have to be caught before this purse goes elsewhere. I believe he can stick it out. Sandy Boot and Airy Going appear to be the best of the others.

Sixth race—Chilca, in with light weight, should like the turf course and a win would not surprise me. Tap On and Little Maxie may complete the money picture.

Seventh race—Just Buck, Top High and Briny Deep is the way I prefer them in the day's finale. However, these are members of the "We-Beat-Each-Other" Club.

Best bet—Mixwell.

Eastern High Five Conquers St. John's, 28-17

Victors Paced By Play of Quantrille

Colton and Colley Aid in Win; Score at Half Is 18-10, Eastern.

By Jack Munhall.

Eastern High School's flashy five hung a 28-17 shiner on St. John's fighting cadets in the rubber game of their current series yesterday at S. John's gym.

Due to a misunderstanding the teams were without an official. Referee Gene Augustifer, former Catholic University football star, substituted in creditable style.

St. John's grabbed a 5-0 lead in the first two minutes on shots by Gallagher and Reges and a foul toss by the latter. Eastern gradually swung in stride annd displaying its customary clever passing and accurate distance shooting, took an 8-5 advantage at the end of the period and were never headed although extended. Colton and Colley combined to put on a tricky passing exhibition and, with Clint Quantrille and Colton flipping in pot shots from every angle, Eastern outclassed the Johnnies.

At the half, Eastern was holding an 18-10 lead after a second quarter in which both teams scored but six points. Swaggart began the third stanza with a neat shot and, when Gallagher scored on a clever feint and fast dribble, things looked better for the hosts. Then it was that Colton, forward, crushed the Cadet spirit with deadly shooting and uncanny blind passing which almost always found a mate free under the bucket.

The Lincoln Parkers swung into the fourth period in the van 24-12 and spent the remainder of the game freezing the ball by dint of rapid passing while the game Cadets frantically tried to break.

Quantrille, Colton and Colley paced the winners with 10, 8 and 8 respectively, while Joe Gallagher shone for the Johnnies, amassing five field goals.

Welch Is Signed By American U.

and Pat Hanley, who later were to achieve coaching fame, were members of that team.

Welch replaced Lone Star Dietz, now assistant to Pop Warner at Temple. From Washington he went to Randolph-Macon, in Virginia, remaining there six years until 1929 when he was signed as an assistant at the University of Virginia. He severed connections with the Charlottesville school two years ago and has not coached since.

During the summer months Welch conducts a summer camp for children at Natural Bridge, Va., and is active in recreational work. His camp, Kewanzee, named after his maternal grandfather, is conducted in approved Indian style.

Although he is a disciple of the single and double-wingback offense, the Eagles' new mentor has not decided on an offense for next year's eleven. He wants to look the candidates over when they report for spring practice and will build his attack around the available material.

Ring Heads Bar Pastor Manager

000 guarantee made by Sheldon Clark, Chicago sportsman.

"We haven't been approached on the subject," said General Phelan. "All we know is what we read in the newspapers. There is a contract filed with us that says Braddock is going to fight Schmeling here June 3 and as far as we are concerned it is a legal contract that can be enforced."

The commission indicated it would bar Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, from fighting Pastor next March in New York.

"Every time we've had anything to do with Baer during the last two years, he has claimed his hands are bad," said Gen. Phelan, "so why should they be good enough to use against Pastor?"

Referee Arthur Donovan of New York, the third man in the ring when Joe Louis knocked out Baer, was called.

"In your estimation," asked Gen. Phelan, "Do you think Baer could have continued against Louis?"

"Yes, I'm sure of it," replied Donovan. "In fact, when I reached the count of eight I yelled 'get up' to him, and he just shook his head."

The commission approved a bantamweight match between Sixto Escobar, champion, and Lou Salica, New York, to be fought at San Juan, Puerto Rico, February 26. It will recognize the winner as world champion.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 2.—Jake Schaefer won the fourth block of his 28.2 balkline billiards match with Willie Hoppe today and took a lead of 1,000 to 757 in total points.

Gonzaga Five Wins Ninth Straight

Gonzaga's undefeated Purple tossers captured their ninth consecutive victory yesterday, defeating a stubborn Washington and Lee five, 33 to 20, on the Gonzaga court.

Minus its star forward, Tom Hanley, ill of the flu, the hosts allowed the Generals to take an early lead, which they maintained throughout the first half, leading, 12 to 9, at the intermission.

Coach Mitchell inserted Walsh, the regular center, to begin the second half, and he proved the needed spark. With Boyle and O'Brien scoring consistently, the Purple set a hot pace in the fourth period and won handily.

Greenkeepers' Meeting Here Hears of Unique Golf Course

How would you like to play golf on a course which is kept in championship condition every day of the year, although for seven months during the season not a single golfer is permitted to step foot on the course?

Such a course is located 10 miles north of Charleston, S. C., and is known as the Yeaman's Hall Club.

J. K. Hanes, of the club, who lectured yesterday before the National Association of Greenskeepers at Wardman Park on "Maintaining Turf in the South" described this unique course.

Yeamans Hall, a part of the barony granted the lords proprietors to Lady Margaret Yeamans, was founded in 1685. Hanes said that 900 acres of this property were purchased in 1924 by a group of wealthy Northerners and have been developed into an exclusive winter resort and golf club.

"Up to date this corporation has spent around $1,000,000 in the general development and winter homes have been erected by 33 of the club's members at a cost of more than $1,000,000," the soft-spoken Southerner stated.

"This course was designed and built in 1924 by Seth J. Raynor," Hanes declared. "Yeamans Hall is primarily a golf club and its 18 holes are kept in championship condition all the year round, but the course is only open for play five months—from November 15 to April 15.

"Our fairways are cut once or twice a week—greens and tees are cut every day, even during the summer months when no one plays the course, and during the summer as many as 60 Negro women are employed to weed crab grass.

"In the first week of October, rye seed is sowed on all the fairways—up to 200 pounds to the acre. About the middle of October the greens are seeded to rye. Sixteen tons of rye grass seed are used annually. The greens and fairways are Bermuda in the summer months."

Hanes' interesting discussion of what has been called "America's most perfect course," topped the program of lectures. Charles H. Conors, ornamental horticulturist of the New Jersey Experiment Station, New Brunswick, N. J., spoke on "Landscaping the Clubhouse Grounds," and Dr. N. R. Smith, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, talked on "Soil Organisms in Relation to Golf Turf."

Three more lectures are scheduled this afternoon. Of particular interest will be the one by Prof. C. H. Hadley, of the Bureau of Entomology, who will speak on "Japanese, Asiatic and June Beetle Control." H. F. A. North, of the U. S. G. A. greens section, will speak on "Growing Seed of Golf Course Grasses," and a group of greenskeepers will participate in a "Turf watering forum."

Another feature on yesterday's program was a visit to the Arlington Experimental gardens, where some of the wonders in greenskeeping were unfolded before the eyes of some 250 visiting greenskeepers.

Training School Wins.

The National Training School yesterday defeated Bladensburg High, 30-22, in the first game of a two-game card to be played on a home-and-home basis.

Exhibiting a great offensive, the Training School boys walked into a 13 to 7 lead at the half. This burst of basketmaking was led by Tillman and Price. Stack and Hardy were best for the home team.

rebounds and scored 10 points, all on field goals, so that the trio was responsible for 40 of the Navy's 53 points.

Maryland made a greatly improved showing in the second half. For one thing, Eddie Johnson, who had played a short time at forward in the first half, came back into the game as a guard and scored a total of 12 points, all in the second half, made the Old Liner's high scorer. Guyckeyson, also did all his scoring, six points, in the second half.

McFarland's remarkable scoring spree kept Navy in the lead and preserved a margin to the end.

Terp Frosh Five Beats Central 36-20

Charlie Norton, Maryland's 6 foot 2-inch frosh center from Utah, put on a one-man show in the closing minutes of the cage tiff with Central in Ritchie Coliseum yesterday afternoon and brought the College Park yearlings a 36-20 victory.

In winning their sixth game of the season the Terplets looked anything but impressive. After building up a 17-10 half-time lead they permitted this advantage to be reduced to 23-20 with four minutes remaining.

This was as far as the Mount Pleasanters came to winning the game as Norton found the range of the rims for four quick goals and the Young Liners were well out in front to stay.

Clark grabbed scoring honors for Central, caging six tallies but was totally eclipsed by Norton, who flipped in 13 counters.

London, Feb. 3 (AP).—The field for the ninty-ninth running of the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, March 19, was reduced to 45 today when the trainers of 14 horses, two of them American-owned, refused the weights recently assigned.

The American-owned horses declared out were Louis Stoddard, jr.,'s Free Wheeler and Alvin Untermyer's Bagatelle 2nd. Free Wheeler had been assigned 147 pounds and Bagatelle 2nd., 142. Their withdrawal left nine American horses eligible for the jumping classic.

Duckpin Fans To Aid Flood Sufferers

Local mapleways will literally hum with activity on Saturday with the duckpin calendar filled to capacity with three major events on tap.

Featuring the busy week-end will be the mammoth "bowling carnival" for the relief of flood sufferers at the Convention Hall alleys, where for small fee of 50 cents, duckpin fans will be treated to the grand finale of the Howard Campbell Swepestakes, a sparkling team match between the Regal Neon Sign All-Stars and Occidental Restaurant and the daddy of all head-to-head singles match between Ida Simmons, the national champion pinwoman and Lorraine Gulli, the dethroned champion.

At the Arcadia alleys, a golden opportunity for a huge slice of prize money will be offered to the "average bowler" in the second annual rolling of the Margaret Lynn Sweepstakes. The stakes will be run on a handicap basis for men carrying an average of 106 or under and women with 103 or less, two-thirds the difference between high average and scratch, prevailing. A field of 100 entries have already turned in applications to honor the popular Mrs. Lynn, rolling in two shifts, 7:30 and 9:30 p. m. Entrance fee of $2 includes cost of games.

The keenest kind of competition is in store for visiting women bowlers from New England, Maryland, Virginia and stars from the District in the rolling of the sixth annual U. S. Sweepstakes for women. The event consists of ten games, the opening block being scheduled at Silver Spring and the wind-up at the Lucky Strike.

Larry Proctor and Jack Cain shared the spotlight in the Bankers League at Arcadia, the former capturing individual game honors with 151 and the latter piling up a top set of 375. City Bank led the team scoring with 590 and 1705 . . .Wholesale continued to set the pace in the Chestnut Farms Dairy League with a smashing three-game decision over Orangeade . . . The two leading teams took a nose dive in the Lucky Strike Ladies League. General Land Office bowing twice to Social Security Board and Commerce being humbled three times by Bureau of Investigation. Rena Collins shot a 126 game in Joseph H. Milan's only win from Bethany. Calvert's 121-326 featured Mt. Pleasant's clean sweep over the Miriams.

best games of the season in helping the Colonials' cause, once being tossed into the band by irate Fred Milanovich. Brusiloff's Buglers, incidentally, received almost as much of a whipping as Geneva, risking life and instruments to stand by their posts.

The evening enlivened by a between halves program featuring the band, barytone Buddy Shaner, basso Arch McDonald, who cut down the pine tree again, and about 25 urchins who profited by Mr. Shaner's rendition of "Pennies From Heaven." The pennies came from the stands this time, which is a tough blow for the Sunday Schools. McDonald's efforts failed to lure any pine trees from the audience.

On the Air Today

Periodically a lengthy and sincere appraisal of the work of Mr. Cecil B. DeMille comes to this desk from Ronald Dawson, whose Northern Dramatic Company has long been a feature of WOL's weekly schedules. And one is even now at hand:

"Some time ago I penned a note to you anent "Radio Theater." Tonight, that same program was tuned in with the hope that perhaps 'The Great DeMille' had learned a thing or two about the program . . . which he gets a tidy sum. Well, the answer is no.

"'Mr. Deeds Goes to Town' was a marvelous picture, but as a radio show it was just a plain 'bust.' Of course, it had its glamour. Why not, with the three stars in the cast? But, Gary Cooper did not measure up in any way to his performance on the screen although Stander and Arthur were quite as good. But the adaptation was poor or else it is that comedy, other than slap-stick, is flat on the air no matter who does it. There were pauses 'planted' for laughs which did not register.

"Still, the fact remains that whoever made the adaptation may be a fine screen writer, but should take a course in radio writing. Here is just one incident and at the most important point—the climax. You remember where Deeds 'socks' the lawyer. The buildup in the picture was great and still more enjoyable because the punch came unexpectedly. Not so in the radio program. No, sir, a good 15 seconds before the punch, Stander begins to yell 'Don't sock him, Deeds, don't sock him'—then you heard the crowd, which completely drowned out the 'sock,' after which the orchestra came in for no reason at all, played a few bars (and it seemed the orchestra wasn't sure of itself) and we found that we were still in the same scene.

"Here is what should have happened. You, as a writer, know the unexpected is what carries the power of any scene. Deeds should have started his lines leading up to that punch, then quite unexpectedly we should have heard him punch the lawyer, who should have groaned, then the crowd should have got excited, over which Stander could have been heard yelling 'You didn't have to punch him.' And as for the orchestra, it should have been kept out until that scene was over.

"This whole story could have been written in a very few words and they are 'Tell Mr. Cecil B. DeMille to stick to pictures!'"

* * * *

Well, whether you agree with Mr. Dawson or not (and I know too little about dramatic production on such a large scale as this to comment) you can see for yourself how his direction is projected to an air audience tonight when at 9:30 WOL, his dramatic company presents "That We May Live," a story designed to aid in educating the public against war. At least this much can be said about Ronald Dawson. He is willing to criticize—but he also presents his own productions on the air, exposing himself, as it were, if you feel disposed to champion the matter he has criticized.

* * * *

Speaking of dramatic direction, Kate Smith's "Band Wagon" offers a scene from the current Broadway production, "Brother Rat," in which an unusual twist will be given. Replacing the customary announcer's synopsis will be Frank Albertson's first person narrative of the play up to the time of the broadcast scene. WJSV, at 8.

Power, Debits, Loans and Freight Hold Gains Over Year Ago.

New York, Feb. 3.—Notwithstanding the floods and the General Motors strike, business activity remains at a high level, Poor's Investment Advisory Service says today. Although steel output is off 3.3 per cent and automobile production 11.8 per cent for the week, comparison with the corresponding week in 1936 shows that steel production is up 57.7 per cent, electric power production 15.7 per cent, bank debits 21 per cent, commercial loans 16.3 per cent and carloadings 14.5 per cent.

"Sharpest decline from 1936 is the drop of 20.5 per cent in motor car output," states the report. "The explanation is so obvious, however, as to dispel any fears on the basic trend. With the world's largest car manufacturer severely crippled by the sit-down strike, the production level enjoyed by the industry as a whole testifies to the strong underlying demand for cars. This is further attested by December, 1936, statistics. In that month, factory sales of motor vehicles amounted to 498,721, the highest monthly total with one exception since July, 1929.

"In a sense the General Motors strike is not an unmixed evil. One effect is a much more rapid movement in used car sales, the result of growing curtailment of new car factory deliveries. The greater movement of second-hand cars will improve the inventory status of dealers. Moreover, the current scarcity of new cars forecasts urgent demand and active operations in the motor industry when the strike is settled."

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Advance in More Active Trading Led by Steel Shares; Wheat Spurts.

New York, Feb. 3.—Stocks pushed ahead in more active trading and so far as industrial issues were concerned the average level was lifted to a new high for the recovery movement. Stock turnover was around two and a half million shares. Government bonds slowed down. May wheat jumped 3⅛ cents to 131¼ cents a bushel. Other commodities rallied.

Stocks acted best in the steel, railroad equipment, automotive and oil divisions. Numerous steel stocks sold at new tops, including U. S. Steel, National Crucible, Republic and Bethlehem. U. S. Steel was closely watched because of its close call at 100. It came within a fraction of that goal and then had to absorb a good deal of profit taking. Gains for the steels averaged 2 to 3 points.

Motor shares improved at the start and then did little more than to hang on. Here and there enough profit taking appeared to push prices below the previous closings. Buying of the railroad equipments was general and brought 1 to 3 point gains. Amerada set a fast pace for the oils. Socony-Vacuum was active but kept to a narrow range.

Rail Shares Revive.

Railroad shares revived a little. Santa Fe, Delaware & Hudson, Great Northern & Southern Pacific made the best gains. Central and Chesapeake & Ohio were prominent. Nickle Plate rose 3 points. Mail orders and farm implements held their strength. Textiles and store stocks were well backed. Rubbers were mixed.

In the miscellaneous list Coca-Cola spurted 4 points to a new peak. Hall Printing and Thermoid were active and higher. Commercial Solvents and Nash-Kelvinator attracted some attention. Westinghouse hardened on its earnings report.

In the money market the placid surface kept from view the forces working near the bottom. They are a gradual hardening of short-term rates. Some time before the latest news on reserve requirement increase the Treasury discount bill rate had been increasing. This week it continued its advance, along with another rise in acceptance rates. Preparation by the banks for the higher reserve will be slow and necessarily it will require some time for the full effect to be felt of the reduction in excess reserves, withdrawals from this center of out-of-town money in preparation therefor, and of sterilization of incoming gold.

Short-term Money.

One assertion is undisputed in any quarter; on the contrary, higher short-term money rates, is frankly the goal of the increase in reserves. Apparently the Treasury is willing to pay more for its short-etrm borrowing in order to make a gesture against credit inflation, which, if it comes, would pump up quickly the cost of Government borrowing, to say nothing of demoralizing the price for bond investments now held by the banks.

Discussions are now going on among the banks to put up the rate on time loans, although call money may not be changed until the higher reserves actually go into effect. Higher time money in turn would tend to stiffen other short money, and it would increase a little the cost of carrying securities and of commercial business. General business can face the prospect of moderately higher rates with complacency, for a time at least. Business deposits in the banks are heavy enough to give a certain immunity to higher interest charges. Meanwhile bank depositors do not stand to gain much. Savings bank rates might harden with better yield rates on bonds, but the law forbids banks to pay interest on demand deposits and limits the rates for time deposits.

Disparities.

Traders have a few puzzles in price disparities. One is the narrow spread between the $6 and the $7 preferred stocks of Electric Power & Light. Normally the spread has been 6 or 7 points, although dividend arrears on the $7 preferred are nearly $6 a share greater than the $6 preferred arreas and the $7 peferred has the peference, to say nothing of its high rate when regular payments are being made. Last night the $7 preferred closed at 85¼ and the $6 preferred ended at 83½, a spread which suggests inordinate demand for the latter or some special selling of the former. On the face of things there would appear to be some arbitrage profit for some one. . . Another interesting situation is that in Remington Rand warrants and rights. Skilled arbitrageurs say it requires intensive study even to understand it.

More Gold By Mail.

The faith of Swiss shippers of gold in the safety of parcel post transfers of precious metaal was not shaken by the recent loss of one brick, valued at about $14,000, from a shipment, during transit. Today 130 gold bricks, each separately wrapped, and each consigned to a local bank by parcel post, arrived here from the same Swiss source which dispatched the previous big consignment by mail. Probably the lost $14,000 was the grief of a European insurance company, for the postoffice assumes nothing more than a nominal liability and American insurance companies do not, apparently, like such risks. There is a large saving in ocean freight costs when the gold comes as loose cargo and not in the ship's strong room under the care of the purser.

Seven Rules Given For Speculators

New York, Feb. 3.—In the current issue of Barron's Fred C. Kelly gives the following rules for stock speculators:

Cut losses instantly, but let profits run.

Never buy on scale downward.

Never fool with a stagnant market.

Never hesitate to sell even your gilt-edged stocks when you think major trend of whole market is downward.

Never have complete confidence in the infallibility of a source of information even though it may be from a high place.

Remember it is always easier to buy than to sell.

Never buy anything until the whole market has demonstrated its ability to ignore bad news.

Steel Output At 79 Per Cent Regains Stride

Pittsburgh and Wheeling Operations Recover to Pre-Flood Rate.

New York, Feb. 3.—"With the resumption of steel making by units in the Pittsburgh, Wheeling and Youngstown districts that were affected by flood conditions, the ingot production for the country has risen to 79 per cent from an estimated 75 per cent a week ago," says Iron Age in its weekly summary today. The review adds:

"Mills at Ashland and Newport, Ky., and Portsmouth, Ohio, are still idle, but the Middleton, Ohio, plant, where operations had been reduced to 50 per cent because of diversion of power, has stepped up to 75 per cent, with capacity production again in sight.

"The Pittsburgh district has reached an 82 per cent rate, the peak that was attained the week before the flood, and the Wheeling district has quickly snapped back to a 95 per cent operation, one point higher than in the week preceding the flood. The Youngstown district has advanced to 78 per cent from 76 per cent last week. The southern Ohio output is estimated at 19 per cent, only a slight rise over a week ago.

Reconstruction Work.

"As flood waters recede the extent of the damage to industrial plants, dwellings, bridges and highways will become apparent. Preliminary surveys indicate that there will be an urgent need for considerable steel for quick repairs and a much heavier demand later on for reconstruction work and flood control projects on a large scale. Foundries in the Cincinnati area have been hard hit and it may be weeks before all of them resume production, thereby causing delays in shipments of machine tools for which orders have piled up heavily in recent months. Steel stocks of many jobbers in the Ohio Valley have been flooded, and new shipments in large volume will be required, together with reconditioning of damaged material at the mills.

"Resumption of work at some of the plants of the General Motors Corporation has resulted in the release of suspended tonnages of some products, particularly sheets and strip. Meanwhile, other automobile companies are straining for higher production, Ford having reached 6,000 cars a day. That company has inquired for 80,000 tons of square and round bars and slabs, the latter processing on its own sheet mills. Total output of motor cars is moving up slowly, having gained a little more than 3,000 units last week."

By the Associated Press.

A Department of Agriculture survey yesterday showed returns realized by Virginia farmers for their produce continued to compare favorably in most cases with national averages.

The average price received by Virginia farmers on January 15 topped the national average for wheat, oats, rye, buckwheat, potatoes, cotton, hogs, veal calves, lambs, horses, mules, chickens, turkeys, milk (wholesale), wool, apples, hay, peanuts, soybeans and cowpeas.

A comparison of returns from major crops as of January 15 showed Virginia wheat bringing $1.33 per bushel, against $1.23 national average, corn 97 cents, against $1.006 national average; potatoes, $1.25 per bushel, against $1.22 national average; sweet potatoes, 85 cents, against 87.8 cents; hogs, $9.50 per 100 pounds, against $9.40; beef cattle, $6.50, against $6.54; apples, $1.15 per bushel, against $1.11, and tobacco, 20.9 cents per pound, against 26.8.

Curb Edges Higher. Utilities Are Firm

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—The curb market edged a trifle higher in active trading today but most gains were confined to fractions. A few specialties managed to improve around a point. Among them were Pittsburgh Plate Glass, which rose 1 at 147; McWilliams Dredging at 38⅜, up ⅛, and Montgomery Ward "A" which was 1 up at 156.

Utilities were in demand and some shares made impressive gains only to lose most of them under profit selling near the close. United Light & Power preferred finished 1 higher at 68⅝. On the losing side was Electric Bond & Share, which ended ½ down at 29⅜ after an earlier rally. Newmont, ¾ up at 126½, led the mining division.

German Travel Marks Rise.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Augmented travel to Germany next spring by tourists who are buying their German money now was predicted today by bankers and travel agents following a second sharp rise in travel and registered marks in the foreign exchange market.

Overtime Pay Plan Opposed By Ramspeck

House Civil Service Head Prefers Increase in U. S. Personnel.

Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee last night said he would seek legislation to assure compensatory time off for Government employes who work overtime, but he said he does not favor a law that would provide extra pay for overtime.

"There are too many people out of work in this country to pay present employes to do the work which might be done by additional employes," he said.

"I would favor additional personnel for those departments that can't do the work they're supposed to do with present employes."

Ramspeck said his committee probably will not take up the problem of eliminating overtime, however until it acts on pending civil service legislation, including the bill to extend the civil service system to all executive departments.

Representative Connery (Democrat), of Massachusetts, yesterday decided to withhold his amendment to the independent offices appropriations bill in behalf of overtime workers.

He said on the House floor he had been advised the amendment would be subject to a point of order as legislation on an appropriation bill. As a consequence, he said, he will co-operate with Ramspeck in enacting corrective legislation.

Connery's amendment provided that anyone working more than 39 hours a week should be given equal time off or be paid time and a half for the extra work.

Burton Holmes.

"ALL OVER FRANCE." The fourth of five travel talks by Burton Holmes, illustrated with still and motion pictures by Mr. Holmes, with slide coloring by Mildred Petrie. At the Theodore Roosevelt High School, Reserved Wednesday evening by W. A. Whitney.

"All Over France" was the title of the fourth of Burton Holmes' current series of travel talks—and it was just that, and further he chose about the only form of narration possible by which to achieve that end in the short space of two hours.

Introduced by Mr. Charles Saint, third secretary of the staff of the French Embassy, substituting for His Excellency the French Ambassador, Mr. Holmes launched into one of his most rambling, yet at the same time one of his most fascinatingly interesting journeys.

Indeed, to proceed "All Over France," extended stops, elaborate excursions into all the possible and interesting by-ways of that country would be quite out of the question, and Mr. Holmes touched only briefly the various spots, thereby making the grand tour for the vicarious travelers with completeness and expedition.

An Informal Chat.

More like an informal chat, as one might enjoy at his own hearthside, Mr. Holmes hopped about the French Capital, stopping to relate an incident here and there, viewing the present sights—contrasting them with pictures of years ago—and presenting new angles on familiar scenes.

Everything, or almost everything (except Mont Blanc, which was seen last week), conjured by the name of France came within the purview of the capacity audience, whether the self-appointed lecturers in the pews liked it or not. There was, besides la vie Parisienne, Fontainbleau and its forest, Versailles with the palace and its fountains, Mont Saint Michel, Brittany and its quaint headdresses, the monoliths of Carnac, the fields of lavender in Provence, Avignon and the one-time Vatican, and la Midi de la France, with Nice, Cannes, Monaco, Monte Carlo and the other resorts of the Riviera.

Space does not permit the detailing all the interesting places visited nor anywhere near the complement of interesting sights revealed. Suffice it to say, however, that the seeming impossible task of going "All Over France" in two hours was accomplished in fine manner.

A Discourteous Audience.

One would be remiss in his obligation to Mr. Holmes if he did not remind the audience that he is the lecturer, and also the fact that better places and times could be found in which to munch peanuts. The combined evils alone caused this reporter to seek more silent and less odorous listening posts. Surely this discourtesy will not be permitted to be repeated at next week's lecture, the last of the series, of which the subject is "New and Old Japan."

Further to embellish last evening's program, the Washington Civic Orchestra, under the able direction of Samuel Page Ford, presented an interesting program of French music before, after and between the "acts."

Visitors Barred From Jail Cell Of Mrs. Trader

Widow Denies Guilt; Will Be Arraigned on Murder Count.

By the Associated Press.

Snow Hill, Md., Feb. 3.—Sitting in a jail cell from which visitors were barred, Mrs Jeannette Trader asserted today she was innocent of a charge she murdered her husband, Clarence J. Trader, Stockton utilities owner.

"I am not guilty of shooting Clarence," she said, reiterating she loved her estranged mate who was found dead in her home on January 14 after they had visited several inns.

The Worcester County grand jury, sitting in special session, indicted Mrs. Trader on a murder charge yesterday. State's Attorney Thomas F. Johnson said he would ask a first-degree murder verdict, punishable either by death or life imprisonment.

Mrs. Trader's three sons and other visitors were not allowed to see her in jail today. Johnson said no one could see her except her attorney, Godfrey Child, and her physician, Dr. J. D Dickerson, who has been treating her for a cold.

Mrs. Trader will be arraigned Friday morning before Judge James M. Crockett. At the same time her attorneys will plead for her release on a writ of habeas corpus on grounds she is being illegally held.

"It is just a matter of time until I can go home," Mrs. Trader said.

State's Attorney Johnson said he could be ready to prosecute the case within two weeks. Mrs. Trader's counsel declined to say whether a change of venue would be sought.

The widow's arrest came after Sam (Ab) Smith, of Pungoteague, Va., had admitted under a "lie detector" test that he owned the pistol found beside Trader's body. Trader had named him co-respondent in a divorce suit.

Mrs. Jeannette Trader, 37-year-old widow of Clarence J. Trader, wealthy Stockton utility executive, on her way to jail after a lie detector test of a witness had led to her arrest on a charge of murdering her husband. Mrs. Trader, mother of three children, contends Trader killed himself. Deputy Sheriff Edwin D. Lynch is shown with the accused woman.

Court Reads Book Reviews.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—About 80 commendatory reviews of James T. Farrell's novel, "A World I Never Made," were offered in evidence in Yorkville court yesterday to combat the allegations of John S. Sumner, of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, that the book is obscene.

Trade Flood Loss Over Half Billion

By the Associated Press.

Government economists estimated yesterday flood loss to buisness in stricken areas will total around $600,000,000.

This estimate was based on loss of business property and equipment, crippled trade and weakened purchasing power. It did not include damages and other losses of private individuals.

Officials said much of the business lost to flooded States would be transferred to other sections, and that there probably would be no downswing in Nation-wide economic activity.

Tinkham Takes Stand Today in Cannon Suit

Trial Expected to Reach Jury Tomorrow After 6 Years of Delay.

Trial of Representative George Tinkham in a $500,000 libel suit brought by Bishop James Cannon will reach its climax this morning, after six years of court delay.

The Congressman will be put on the witness stand for the first time this morning, called by attorneys for Cannon, who will attempt to establish his financial responsibility. It has alraedy been stipulated by both sides that he is worth at least $500,000, the amount at stake in the action.

Immediately after Tinkham steps down from the stand, Attorney Roger J. Whiteford, for Tinkham, will request Justice Jennings Bailey to direct the jury to find a verdict in favor of Tinkham. If the judge rejects Whiteford's motion, Tinkham will again take the stand, this time as a witness in his own defense.

Will Speed Trial.

Attorney Whiteford indicated last night that he expects to clean up his side of the case within one day, meaning that the jury may depart to its chamber to deliberate by tomorrow noon.

The case has many unusual characteristics, chief of which was the absence throughout a week of hearings of Cannon, the plaintiff, who is said to be confined to Duke University Hospital at Durham, N. C., with arthritis. Another odd feature was the six years of postponements since the day of June 20, 1929, when Tinkham allegedly libeled the bishop by calling him a "shameless violator" of the corrupt practices act.

Old Records Read.

Yesterday's testimony was again introduced via old records, with attorneys reading question-and-answer statements taken from various witnesses during a trial in which Cannon was defendant in 1933. The burden of yesterday's testimony was an attempt by Attorney Robert McNeill, for Cannon, to show that campaign donations received by Cannon were spent solely within the State of Virginia, while Whiteford contended part of the large funds were spent in North Carolina. On this moot point rests Tinkham's charges, for the corrupt practices act applies only to interstate expenditures.

Hungarian Leader Quits.

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 3 (AP).—Admiral Nicholas von Horthy, regent of Hungary, announced tonight the resignation of Nicholas Kozma, minister of the interior, and designated Premier Koloman Daranyi temporarily to assume the post. Kozma, observers noted, had been the target of criticism by peasant political groups.

Girls at Maryland U. Publish Booklet on Coed's Etiquette

Frivolous 'Pin Planting' and Sorority House Door-Knob Hanging Frowned on; Campus Attire Explained.

"To Do Or Not To Do," published by a group of co-eds, yesterday made its first appearance on the campus at the University of Maryland, College Park.

"To Do Or Not To Do" is not a treatise on Shakespeare. It is described as "a social blue book of campus etiquette."

Prefaced by a parody on Hamlet's soliloquy "To be or not to be . . .," the publication is an 8-page pamphlet in the school colors of black and gold, containing lessons in etiquette for the college co-ed.

The idea for the pamphlet was originated last spring by Miss Marion Parker, of the Kennedy-Warren Apartments, Washington; whose father, L. H. Parker, is congressional tax expert. The manual published under auspices of the Women's League of the University, co-ed student governing body, will be distributed to all girl students.

First Lesson on Attire.

The first lesson deals with the proper attire for the well-dressed co-ed. In humorous vein it reads in part:

"Back about 1916 Grandmother Smith knitted a sweater for Fanny, who was to be the first co-ed at Maryland University, and ever since sweaters have held the spotlight for campus wear.

"The place to wear your long dress and handsome shoes is at a formal tea; then you also get out your freshly cleaned white gloves and your new hat. For informal teas you would wear no such outfit, but instead, a street length dress; shoes to go with it; hat and gloves."

For a co-ed to hang on the door-knob of her sorority house with her "date" is termed a breach of etiquette in the campus manual. Instructions are:

"Door-knob hangers are no longer the fashion. Say good-night and mean it. Anything else necessary to the parting may very well be said in the garden, maybe, or along the road somewhere. But when the actual time comes, understanding should have long ago been reached.

"A slow fade-out is never as effective as the good-night which snaps the whole thing off.

"Love may keep you warm, but it's just a draft on the feet for the sorority sisters."

Speaking of chaperons . . .

"A chaperone is no longer a 'necessary evil.' She no longer is the portly matron who sits close by while blushing Harry pays court to Miss Belinda on the far side of the room.

"Chaperones today have become honor guests. As such—and because, often enough, a chaperone has given up something she really wanted to do that evening—there are certain niceties to be observed.

"Before you join the rest of the bunch at the table, or on the dance floor, approach the honor guests, introduce yourselves, and welcome them to the festivities."

"Pin Planting" Serious.

In a section titled "Pin Planting," dealing with campus romances, the pamphlet harks back to the old tradition that for a co-ed to accept an admirer's fraternity pin is tantamount to an engagement. The etiquette book says:

"Blame it on the moon, the music, or the mood, what you will—'planting' a fraternity pin is—or should be—a pretty serious business.

"Serious, that is, in the sense that both the owner of the pin and its new wearer are thinking—or should be—fairly definitely about the future.

"Greek jewelry changes hands altogether too frequently these days. There are plenty of people who think that wearing a fraternity pin should 'mean' something."

If, after accepting the pin, the manual cautions, "the fire burns out and the ashes grow cold—don't sidestep into the two-timer role. Give the pin back."

Jewish Society Hears Address By O'Mahoney

Banquet and Installation of Officers Is Held at Shoreham.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, was the principal speaker at the annual banquet and installation of officers of B'nai B'rith at the Shoreham Hotel last night. The gathering was widely attended by noted Jewish leaders.

Among the honor guests were Representatives Herman P. Kopplemann, of Connecticut; Leon Sacks, of Pennsylvania; William M. Citron, of Connecticut; Adolph J. Sabath, of Illinois; Henry Ellenbogen, of Pennsylvania; William I. Sirovich, of New York; Emanuel Celler, of New York; Samuel Dickstein, of New York, and Theodore A. Peyser, of New York.

Plans for moving the national headquarters of B'nai B'rith from Cincinnati to Washington were discussed. Only last week the executive committee, meeting in Miami, voted to make the transfer this autumn.
